Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2161; 42 USC 2165; 42 USC 2201

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 710, subpart B

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department of Energy (DOE) has established the Personnel Security Assurance Program (PSAP) through the publication of the revision to 10 CFR 710, "Criteria and Procedures for Determining Eligibility for Access to Classified Matter or Significant Quantities of Special Nuclear Material." The PSAP was created in order to assure the reliability of individuals in certain positions, defined in Section 710.50(a), and referred to as PSAP positions for purposes of this proposed rule. The Department now proposes to amend this rule to promulgate guidelines for DOE contractors for testing for possible use of illegal drugs or alcohol by their PSAP-cleared employees. These guidelines will constitute a baseline PSAP substance abuse testing component.

This is a court-ordered action.

Abstract: On February 9, 1988, DOE Order 5632.7 "Protective Forces" was issued which updated the requirements for firearms qualifications for security inspectors at DOE facilities. In an order and judgment entered March 19, 1990, the U.S. District Court of Nevada granted summary judgment and invalidated DOE's order as it applied to contractor personnel, due to the agency's failure to conduct an Administrative Procedure Act notice and comment rulemaking. The regulations would, inter alia, require that each contractor protective force officer have an appropriate access authorization and successfully complete formal basic and annual training in security skills and knowledge. The regulations also would require security inspectors to pass a firearms qualification test. Each security inspector would be required to demonstrate firearms proficiency at least semiannually, as indicated in the DOE requirements of the Standard DOE Qualification Courses, with all weapons reasonably expected to be used by the employee.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2165, Atomic Energy Act of 1954, sec 145

CFR Citation: Not applicable

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In response to a pressing need for more expeditious processing of access authorization (personnel security clearance) requests, the Department of Energy (DOE) established an Accelerated Access Authorization (AAA) program at the Albuquerque Field Office. DOE has determined that the AAA program was necessary because of the need to secure, on a timely basis, staff expertise to be applied to a variety of urgent environmental and defense issues. The AAA program does not take the place of the current access authorization clearance process, but allows workers to perform their jobs while the full background investigation is being conducted. The AAA program will be offered to DOE contractor and Federal employees as an option.

Abstract: Under the existing part 810 regulations, entitled Assistance to Foreign Atomic Energy Activities, assistance by U.S. persons to nuclear power reactor-related activities outside the United States is generally authorized for countries not listed in section 810.8. A main purpose of this revision is to establish a general authorization to enhance the operational safety of existing civilian nuclear power reactors in all countries that are on the section 810.8 list, eliminating the need for specific authorization by the Secretary of Energy for such assistance. In addition, the section 810.8 list of countries is being updated. Deletions from the list include countries that no longer exist and East European countries that were listed solely for national security reasons that vanished with the disintegration of the Warsaw Pact. Added to the list are certain republics of the former Soviet Union.

The revision of part 810 would: (1) expedite safety-related assistance to civilian nuclear powerplants. particularly (cont)

Abstract: This is a review to determine what portion of Public Law 101-510 will require a program rule. Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) may sell or otherwise dispose of power which is surplus to the obligations of the Administrator under sections 5(b), (c), and (d) in accordance with that Act and other applicable provisions of the statute. Surplus firm power, surplus nonfirm energy or surplus capacity is defined as energy or capacity for which there is no market or demand in the Pacific Northwest at rates established for the disposition of such energy or capacity. In February 1990, BPA published for comment a proposal for adoption of policy and procedures for sales of surplus firm power, surplus nonfirm energy, and surplus capacity. Abstract: The Department of Energy (DOE) proposes the addition of a new part to its regulations establishing a body of rules for DOE contractor and subcontractor activities that will form the basic requirements for ensuring radiation protection of the public and environment at DOE facilities. These requirements stem from the Department's ongoing effort to strengthen the protection of health, safety, and the environment from the nuclear, radiological, and chemical hazards posed by these DOE facilities. The new part provides radiation protection requirements for the public and environment for DOE and DOE contractor operations. Major elements of the regulation include a dose limitation system for protection of the public; requirements for liquid discharges; reporting and monitoring requirements; and residual radioactive material requirements.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 10222

Abstract: On April 18, 1983, DOE published a rule that established the Standard Contract for the Disposal of Spent Nuclear Fuel and/or High-Level Radioactive Waste (Standard Contract) to be used by DOE in furnishing disposal services to the owners and generators of spent nuclear fuel (SNF) and/or high-level radioactive waste (HLW) (48 FR 16590). The Standard Contract represents the sole contractual mechanism for DOE acceptance and disposal of SNF. The Standard Contract establishes the requirements and operational responsibilities of DOE and the owners and generators of SNF regarding administrative matters, fees, terms of payment, waste acceptance criteria and waste acceptance procedures. Since 1987, DOE has worked cooperatively with representatives of the owners and generators on many of the issues that must be resolved in order to implement the terms and conditions of the Standard Contract. This rulemaking concerns changes and additions to the Standard Contract to address the first set of these issues. Abstract: The Price-Anderson Amendments Act (PAAA) of 1988 contains provisions subjecting DOE contractors (and subcontractors and suppliers thereto) who are indemnified under the PAAA, to penalties for violations of nuclear safety rules, regulations, or orders issued by the Department. The Secretary has authority to compromise, modify, or remit penalties and to prescribe regulations as necessary. The Secretary is required to determine by rule whether nonprofit educational institutions should receive automatic remission of civil penalties. The penalty provisions of the PAAA are directed toward assuring compliance with DOE nuclear safety requirements through the use of monetary penalties. These regulations implement the penalty provisions of the Act and will include, as an appendix, a General Statement of Enforcement Policy.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 839d, Northwest Power Act, sec 6(c)

Abstract: Under section 6(c) of the Northwest Power Act, Bonneville must hold a hearing on proposals to (1) acquire a major resource, (2) implement a conservation measure that is equivalent to a major resource, (3) pay or reimburse preconstruction and investigation costs to major resource sponsors, or (4) grant billing credits. As part of the hearing, the Administrator must determine whether the proposed actions are consistent with the Northwest Power and Conservation Planning Council's plan. Bonneville and the Council recently concluded a 5-year review of their respective 6(c) Policies, which establish the basis for holding a 6(c) hearing and the procedures governing the hearings. The scope of the policies was expanded to cover paying or reimbursing preconstruction and investigation expenses to sponsors of major resources, and providing billing credits or services involving a major resource. 922. ENVIRONMENTAL RESTORATION MANAGEMENT CONTRACTOR

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2011 et seq, The Atomic Energy Act of 1954

CFR Citation: Not applicable

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action addresses the problem of the Department's management and operating contractors not being uniformly qualified to perform environmental restoration (ER) work, and involves contract initiatives. The Department has published a notice of intent to develop an environmental restoration alternate business strategy (55 FR 45843, October 31, 1990). This strategy calls for an Environmental Restoration Management Contractor (ERMC) to assist DOE in managing all the environmental restoration work at each DOE Field Office. A pilot phase program is planned starting with the Fernald Environmental Management Project and followed by the Hanford Site/Richland Field Office. An ERMC at each site will have responsibility for managing ER work. The benefits of such a contract initiative include promoting specialized expertise in cleanup rather than national defense activities; reducing cleanup costs and expediting environmental restoration; and promoting the application of innovative technologies in cleanup work. The Department selected an ERMC for the Fernald site on August 5, 1992. The Fernald ERMC started initial work at the site during a transition period that began (cont)

At the Hanford site, a request for proposals was issued on May 8, 1992, and selection of an ERMC occurred January 15, 1993. The Hanford site contract has been suspended while the General Accounting Office considers protests by two unsuccessful offerors.

960. • MAMMOGRAPHY QUALITY STANDARDS ACT OF 1992

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 102-539 Mammography Quality Standards Act of 1992

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, July 27, 1993.
DHHS is required to establish standards for accreditation bodies by July 27, 1993.

Abstract: The purpose of the Mammography Quality Standards Act of 1992, enacted October 27, 1992, is to assure quality in all aspects of the practice of mammography. The primary mechanism for this is oversight of all mammography facilities through a certification and inspection program. Only facilities certified by the Secretary will be permitted to produce, process, or interpret mammographic images. The statute also requires the establishment of an advisory committee to set regulatory quality standards and also provides for the establishment of surveillance systems to evaluate breast cancer screening programs.

Regulations are required in several areas: Issuance and denial of certificates; standards for accreditation bodies; approval or withdrawal of approval of accreditation bodies; quality standards for facilities; certification of personnel, an inspection program, a user fee program, and an enforcement program. The statute mandates other activities for which regulations may also be necessary, although not specifically required.

966. UNIFORM ADMINISTRATIVE REQUIREMENTS FOR GRANTS AND COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 74; 45 CFR 92

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: OMB is in the process of issuing updated fiscal and administrative guidance on requirements governing grants (including cooperative agreements). Separate guidance will be provided for grants awarded to governments and those awarded to colleges and universities and other nonprofit organizations. In separating grant rules for governments from those of other recipients, OMB recognizes the unique competence of States to administer grants and embraces the concept of Federalism. HHS regulations governing grants to these entities will have to be updated to accommodate these changes. HHS regulations governing grants to governments which implement OMB Circular A-102 are codified in 45 CFR part 92. Those governing grants to colleges and universities and other nonprofit organizations which implement OMB Circular A-110 are codified in 45 CFR part 74.

971. TITLE VI OF THE CRA OF 1964, SUBPART B-NATIONAL ORIGIN DISCRIMINATION IN PROGRAMS RECEIVING FED. FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE FROM THE DHHS AGAINST PERSONS OF LIMITED ENGLISH PROFICIENCY

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2000d-1

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 80

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 prohibits discrimination based on race, color, or national origin in programs and activities that receive Federal financial assistance. This addition as Subpart B to the Department's Title VI regulation will address a serious barrier to equal access to health and human services--the denial of services and other unequal or discriminatory treatment to persons of Limited English Proficiency (LEP). Persons of LEP tend to be disproportionately represented in certain national origin groups. The inability to communicate with persons of LEP therefore may have the effect of discriminating against certain persons on the basis of national origin. This regulation will establish standards for compliance by recipients and provide guidance to OCR Regional Offices in conducting complaint investigations and compliance reviews. Compliance with these regulations would improve access to services for persons regardless of national origin. The alternative would be to do nothing about the identified problem, which would be detrimental to LEP persons.

973. AUDITS OF NONGOVERNMENTAL GRANTEES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 74.62

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action will implement OMB Circular A-133 which was issued on March 8, 1990. The Circular provides governmentwide standards for non-Federal audits of colleges and universities and other nonprofit recipients of Federal grants and contracts and requires such audits for fiscal periods beginning on or after January 1, 1990. The Circular exempts hospitals not affiliated with institutions of higher education. The HHS implementation of the Circular will contain a definition of affiliation on which the public will be afforded an opportunity to provide comments. The Circular and these amendments replace the audit requirements currently contained in OMB Circular A-110.

Additional Information: Only a small number of public comments on the interim final rule's definition of affiliation were received. However, they contained some misunderstandings about the HHS definition and its effects, as well as a number of suggestions for possible changes thereto. We are carefully considering those comments and expect to issue a final rule responding to misunderstandings and making some minor changes to the definition.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 504(c)(1)

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 13

Abstract: The Equal Access to Justice Act requires agencies to pay attorney fees to parties prevailing against the Government in certain types of administrative proceedings. It requires each agency to issue rules implementing the Act as it applies to these proceedings. As originally enacted, the Act had a sunset clause. A statutory amendment eliminated the sunset provision and made other changes in the Act. The instant regulation would amend 45 CFR part 13 (HHS's regulation implementing the Act) to eliminate the corresponding sunset provision and to make other changes conforming with the statutory changes.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302; 42 USC 405; 42 USC 1383

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.1500ff, appendix 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Sections 1.00 and 101.00 of appendix 1 to the Disability Regulations (404.1501 through 404.1599) describe those musculoskeletal impairments which are considered severe enough to prevent a person from doing any gainful activity or, in the case of a child under age 18, age-appropriate activities. We are proposing comprehensive revisions to these sections to ensure that the medical evaluation criteria are up to date and consistent with the latest advances in medicine. The Supplemental Security Income program incorporates by reference and uses the same medical criteria as the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance program.

Abstract: Sec. 2615 of Pub. L. 98-369 amended sec. 1127 of the Social Security Act to eliminate windfalls that permitted some people who were paid Old-Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance (OASDI) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits retroactively to receive more in total benefits for the same period than if they had been paid the benefits when regularly due. The two main changes are: (1) SSI benefits will be reduced where retroactive OASDI benefits have been paid before the SSI benefits. Under prior law, reductions could be made only in retroactive OASDI benefits and only when the retroactive SSI had been paid first. (2) OASDI or SSI benefits payable upon reinstatement following a period of suspension or termination will be reduced by the amount of SSI benefits that would not have been paid if the OASDI benefits had been paid when regularly due. We will amend our regulations to conform to the statutory changes. Any costs/savings are associated with the legislation being implemented and not with the regulations themselves.

Abstract: Existing regulations at 20 CFR 404.468(d) provide a vocational rehabilitation exception to the nonpayment of benefits to prisoners provision described at 20 CFR 404.468(a). Under the exception, the nonpayment provision does not apply if a prisoner who is entitled to benefits on the basis of disability is actively and satisfactorily participating in a rehabilitation program which has been specifically approved for the individual by a court of law. In addition, the Secretary must determine that the program is expected to result in the individual being able to do substantial gainful activity upon release and within a reasonable time. No benefits will be paid to the prisoner for any month prior to the approval of the program. The proposed regulations would set out more definitive criteria for applying the exception and would define terms, such as "rehabilitation program," "court of law," and "reasonable time," for purposes of applying the exception.

The proposed regulations also will involve the statutory change contained in sections 5032 and 5033 of Pub. Legal Authority: 42 USC 416; 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.354

Abstract: Current regulations provide that the relationship of a child to a deceased worker is determined by applying the laws on devolution of intestate personal property in effect at the time of death in the State in which the worker was domiciled at the time of death. The proposed revision will take into account situations where the State law in effect at the time of death was declared unconstitutional by a State or Federal Court or where State law was amended after the worker's death, but is effective retroactively to the worker's death.

Abstract: These proposed regulations amend the existing regulations to change how we determine when recovery of an overpayment would be against equity and good conscience. Currently, regulations permit determinations that recovery of an overpayment would be against equity and good conscience under [illegible] conditions. The proposed regulations will provide for the "against equity and good conscience" determination to be based on an examination and consideration of a variety of factors such as cause and result of overpayment, fairness, and defeat the purpose of the program as they affect both the beneficiary and the Social Security Administration.

Abstract: We propose to add new rules we may use to test modifications to the disability determination procedures that we follow under titles II and XVI of the Social Security Act. On a limited basis, we may test procedures designed to improve the disability claims process. These models are designed to provide us with comprehensive information regarding the effect of these procedures on the disability process. They would enable us to measure whether, and to what degree, the disability process may be improved, especially with respect to obtaining the correct decision earlier in the process and shortening aggregate processing times. We would measure costs and determine the feasibility of each model. The intended result of testing these models would be to enable SSA to make recommendations for national implementation of improvements to the disability process.

Abstract: Pursuant to the Court order in Gould, et al. v. Sullivan, No. C2-87-964 (S.D. Ohio, October 2, 1992), we are proposing a rule for determining benefits in the SSI program. Under section 1611(c)(4)(A) of the Social Security Act, if the Secretary determines that reliable information is currently available concerning the income and other circumstances of an individual, the Secretary may use that information to determine an individual's current month's SSI benefit amount. This discretionary method of determining SSI benefit amounts is an exception to the use of information from a prior month, known as retrospective monthly accounting (RMA), as provided in section 1611(c)(1) of the Act. The proposed rule will explain that the Secretary has determined that no information exists which is reliable and currently available to use in computing SSI benefit amounts pursuant to section 1611(c)(4).

Abstract: The regulation addresses the problem of appeals filed by supplemental security income recipients whose payments are reduced, suspended or terminated because of a decrease in the amount of federally administered State supplementary payments. These are decreases resulting from a State-initiated across- the-board change due to legislative or executive action by a State. In these situations, our notices advising of the reduction, suspension or termination of payments will offer appeal rights and continuation of unreduced benefits only when the recipient protests the computation of the reduced payment.

Abstract: This change permits the continued payment of disability benefits to persons who medically recover while participating in a vocational rehabilitation (VR) program, without regard to whether the person was expected at the onset of the VR program to medically recover before the scheduled completion date of the program and without regard to whether the person has any residual functional limitation. These changes bring the regulations into conformity with certain court decisions.

Abstract: Section 8 of Pub. L. 99-643 provides that effective for benefits payable for months after May 1986, an underpayment shall be paid to any surviving spouse of a deceased SSI recipient whether or not the spouse was eligible for SSI, if such spouse was living in the same household with the recipient at the time of death, or within the 6 months immediately preceding the month of death; or to the parent(s) of a deceased recipient who was a blind or disabled child at the time the underpayment occurred if the recipient was living with the parent(s) at the time of death or within the 6 months immediately preceding the month of death. These proposed regulations would also reflect a policy change that would continue the appeals process (versus automatic dismissal), at the Administrative Law Judge or Appeals Council level, for the survivors'

The total elimination of these payments will establish a uniform national policy.

Abstract: Money borrowed (a loan) is not income for SSI purposes and therefore has no effect on a person's SSI benefits. These regulations will state that only cash transactions may be considered loans. These regulations will also provide that the one-third reduction rule which applies when a person who lives in another's household and receives in-kind support and maintenance will not apply if the SSI recipient pays his or her pro rata share in cash and no later than the month under consideration. No additional costs or savings are anticipated.

Abstract: We propose a revision to 20 CFR 416.1242(a) to indicate that the time period for disposal of property begins on the date SSA accepts the individual's signed written agreement, provided that, on or before that date, SSA has determined that the individual meets the eligibility requirements in 20 CFR 416.202, with the exception of the resource requirement. The proposed rules further state that if SSA receives a signed agreement prior to the date it determines that all nonresource requirements are met, SSA's acceptance of the written agreement will not occur (and thus, the time period for disposal of property will not begin) until SSA notifies the individual that all nonresource requirements are met.

NPRM for "Alcohol (Topical) Products" to be included in revised NPRM for "Antimicrobial Products." The NPRM for "Antimicrobial Products" is being revised because it is being updated and split into two sections: first aid products and health care products.

SMALL ENTITIES AFFECTED: The effects, if any, vary depending on the individual rulemaking. However, the agency anticipates that the rules would not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities as defined by the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 360b; 21 USC 371

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 514.1; 21 CFR 514.8

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On December 17, 1991, the agency published a proposed revision of the existing regulations that are consistent with the current procedural regulations for human drugs where appropriate. The New Animal Drug Application (NADA) revisions would articulate general requirements in regulations containing performance standards and would complement them through detailed guidelines on, among other matters, appropriate ways of meeting requirements for submission of chemistry, pharmacology, and statistical data that would better address the intricate scientific issues involved. A separate proposed rule for reporting requirements for marketed animal drugs also published on that date. FDA is also reproposing a provision in the December 17, 1991 proposal so that it will have the option of requiring the submission of a regulatory method for the detection of drug residues in edible products, especially milk, from food-producing animals.

Abstract: Acceptable evidence and information exist to show that a subgroup of asthmatics is at moderate to severe risk for a severe reaction upon exposure to sulfites. The agency's primary tool for handling a situation where population subgroups may be at increased risk from a food ingredient that is safe for most people is to use labeling to inform those persons who need or want to avoid the ingredient. The agency issued a final rule, effective January 7, 1987, that requires that when a sulfiting agent is present in a finished food at 10 parts per million or greater, the sulfiting agent must be declared on the label. In addition, FDA issued a final rule, effective August 8, 1986, prohibiting the use of sulfiting agents on raw fruits and vegetables intended to be served or sold raw to consumers (e.g., in salad bars). On December 10, 1987, FDA announced its tentative conclusion that there is no longer a basis to find that the use of sulfiting agents on "fresh" potatoes served or sold unpackaged to consumers is GRAS. On December 19, 1988, FDA proposed to affirm, with specific limitations, that certain other uses of sulfiting agents are GRAS (cont)

Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: and to establish labeling requirements for sulfiting agents in standardized foods.

On March 15, 1990 (55 FR 9826), FDA issued a final rule prohibiting the use of sulfiting agents on "fresh" potatoes (55 FR 9826) and requested data and information concerning the use of sulfiting agents on frozen potatoes (55 FR 9834).

On August 3, 1990, the United States District Court for the Middle District of Pennsylvania declared the final rule concerning fresh potatoes to be "null and void" based on perceived procedural defects in the rulemaking proceeding. The Government appealed the district court's decision. On May 22, 1991, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit en banc affirmed, by an equally divided vote and without opinion, the decision of the district court invalidating on procedural grounds FDA's final rule revoking the GRAS status of the use of sulfiting agents on fresh potatoes.

FDA's reproposed rule will include the GRAS status of sulfiting agents on both minimally processed (formerly fresh) and frozen foods.

1076. CURRENT GOOD MANUFACTURING PRACTICE FOR BLOOD & BLOOD COMPONENTS; NOTIFICATION OF CONSIGNEES RECEIVING BLOOD & BLOOD COMPONENTS AT INCREASED RISK FOR TRANSMITTING HIV INFECTION

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 21 USC 351 to 360k; 21 USC 374; 42 USC 262 to 264

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 606; 21 CFR 610

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The agency currently requires that all blood and blood components intended for the manufacture of any product be tested for antibody to human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). In instances when the blood of a donor is found to contain antibodies to HIV, some blood centers have initiated a program of voluntary "look-back" to notify consignees of blood and blood components obtained from the donor's prior donations. Consignees may withdraw or destroy such blood and blood products, and may trace and notify recipients. A well-conducted look-back program can provide an effective mechanism for identifying, testing, and counseling transfusion recipients who are at increased risk of HIV infection--those who receive blood from a donor later found to be infected with HIV. The agency is considering a proposal to establish a mandatory look-back program. The proposal would require blood collection facilities to develop a procedure to notify consignees promptly whenever a blood donor who has previously donated blood or source plasma is found to be positive for the antibody to HIV; and to keep appropriate records (cont)

Abstract: In light of the public health concerns raised by continuing findings concerning the effects of low levels of exposure to lead, particularly exposure by pregnant women, infants, and children, the agency is undertaking a comprehensive effort to further reduce lead levels in food where controllable or avoidable sources of lead addition to food can be identified. The goal of FDA is to reduce consumer's exposure to lead in the diet to the lowest level that can be practicably obtained. FDA has identified several potential sources of dietary lead exposure that it intends to address in proposed rules in its initiatives to reduce exposure to lead in the diet. The agency is also considering rulemaking concerning lead glazed ceramic foodware based upon a June 1, 1989 NPRM (54 FR 23485).

Abstract: The Prescription Drug Marketing Act of 1987 (PDMA) amended the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act to: (1) require State licensing of wholesale distributors of prescription human drugs under Federal guidelines including minimum standards for storage, handling, and recordkeeping; (2) ban the reimportation of prescription human drugs produced in the United States, except when reimported by the manufacturer for emergency use; (3) ban the sale, trade, or purchase of drug samples; (4) ban trafficking in or counterfeiting of drug coupons; (5) mandate storage, handling, and recordkeeping requirements for drug samples; (6) require licensed practitioners to request drug samples in writing; (7) prohibit, with certain exceptions, the resale of prescription human drugs purchased by hospitals or health care facilities; and (8) set forth criminal and civil penalties for violations of these provisions. Abstract: The Safe Medical Devices Act of 1990 (SMDA), enacted November 28, 1990, was intended to assure marketed devices are safe and effective, FDA learns quickly of device problems, and has authority to remove defective devices from the market. The act directs or authorizes FDA to develop these regulations: Medical Device Reporting--This rule will require healthcare facilities and distributors to report deaths and serious injuries/ ilinesses related to medical devices. Medical Device Tracking--This regulation will require manufacturers to track certain devices to the user. Classification of Transitional Devices--FDA issued a notice to require submission of adverse safety and effectiveness data on transitional devices. FDA will now propose to keep each device in class III, or reclassify it in class I or II. Good Manufacturing Practices for Medical Devices--FDA will propose to add preproduction design validation in existing CGMP regulations. Exemption of Humanitarian Devices--A proposed rule will give procedures for applications for certain premarket review exemptions for humanitarian devices. (cont)

Abstract: The Food and Drug Administration is considering incorporating additional Hazard Analysis Critical Control Point (HACCP) principles into its proposal of mandatory seafood inspections. HACCP involves the identification and monitoring of "critical control points" in a processing or other operation the failure of which can render a product adulterated. HACCP has been strongly endorsed by the National Academy of Sciences for use by the seafood industry.

Abstract: In fulfillment of its mandate under the Safe Drinking Water Act, EPA is currently in the midst of reviewing and establishing standards for contaminants in public drinking water such as pathogenic bacteria, pesticides and organic chemicals. When EPA establishes such standards for public drinking water, FDA is required to take appropriate action to amend its regulations for bottled drinking water or state its reasons for not doing so. FDA also establishes identity standards for a food when it has determined that the standard will promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of consumers.

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 600; 21 CFR 606

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: All licensed blood establishments are required to notify FDA promptly of errors or accidents in the manufacture of products that may effect the safety, purity, or potency of any biological product (21 CFR 600.14). The reporting of certain errors or accidents occurring in the manufacture of blood and blood components is necessary so that FDA can respond where the public health may be endangered and provide added assurance as to the continued safety, identity, quality, purported quality, and purity of blood and blood components. FDA has determined that errors and accidents that are detected and corrected before a finished unit is removed from the unprocessed inventory and made available for release and distribution do not affect the safety of the blood supply and need not be reported to the agency. The proposed rule not only makes this clear but also provides definitions of "error," "accident," "reportable error," and "reportable accident." The proposed rule would require licensed establishments, unlicensed establishments, and transfusion services to report and keep records. The cost to licensed establishments would be minimal (cont)

Procurement: This is a procurement-related action for which there is no statutory requirement. There is a paperwork burden associated with this action.

Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: Since they already are required to report, licensed establishments would only have to make some changes in standard operating procedures. Unlicensed establishments are already required to keep records and conduct investigations. Under the proposed rule they would have to establish reporting procedures and report to FDA. The transfusion services would have to assure their recordkeeping and investigation procedures are sufficient and establish reporting procedures. Reporting by transfusions services is expected to be minimal.

Abstract: The agency is considering several steps that could be taken to facilitate the early phases of clinical investigations of drug and biologic products, as part of the larger effort to speed the development and approval of promising new therapeutic products, without jeopardizing the safety of human study subjects or the quality of the data obtained. These steps are intended to eliminate the need for investigators to submit, and for FDA to review and approve, protocols that present minimal risk to subjects and do not require FDA involvement as part of an efficient drug development effort.

FDA is considering an amendment to 21 CFR Part 312 to exempt certain clinical investigations from the investigational new drug (IND) requirements, provided that specific requirements are met. The investigator would have to submit protocols for qualified studies to an institutional review board (IRB) rather than FDA.

Abstract: FDA is proposing a policy for determining when the likelihood/ extent of migration of a component of a food contact article is so trivial as not to require regulation as a food additive. A substance considered under this Threshold of Regulation Policy would undergo an abbreviated review by FDA, as opposed to the extensive review and formal issuance of a regulation required for other food edditives. This proposal lists the criteria which must be met for a food-contact material to be reviewed under this policy and identifies the types of data that FDA will need for its review. This policy will reduce regulatory cost and delays and thereby bring important and innovative products to market faster.

Abstract: With the publication of various final rules on January 6, 1993, the agency completed action on its food labeling initiative under the Nutrition Labeling and Education Act of 1990. Rulemaking on nutrition labeling of dietary supplements was delayed due to requirements of the Dietary Supplement Act of 1992 (DSA), which amended the law to provide that the agency would issue proposed regulations for dietary supplements by June 15, 1993, and final regulations by December 31, 1993. Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 21 USC 355 title I

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 10; 21 CFR 310; 21 CFR 314; 21 CFR 320

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Until the passage of Title I of the Drug Price Competition and Patent Term Restoration Act of 1984, abbreviated new drug application (ANDA) procedures were only available for generic products equivalent to pioneer drugs approved before 1962. Title I opened up the ANDA policy to generic copies of products approved after 1962. On July 10, 1989 (54 FR 28872), FDA proposed regulations to implement Title I. The proposal provides for the submission of abbreviated new drug applications for generic versions of drug products first approved after 1962. These new provisions will benefit consumers by making generic drug products available more quickly.

The agency is reviewing the public comments submitted in response to the proposed rule and preparing the final rule in two segments. The first segment will establish requirements for format and content of an ANDA, suitability petitions, and certain administrative actions. The second segment will establish requirements for patent certification and exclusivity.

Abstract: In the Federal Register of October 21, 1988 (53 FR 41561), FDA issued an interim rule, effective upon date of publication, with opportunity for public comment, that set forth procedures designed to speed the availability of new therapies to desperately ill patients, while preserving appropriate guarantees for safety and effectiveness. These procedures are intended to facilitate the development, evaluation, and marketing of such products, especially where no satisfactory alternative therapies exist. These procedures reflect the recognition that physicians and patients are generally willing to accept greater risks or side effects from products that treat life-threatening and severely-debilitating illness. These procedures also reflect the recognition that the benefits of the drug need to be evaluated in light of the severity of the disease being treated. The procedures apply to life-threatening or severely debilitating illnesses. Abstract: An agency study of drug product recalls over a 5-year period identified label mixups as the leading cause of recall incidents involving mislabeled products. An analysis of the recall incidents attributed to label mixups showed that the use of cut labels, labels of similar size, shape, or color, and deviations from existing current good manufacturing practice (CGMP) labeling requirements were the leading causes of such mixups. On June 23, 1989 (54 FR 26394), the agency proposed to amend the CGMP regulations to specify conditions for the use of gang-printed or cut labeling, exempt from CGMP labeling reconciliation requirements manufacturers that use automated 100-percent labeling inspection systems, and to require manufacturers to identify filled drug product containers that are not immediately labeled. This final rule, thus, establishes as requirements the proposed revisions to the CGMP regulations.

Abstract: In the Federal Register of October 16, 1992 (57 FR 47423), the agency proposed to amend its regulations pertaining to the specific content and format of prescription drug labeling by revising the current "Pediatric Use" subsection of professional labeling to provide for the inclusion of more complete information about use of a drug in children and about hazards associated with this use. This regulatory action is intended to respond to concerns in FDA and elsewhere that current prescription drug labeling does not contain adequate information about the use of drugs in children. The agency is reviewing the public comments submitted in response to the proposed rule and preparing a final rule.

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 206; 21 CFR 207; 21 CFR 314

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The agency has proposed to require that human drugs in solid oral dosage form (e.g., tablets and capsules) be imprinted with a product specific code. The proposal would apply to both over-the-counter (OTC) and prescription drugs. Drug identification by imprinting serves a number of important public health functions such as identifying drugs in drug overdosing, alerting patients to drug substitution, identifying illicit products, and aiding FDA and other drug regulatory authorities in tracking counterfeit and defective drug products. The agency is reviewing the public comments submitted in response to the proposed rule and preparing a Federal Register document that will respond to those comments.

Abstract: This regulatory action is being taken to improve FDA's surveillance and enforcement activities with respect to new drug and abbreviated new drug applications (NDA's and ANDA's) and supplemental applications consistent with the agency's efforts to address certain fraudulent practices found during investigations of the generic drug industry. This regulation will amend the regulations governing the approval for marketing of new drugs and antibiotic drugs for human use (21 CFR Part 314) to require the submission by applicants of NDA's, ANDA's, and supplemental applications of an additional copy of the chemistry, manufacturing, and controls section of their applications. The additional copy will be used by FDA investigators during a preapproval inspection to audit application commitments and statements against actual manufacturing practices used by applicants. The regulation will also require the submission of certain information about the batches of a drug product used to perform bioavailability, bioequivalence, and stability tests.

Abstract: FDA has become aware through various sources of numerous reports of complications including permanent physical injuries, severe psychological disabilities, other serious injuries and deaths that have been attributed to incorrect supervision, handling or application of protective restraint devices by medical or paramedical personnel. Complications associated with protective restraint devices frequently result from misuse of the devices. To address potential misuse, manufacturers should include specific directions for use, to the extent that such directions are not currently available or not attached to or kept with the garment. Revocation of the premarket notification exemptions will allow FDA to collect information about the current availability and actual employment of directions for use and to monitor the introduction into commerce of new and changed protective restraints. Revocation of the exempting Current Good Manufacturing Practice regulation will allow FDA to require the necessary controls over labeling. FDA is also considering educational programs to address this problem. FDA anticipates total first year costs of $930,000 for this regulation. (CONT)

If final regulations on Nonfunctional Slack Fill are not published by 05/08/93, the proposed regulations shall be considered the final regulations.

Abstract: The Nutrition Labeling and Education Act of 1990 requires that most foods bear nutrition labeling. In developing the final rules that were published on January 6, 1993, the agency identified three areas that should be the subject of additional rulemaking: a definition for the nutrient content claim "healthy"; a definition for "nonfunctional slack fill"; and requirements for the identification of certain ingredients on food labels. Proposed regulations addressing these issues were published on January 6, 1993.

Abstract: The final rule would classify into class III (Premarket approval) certain temporomandibular joint (TMJ) prostheses including the interarticular disc prosthesis (the interpositional implant), the mandibular condyle prosthesis, and the glenoid fossa prosthesis. This action would allow FDA to require manufacturers of these devices to submit premarket approval applications demonstrating the safety and effectiveness of these devices. The devices present a risk of implant loosening or displacement; foreign body reaction; degenerative changes to the natural articulating surfaces; infection; and loss of implant integrity.

Abstract: The National Health Service Corps (NHSC) Revitalization Amendments of 1990, PL 101-597, amends Section 336B of the PHS Act which authorizes the NHSC Loan Repayment Program. These Amendments also revise the State Loan Repayment Program at Section 338I of the PHS Act. The interim rule relating to both these programs as published April 3, 1989, will be revised to reflect the 1990 amendments. Regulations governing the Special Repayment Program established under PL 100-177 were published on 11/6/91 in final form under RIN: 0905-AD58, separate from this NPRM (RIN: 0905-AC65). Abstract: Section 1138 of the Social Security Act requires Medicare and Medicaid participating hospitals that perform organ transplants to be members of and abide by the rules and requirements of the Organ Procurement and Transplantation Network (OPTN) as established by section 372 of the Public Health Service Act. Section 1138 also requires that for organ procurement costs attributable to payments to an Organ Procurement Organization (OPO) to be paid by Medicare or Medicaid, the OPO must be a member of and abide by the rules and requirements of the OPTN. No other entity (for example, a histocompatibility laboratory) is required to be a member of or abide by the rules of the OPTN under the provisions of the statute. It is the Department's position that no rule, requirement, policy, or other issuance of the OPTN will be considered to be a "rule or requirement" of the Network within the meaning of section 1138 unless the Secretary has formally approved that rule. The OPTN is currently in operation and these rules will impose no further cost or provide any benefit other than that which now exists.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 291 et seq; 42 USC 300q et seq

Abstract: The proposed rule would revise the rules currently governing how certain health care facilities, assisted under titles VI and XVI of the Public Health Service Act, fulfill the assurance given in their applications for assistance that they would provide a reasonable volume of services to persons unable to pay. Public comment on the current rules and operational experience with them has indicated the need to revise the current requirements with respect to nonprofit facilities that provide substantial amounts of free or below-cost care under their own programs but are unable, under current requirements, to credit such care toward fulfillment of their assurance. The intended effect of these proposed rules is to allow qualified facilities to satisfy their uncompensated services assurance through their continued provision of free or below-cost health services.

Section 312 of PL 99-660 requires the Secretary to propose regulations to amend the Vaccine Injury Table, based on the findings of the Institute of Medicine (IOM) study, (cont)

Abstract: The National Vaccine Injury Compensation (NVIC) Program, administered by the Secretary, and governed by subtitle 2 of title XXI of the Public Health Service Act, as enacted by the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act of 1986 (the Act), provides a system of no-fault compensation for certain individuals who have been injured by specific childhood vaccines. The nature of the injuries, disabilities, illnesses, conditions, and deaths which will be presumed to result from the administration of specific vaccines, and the time period in which the first symptom or manifestation of onset must occur for this presumption to apply, are outlined in section 2114 of the Act in what is known as the Vaccine Injury Table. This NPRM proposes to make refinements to the Vaccine Injury Table to more accurately reflect current scientific knowledge about the conditions that result from vaccines which will result in appropriate compensation for injuries related to vaccines.

Abstract: This NPRM proposes to revise the regulations under 42 CFR part 67 governing grants for health services research and grants for health services research centers made by the former National Center for Health Services Research and Health Care Technology Assessment (NCHSR). Public Law 101-239, enacted on December 19, 1989, established the Agency for Health Care Policy and Research, replacing the NCHSR, and provided the new agency with a much expanded role in health services research. The NPRM will incorporate applicable provisions of Public Law 101-239. It will also incorporate the applicable amendments of Public Law 102-410, enacted October 13, 1992, which reauthorized the AHCPR.

Abstract: This proposed rule would implement section 9401 of Pub.L. 99-272, which provides that, under Medicare, a physician must request from the Peer Review Organization (PRO) preadmission review for certain surgical procedures. Under section 9401, if the PRO determines that the procedure is not appropriate and medically necessary, the PRO will deny payment under Medicare. If the PRO cannot determine whether a surgical procedure is medically necessary and appropriate, the beneficiary would obtain an opinion from a second physician, or where the opinion of the second physician differs from the first physician, the beneficiary may obtain an opinion from a third physician. In addition, as required by section 4096(b) of Pub.L. 100-203, if an assigned claim by a physician or supplier or any claim by a provider is denied because the services furnished are not reasonable and necessary or constitute custodial care and the physician, suppler or provider, but not the beneficiary, knew, or reasonably could be expected to know, that the services were not covered by Medicare, (cont)

Abstract: This rule would revise the method Medicare uses to determine payment for the costs of malpractice insurance incurred by a hospital. A hospital would receive payment for its malpractice insurance costs based on the utilization formula adopted by the Secretary at the beginning of the Medicare program. That is, malpractice insurance costs will be included in the general and administrative cost center, along with other provider overhead costs, to be apportioned to the Medicare program based on the hospital's Medicare patient utilization.

Abstract: This rule proposes to establish optional prospective payment rates for routine services furnished by certain skilled nursing facilities. The prospective rate would be on a per diem basis and would include payment for the cost of furnishing general inpatient routine services and associated capital-related costs. Ancillary services will be paid on the basis of reasonable cost. This rule would propose instructions for determining eligibility for payment under this system, and the methodology for calculating the prospective payment rates. Abstract: These regulations would conform the Medicaid regulations to section 1917(c) of the Social Security Act, which was entirely revised by section 303(b) of the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988 (Pub. Section 1917(c) now requires that State Medicaid agencies provide individuals with a period of ineligibility for nursing facility services or home and community based services for up to 30 months if these individuals or their spouses made transfers of assets for less than fair market value during a prohibited period. The period of ineligibility applies if the individual or spouse made a transfer of assets for less than fair market value at any time during or after the 30-month period immediately before (1) the date the individual became institutionalized, if he or she was entitled to Medicaid on that date, or (2) the date he or she applied for Medicaid while institutionalized. Abstract: These rules would propose to require States to include in their State plans payment of Medicare cost-sharing for low income Medicare beneficiaries, Qualified Medicare Beneficiaries (QMB) and Qualified Disabled and Working Individuals (QDWI). We would define cost-sharing, specify criteria for determining QMB status, propose requirements and options for payment amounts and limitations, and provide for Federal financial participation in State payments for Medicare cost-sharing on behalf of QMBs. For QDWIs Federal financial participation would be limited to Medicare, Part A premium. The changes would implement provisions of the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988 as modified by the Family Support Act of 1988, the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988, the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989, and the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990. Abstract: Section 6403 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 defines in new section 1905(r) of the Social Security Act the following EPSDT services: screening services, vision services, dental services and hearing services. It also extends EPSDT services to include such other necessary health care, diagnostic services, treatment, and other measures described in section 1905(a) of the Act to correct or ameliorate defects and illnesses and conditions discovered by the screening services whether or not the services are covered under the State plan. Section 6403 also amended section 1902(a)(43) of the Act to require States to report to the Secretary certain information about EPSDT services provided under the plan during each fiscal year. This rule would set forth requirements to implement these statutory provisions.

1165. COST REPORT SETTLEMENT ADJUSTMENT FACTOR FOR SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES AND HOME HEALTH AGENCIES (BPD-702-P)

Legal Authority: PL 101-239, Sec 6024; 42 USC 1395 yy note

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 413.3(b)(2)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 6024 of PL 101-239 required the Secretary to update the skilled nursing facility (SNF) cost limits effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1989 in accordance with regulations that require the use of cost reports submitted by SNFs for cost reporting periods beginning not earlier than October 1, 1985. Many of the cost reports that HCFA uses to update limits on SNFs' costs are "as submitted" and therefore not "settled." Since using only "settled" cost reports is not always feasible, due to the lengthy time needed to receive and audit cost report data, HCFA is proposing that the adjustment factor be applied uniformly to all "as submitted" cost reports, contained on the SNF data base and the home health agency data used to establish future cost limits to adjust for the overstatement of costs that occurs in those reports. This rule sets forth the proposed adjustment factors and the methodology used to complete the factors.

Abstract: This rule would address provisions of section 6113 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 (OBRA '89) and section 4157 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (OBRA '90). Section 6113 of OBRA '89 provides coverage for the services of clinical psychologists (CPs) and clinical social workers. It requires CPs to agree to consult with the patient's primary care or attending physician. Also, it eliminates the dollar limitation that previously applied to mental health services although the 62.5 percent limitation still applies. OBRA '89 also provides coverage for clinical social worker services, but places two limitations on separate payment, which apply to services provided to inpatients of hospitals and skilled nursing facilities that are Medicare participating. Section 4157 of OBRA '90 unbundled CP services from the definition of "inpatient hospital services."

Abstract: These regulations would provide an alternative to terminating a psychiatric hospital's participation in the Medicare and Medicaid programs for facilities found to be out of compliance with participation requirements. These alternative sanctions could be imposed instead of terminating a psychiatric hospital's participation in the Medicare and Medicaid programs where deficiencies do not present immediate jeopardy to the health and safety of psychiatric hospital patients.

These amendments are necessary to conform HCFA regulations to changes made by section 6020 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 (Pub. L. 101-239) and section 4755 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (Pub. L. 101-508).

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395u(c)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 421.212

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would amend Medicare regulations to provide advance payment to physicians, suppliers, or entities that furnish items or services under Medicare Part B. These payments could be made only when claims processing is so delayed that interest payments alone are insufficient to adequately compensate the provider, in light of cash flow needs. This change is intended to result in more efficient and economical administration of the Medicare program.

1192. CHANGE IN PROVIDER AGREEMENT REGULATIONS RELATED TO FEDERAL EMPLOYEE HEALTH BENEFITS (BPD-748-P)

Legal Authority: 5 USC 8904(b)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 489

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing Medicare conditions of participation and provider agreements do not require that hospitals accept the Medicare Prospective Payment System (PPS) rate as payment in full when issued by a Federal Employee Health Benefit (FEHB) plan for an enrollee not entitled to Medicare Part A. Section 7002(f) of Pub. L. 101-508 requires that FEHB plans limit their inpatient payment for retired FEHB enrollees who are age 65 and older, but who are not entitled to receive hospital insurance benefits under Medicare, to rates that would have been paid by Medicare under PPS. It also requires the Secretary to consider termination of the Medicare provider agreement when a hospital knowingly and willfully attempts to collect, on a repeated basis, from the patient the difference between the Medicare payment rates and the hospital's charge, less any deductible or coinsurance obligation. This rule will bring our regulations into accord with 5 USC 8904(b).

Abstract: This rule concerns the steps that HCFA intends to take to streamline Medicaid claims processing by developing and requiring the use of a universal Medicaid claims processing form, as well as electronic data transmission standards. These steps are part of a strategy developed by the Department to reduce administrative costs and burden throughout the health care system. We anticipate that the increased use of electronic claims will help reduce administrative costs by eliminating the need for burdensome paperwork and duplication of effort.

Abstract: These regulations will reflect provisions of section 948 of Pub. L. 96-499 and section 2307 of Pub. L. 98-369. These provisions deal with certain problems that have arisen in the Medicare program with respect to payment for physicians in the teaching setting. Specifically addressed by Congress is the problem of distinguishing between the services a physician furnishes to individual patients as a teaching physician and services furnished to the provider, as well as the method of payment for these services. These rules will set forth the conditions under which physicians in teaching settings can be paid under the physicians' fee schedule.

Abstract: This final rule with comment period will formally implement statutory requirements that require Medicare participating hospitals with emergency departments to provide upon request medical examinations and treatments for individuals with emergency medical conditions and women in active labor. A participating hospital that has specialized capabilities or facilities (such as burn, shock trauma, or neonatal intensive care units) must accept appropriate transfer if they have the capacity to treat the individual. Hospitals failing to meet those requirements may have their Medicare provider agreements terminated, and hospitals and responsible physicians may be subject to civil money penalties. Under section 9122 of Pub. L. 99-272, Medicare participating hospitals are required to accept CHAMPUS and CHAMPVA payment as payment in full for services provided to CHAMPUS and CHAMPVA beneficiaries. These regulations will also implement section 9305(b) of Pub. L. 99-509, which requires Medicare hospitals to give patients a notice of their discharge rights.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 1, 1989.

Abstract: This regulation implements section 1915(d) of the Social Security Act, which allows a State to obtain a waiver of certain Medicaid requirements to permit Federal financial participation for home and community based services provided to individuals age 65 or older who are shown by an evaluation to be likely to require the level of care provided in a skilled nursing facility (SNF) or intermediate care facility (ICF), (nursing facility (NF) effective October 1, 1990), the cost for which could be paid by Medicaid. The statute allows for waivers of statewideness, comparability, and income deeming. Under the waiver provisions, the total amount expended by the State for home and community based services, SNF services, and ICF services (NF effective October 1, 1990) for individuals over age 65 may not exceed a "projected amount," determined under the methodology provided in these regulations. For States electing this option the waiver would replace home and community based waivers available under section 1915(c) of the Act, for individuals in this age category.

Abstract: Historically the Department regulated laboratories by "location," rather than by types of tests they perform. The Clinical Laboratory Improvement Amendments of 1988 (CLIA) changed this approach. CLIA requires that the Department "regulate by test," using what is commonly referred to as the "complexity model." A final rule with comment period was published February 28, 1992, that set forth standards for all laboratories based on complexity and responds to public comments on the proposed standards. A final rule, which will respond to public comments on the February 28 rule, will also be issued.

Abstract: The final rule with comment period published November 30, 1992, (57 FR 56450) implemented sections 4211 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 (OBRA '87), section 6901 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 and section 4801 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (OBRA '90). The provisions included: (1) State requirements for preadmission screening and annual resident review of individuals with mental illness or mental retardation who are applicants to or residents of nursing facilities that are certified for Medicaid; and (2) appeals systems for persons who may be transferred or discharged from facilities or who wish to dispute a determination made in the preadmission screening and annual review process. The changes in this rule included OBRA '90 provisions defining "severe mental illness" and "specialized services" which will reduce State review workloads and clarify Medicaid matching payment for the States. Abstract: Sections 1819(b)(3) and 1919(b)(3) of the Social Security Act, as amended by PL 100-203, require that in order for an institution to qualify to participate as a skilled nursing facility in the Medicare program, and, before October 1, 1990, as a skilled nursing facility or as an intermediate care facility in the Medicaid program, and effective October 1, 1990, as a nursing facility in the Medicaid program, it must conduct a comprehensive, standardized assessment of each resident's capability to perform daily life functions. The assessment must also describe significant impairments in the resident's functional capacity and be based on a uniform minimum data set specified by the Secretary. Sections 1819(f)(6)(A) and 1919 (f)(6)(A) of the Act require the Secretary to specify a minimum data set of core elements and common definitions for use by nursing facilities in conducting the assessments. This rule would specify this minimum data set and establish guidelines for using it.

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 413

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, July 1, 1990.
Section 6205(b)(2) of PL 101-239 required that a proposed rule be published before July 1, 1990 and that a final rule not be effective before 10/01/90.

Abstract: This rule will set forth our policy for the payment of the costs of approved nursing and allied health science programs, an action directed by section 6205(b)(2) of PL 101-239. For the most part, the provisions set forth in this rule restate or clarify our current policies governing these costs, which have been previously set forth in the provider reimbursement manual and other documents, but have never been included in the regulations. In addition, we are amending the list of approved programs and clarify payment rules for certified registered nurse anesthetist programs. This rule will also implement section 4004 of PL 101-508, which provides that, effective with cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1990, under certain conditions, costs incurred by a hospital or educational institution related to the hospital for clinical training are treated as pass-through costs and paid on the basis of reasonable cost even though the hospital does not operate the education programs.

Abstract: This rule amends the fire safety standards for hospitals, long term care facilities, and intermediate care facilities for the mentally retarded and affects only those facilities. It deletes references to the 1967 and 1973 editions of the Life Safety Code of the National Fire Protection Association and requires compliance with either the 1981 or 1985 editions depending on the date when the facility was first certified to participate in Medicare or Medicaid. This rule creates a uniform policy for all types of facilities that participate in the Medicare and Medicaid programs. The revision of the 1967 and 1973 editions of the Life Safety Code is intended to ensure that Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries and recipients have the benefit of the most current fire protection standards.

Abstract: This final rule with comment period amends the Medicare and Medicaid regulations by removing obsolete long-term care survey forms, guidelines, and procedures used by State agencies when they evaluate a Medicare skilled nursing facility or a Medicaid nursing facility for compliance with Federal certification requirements. Effective October 1, 1990, the application of new Federal participation requirements for these facilities with an increased focus on actual or potential resident outcomes has made the survey forms and process in existing regulations outdated. Retention of the outdated items could cause confusion in connection with directions State survey agencies must follow in determining facility compliance.

Abstract: This final rule establishes criteria to be applied in determinations whether a wheelchair qualifies for treatment as e customized item for payment purposes. Section 4152(c)(4)(B) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 established a broad definition, effective for items furnished on or after January 1, 1992, that could have the effect of encompassing many more items than are presently being determined to be "customized" for payment purposes. However, that section also provides that the statutory criteria will not become effective if the Secretary develops specific criteria prior to January 1, 1992, for the treatment of wheelchairs as customized items for purposes of Medicare payment.

Abstract: The final rules will make minor changes in the interim rule, which implemented statutory provisions effective in December, 1991. They will amend the Medicare and Medicaid regulations governing provider agreements and contracts to establish requirements for States, hospitals, nursing facilities, skilled nursing facilities, providers of home health care or personal care services, hospice programs and prepaid health plans concerning advance directives. An advance directive is a written instruction, such as a living will or durable power of attorney for health care, recognized under State law, relating to the provision of health care when an individual's condition makes him or her unable to express his or her wishes. The intent of these provisions is to enhance an individual's control over medical treatment decisions. These rules implement sections 4206 and 4751 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395x(s)(2)(P)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 405; 42 CFR 410; 42 CFR 413; 42 CFR 414

Abstract: This rule provides for Medicare coverage of the drug erythropoietin (EPO) when used at home by ESRD patients who dialyze at home. This makes it more convenient for home dialysis patients, who previously had to go to a dialysis facility or a physician's office to have the drug administered. The rule establishes requirements to ensure that only patients found capable of home use of the drug are approved for it, and that those patients are properly monitored during home use of the drug. Section 4201(d)(1)(C) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 provides for Medicare coverage of EPO effective July 1, 1991, subject to methods and standards established by the Secretary in regulations for the sale and effective use of the drug.

Significance: Agency Priority

Abstract: In this final notice, we would recognize the accreditation program of the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO) for Home Health Agencies (HHAs) that wish to participate in the Medicare or Medicaid programs. We have found that the accreditation process of this organization provides reasonable assurance that HHAs accredited by it meet the conditions required by Federal law and regulations. As a result of this determination, HHAs accredited by JCAHO will be "deemed" to meet the Medicare conditions of participation for HHAs, and therefore would not be subject to routine inspection by State survey agencies to determine their compliance with Federal requirements. They would, however, be subject to validation and complaint investigation surveys.

Abstract: This rule implements a statutory requirement that State Medicaid agencies must provide for receipt and initial processing of Medicaid applications filed by certain low-income pregnant women, infants, and children at locations which are other than those used for receipt and processing of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) applications. The statutory requirement also provides that the application form for these individuals must not be the AFDC application form.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1396d(a); 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 441

Abstract: This interim final rule would allow States to choose to provide home and community care for functionally disabled elderly as a State plan option. Rather than imposing a cost-neutrality component, as is the case in home and community based care waiver programs under section 1915 of the Social Security Act, this rule imposes two cost "caps" which are applied independently. One cap prohibits States from spending more than 50 percent of the amount Medicare would pay for certain nursing facility care, the second cap is an aggregate limit on the amount of Federal funding. This rule would implement section 4711 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990.

Abstract: This rule would allow States to choose the option of a variation of the spenddown for medically needy individuals. Under the regular spenddown program a medically needy individual becomes eligible for Medicaid by spending down income in excess of the medically needy income standard until the standard is reached. Under the optional program, an applicant could choose to pay an amount equal to their excess income to the State instead of becoming eligible only after incurring expenses. This option was provided by section 4723 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990.

Abstract: This rule would amend the regulations governing federally qualified health maintenance organizations (HMOs) and competitive medical plans (CMPs) contracting with the Medicare program, and certain HMOs and health insuring organizations (HIOs) contracting with States under the Medicaid program, by implementing changes made by sections 4204(a) and 4731(a) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 concerning physician incentive plans. The changes are intended to allow HMOs, CMPs, and HIOs the flexibility to provide reasonable financial incentives to their physicians and physician groups in order to eliminate unnecessary care and protect enrollees from reduced quality of care or access to care.

Under the Medicare program the performance of intermediaries and carriers is measured by using a Contractor Performance and Evaluation Program (CPEP) that evaluates activities against established performance criteria and standards. Abstract: This rule revises the Medicare regulations governing the procedures for replacing checks issued by our fiscal intermediaries and carriers that are lost, stolen, defaced, mutilated, destroyed, or paid on forged endorsements. Since States have established legal processes for pursuing claims for check replacement and recovery under these circumstances, it is inefficient to maintain duplicative Federal requirements. Our revised regulations would provide that any replacement or reclamation proceedings will be carried out in accordance with applicable State banking laws. Significance: Agency Priority

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1320c-9

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule with comment period will allow Peer Review Organizations (PROs) to disclose confidential information to researchers without the consent of the individuals who would be identified. Currently, PROs can only disclose nonconfidential aggregate data where no one is specifically identified. HCFA is now emphasizing the shering of PRO data for educational and research purposes as evidenced by the implementation of the Uniform Clinical Data Set and the Health Care Quality Improvement Initiative. This regulatory revision will make confidential PRO information accessible to researchers while still protecting the identities of beneficiaries and practitioners from unwarranted disclosure. PRO flexibility to share information with researchers is comparable with the revised requirements in the PRO's Fourth Scope of Work contract.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395ww

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 412.46(c)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule with comment period will revise the Medicare regulations that require a hospital to obtain on an annual basis, from each physician who has admitting privileges, a signed acknowledgement that the physician understands the penalty for misrepresenting the information on an attestation statement relating to principal and secondary diagnoses and major procedures performed on patients. These regulations will eliminate the requirement for an annual acknowledgement statement and instead require that a physician sign an acknowledgement statement only upon being granted admitting privileges at a hospital. The purpose of this change is to reduce the paperwork burden associated with processing claims under Medicare.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 205

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Would provide for an administrative waiver process whereby certain specific regulatory provisions may be waived to provide States additional operational flexibility. This would enable States to focus their limited resources on initiatives that will: (1) eliminate administrative and procedural barriers to efficient program administration; (2) promote compatibility with other welfare-related programs in the application of certain eligibility requirements; (3) encourage coordination with other State and community-based programs that provide the AFDC population with preventative health care or other related services designed to preserve or improve family stability; and, (4) assist in the development and maintenance of State or local provisions to assist needy families in their effort to reduce welfare dependency and achieve self-sufficiency.

Abstract: This final rule, which implements section 20 of the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 (Pub. This applies only to families who receive AFDC in three of the six months immediately preceding the month of ineligibility. "Received" includes those individuals denied an AFDC payment solely because of a payment under $10, the recoupment of an overpayment, or because the payment is determined to be zero as a result of rounding.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 8621 et seq

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 96

Abstract: This final rule amends the Department's regulations governing the administration of block grant programs; this rule applies specifically to the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). The rule implements changes to the LIHEAP statute which were made by the Augustus F. Hawkins Human Services Reauthorization Act of 1990 (Pub. L. 101-501) and which affect grantee administration of the LIHEAP program in fiscal years 1991 and 1992. These changes involve the Department's response to formal complaints, a reduction in the percent of LIHEAP funds that grantees may carry forward from one fiscal year to the next, waiver authority to increase the percent of LIHEAP funds that grantees may use for weatherization from 15% to 25%, a requirement for additional outreach and intake services under certain circumstances, and new leveraging incentive program.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 99-608, sec 204; PL 102-394

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 402

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule amends the final rule implementing the State Legalization Impact Assistance Grants (SLIAG). This action changes the deadline by which States' fiscal year 1994 SLIAG applications are due from October 1, 1993, to July 1, 1993, and the deadline by which a State's FY 1994 application must be approvable by the Secretary from December 15, 1993, to September 15, 1993. It also requires that States report actual costs for the first and second quarters of FY 1993 along with their FY 1994 applications. These actions are necessary so that FY 1994 allocations, which by Congressional action in the FY 1993 Appropriations Act must be made available to States by October 15, 1993, may be calculated and awarded by mandated deadlines.

[Docket No. N-93-3589; FR-3491-N-01]

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Department of Housing and Urban Development.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda, under Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, of regulations expected to be issued and under review.

SUMMARY: In accordance with section 5 of Executive Order 12291 "Federal Regulation," the Department is publishing its agenda of proposed regulations already issued or expected to be issued and of currently effective rules that are under review. Also, under section 602 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, the Department has prepared a regulatory flexibility agenda of regulations expected to be proposed or promulgated, which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. As permitted by Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, the two agendas are combined for publication.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Grady J. Norris, Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Room 10276, 451 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20410, (202) 708-3055. (This is not a toll-free number.)

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291 "Federal Regulation," issued on February 17, 1981 (46 FR 13193), requires each agency to publish semiannually an agenda of regulations that the agency has issued or expects to issue and of currently effective regulations that are under agency review.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601-612, requires each agency to publish semiannually a regulatory flexibility agenda of rules expected to be proposed or promulgated, which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of "small entities," meaning small businesses, small organizations, or small governmental jurisdictions.

Executive Order 12291 and section 605 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act each permits incorporation of the agenda required with any other prescribed agenda. Accordingly, the agenda set out below combines the information required by the Executive order and by the Regulatory Flexibility Act. In addition, the agenda contains certain information not required by either the Executive order or by the Act which the Department considers useful, both better to inform the public and to enhance the Department's own inventory control over its body of regulations.

For purposes of Executive Order 12291, "regulation" or "rule" is defined as "an agency statement of general applicability and future effect designed to implement, interpret, or prescribe law or policy or describing the procedure or practice requirements of an agency" subject to certain exceptions. The agenda published below concentrates upon regulatory material contained or expected to be contained in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) (or incorporated therein by reference) following publication in the Federal Register. As appropriate, however, issuances in the nature of general statements of policy may be published in the Federal Register but not for coordination in the CFR.

The Department also is subject to certain requirements involving congressional review of rulemaking action, including publication of an agenda. Section 7(o) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act (42 U.S.C. 3535(o)) requires that the Secretary transmit to the congressional committees having jurisdictional oversight (the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs and the House Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs) a semiannual agenda of all rules or regulations which are under development or review by the Department. A rule appearing on the agenda cannot be published for comment before or during the first 15 calendar days after transmittal of the agenda. If, within that period, either committee notifies the Secretary that it intends to review any rule or regulation which appears on the agenda, the Secretary must submit to both committees a copy of the rule or regulation, in the form it is intended to be proposed, at least 15 calendar days before it is published for comment. The semiannual agenda published today is the agenda transmitted to the committees in compliance with the foregoing requirement.

The agenda items are divided first by program office. Within each program office, the agenda items are divided into four groups: (i) Prerulemaking actions, (ii) publication or other implementations of notices of proposed rulemaking, (iii) publications or other implementations of final rules, and (iv) completed actions. Within each grouping, rules are listed in chronological order by the part number of the CFR affected. Where a rule affects multiple parts of the CFR, the rule is listed by the first affected part number. Priority rules include all regulations designated for priority development by the Department.

Items listed in this agenda are from the following offices within the Department: Office of the Secretary; Office of Housing; Office of Public and Indian Housing; Office of Community Planning and Development; Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity; Government National Mortgage Association; and Office of Administration.

Dated: March 4, 1993.

George L. Weidenfeller,

Deputy General Counsel (Operations).

In addition, the rule will propose language to amend the current interim rules; to clarify provisions based on HUD experience with those rules; to reduce regulatory burdens and procedural details consistent with environmental laws and other authorities; and to assure policy consistency with Part 58 on matters common to both rules.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1723a(h); 12 USC 4589

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 81

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, April 28, 1994.

Abstract: This rule is needed to revise HUD's present regulations concerning the Secretary's authority over the Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA) and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (FHLMC) because of the enactment of the Federal Housing Enterprises Financial Safety and Soundness Act of 1992 ("the New Act"), Title XIII of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992. Under the New Act, the Secretary has new specific statutory duties concerning: new program approval; fair housing; establishing goals for mortgage purchases of low and moderate income housing, special affordable housing, and underserved areas; FOIA procedures, reporting and all other regulations needed to ensure that purposes of the New Act, the FNMA Charter Act, and the FHLMC Act are accomplished. The New Act confers authority on an independent Director to ensure the financial safety and soundness of the enterprises which necessitates modifications to the Secretary's regulations as well as regulations implementing the Director's responsibilities.

Abstract: This rule would amend HUD's regulations governing the location of assisted housing projects (site and neighborhood standards) to establish a quantitative standard by which HUD determines whether the location contains an undue concentration (high proportion) of poverty-level population. The existing regulations do not specify how an undue concentration determination will be made. The rule would require projects to be located only in census tracts in which the percentage of people with incomes below the poverty level is less than a stated, fixed percentage, with certain exceptions. The purpose of this rule is to provide for a more objective standard for determining undue concentration of lower-income households.

Abstract: This rule implements changes made by the 1992 Housing and Community Development Act and the National Affordable Housing Act in the way the Federal preferences are applied. The revised statute provides that the Federal preferences for assisting families that occupy substandard housing, who pay more than 50% of income for rent, or who are involuntarily displaced, applies not to admission to all the units during a one-year period but to at least 50% of the public housing units, at least 70% of units in Indian housing and project-based programs, and at least 90% for tenant-based programs (Housing Voucher and Certificate Program). Preference in admission with respect to the remaining units is to be given to applicants who qualify for a local preference. The local preferences are to be adopted by a housing authority to respond to local housing needs and priorities after a public hearing. It also prohibits individuals evicted from housing under the U.S. Housing Act because of drug-related criminal activity from having a Federal or local preference for three years. Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 17

Abstract: This rule would make the repayment of disallowed costs, as determined under the Departmental Audits Management System, a threshold requirement to be met in all of HUD's Discretionary Assistance Programs. As such, this rule would provide an additional important tool for the Department to collect moneys expended for ineligible purposes under HUD programs. This is particularly true with respect to State and Local Governments, which are not subject to administrative offset under the Federal Claims Collection Act.

There is no administrative or programmatic cost under the proposal. The potential for recovering disallowed costs, by establishing such a precondition for discretionary program assistance, lies in the millions of dollars.

Abstract: This rule implements the HOME Investment Partnership Act, as enacted by Title II of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act. This new rule will provide that alien status must be verified with the Immigration and Naturalization Service by the entity responsible for tenant selection (or for approval of a Section 235 mortgage application).

Abstract: This rule implements part of section 106(a) of the Fire Administration Authorization Act of 1992, which prohibits use of housing assistance unless specific fire safety requirements have been implemented. The FHA single family mortgage insurance programs and the homeownership assistance program under section 235 of NHA are explicitly exempted from these fire safety requirements. Newly constructed multifamily properties receiving housing assistance must be protected by an automatic sprinkler system and hard-wired smoke detectors. Rebuilt (substantially rehabilitated) multifamily properties must comply with the fire safety requirements of the chapter on existing apartment buildings of National Fire Protection Association Standard 101. All other units receiving housing assistance must be protected by hard-wired or battery operated smoke detectors.

Abstract: This rule implements sections 601-605 of the Cranston Act, and is intended to preserve affordable, federally-assisted housing by: (1) permitting owners of eligible housing to prepay their HUD-insured mortgages only under certain circumstances; (2) providing incentives to owners to extend the low-income use of the housing; and (3) permitting owners to transfer the low-income housing to qualified purchasers, but only after priority purchasers (residents, nonprofits and public agencies) are given a right of first refusal. In addition, HUD is authorized to provide subsidies to these priority purchasers to acquire and rehabilitate the low-income housing and to fund operating and replacement reserves.

Abstract: Section 802 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act establishes a revised congregate housing services program which supersedes the Congregate Housing Services Program under the Congregate Housing Services Act of 1978. The new statutory provisions authorize provision of supportive services to enable frail elderly persons and persons with disabilities to live independently and also the provision of assistance for the retrofitting of dwelling units and common space to meet the special physical needs of residents. HUD and the Department of Agriculture are directed by Section 802(m) to jointly issue any necessary regulations within 180 days after enactment. CFR Citation: 24 CFR 813; 24 CFR 905; 24 CFR 913; 24 CFR 215; 24 CFR 236

Abstract: The provisions of this regulation ease the rent burden for working families and provide needed incentives for resident to improve their economic situations. These provisions assist families who are making the transition from welfare to gainful employment and encourage higher income working families to remain in public housing. This regulation removes several of the structural disincentives that exist in current regulations, by removing the provision that includes earned income tax credits as income, and by excluding deferred periodic payments of supplemental security income and social security benefits that are received in a lump sum.

This regulation implements:

Section 102(a) of the HCDA of 1987

Section 302 of the HUD Reform Act of 1989

Section 515(b) of the NAHA of 1990

Abstract: This rule would implement section 573(a) of the National Affordable Housing Act of 1990 and sections 103(b) and 621 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 to amend the term "family" under the 1937 Housing Act to include any single person. It would add "near-elderly" as an eligibility category, subsume the definition of "handicapped" under "disabled", and provide separate definitions of "elderly family" and "disabled family." It would also implement the effect of the Fair Housing Act on occupancy requirements for single, pregnant women and persons in the process of obtaining custody of another individual.

The rule establishes procedures for determining maintenance wage rates as prevailing based on collective bargaining agreements or other compensation-setting methods, and for adopting State- or locally-determined prevailing wage schedules. Legal Authority: 12 USC 1710

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 1064 of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments Act of 1988 authorizes HUD to add pre-foreclosure sales to its roster of servicing options, as a means of saving the Department money and of assisting qualified mortgagors to avoid foreclosure of their FHA-insured mortgages. The Department is now able to pay a claim to a mortgagee to "bridge the gap" between the proceeds of a sale of the property to a third party buyer at current fair market value, and the original owner's indebtedness under the note. Until the Department received the authorization to pay these claims, such pre-foreclosure sales (or "short sales," as they are also known) were impracticable. At this time, a six to twelve month demonstration of pre-foreclosure sales is being conducted in five local HUD offices; subsequently, full implementing regulations will be issued to introduce the pre-foreclosure sale option throughout the Department.

The Act does, however, exempt "housing for older persons" from its prohibition of discrimination based on familial status. 42 USC section 3607(b)(1). Three types of housing are defined as exempt under the Act, including housing that is intended and operated for the occupancy of at least one person per unit who is age 55 years or older. 42 USC section 3607(b) (2)(C); 24 CFR section 100.304.

To establish that housing is exempt housing for persons age 55 or older, housing providers must demonstrate (as one means among others) that at the time they discriminate against families with children under the age of eighteen, the housing had significant facilities and services specifically designed to meet the physical or social needs of older persons. In accordance with section 903 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992, this rule will provide further definition of the term "significant facilities and services."

Abstract: This rule would amend the Minimum Property Standards (MPS) in 24 CFR Part 200, subpart S, to specify that seismic design is a mandatory standard for applicable housing. In addition, the rule would update a reference to a private sector seismic design standard currently incorporated into the MPS, and would substitute a new standard for swimming pools. Abstract: Under section 947 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act, HUD must assess the risk of earthquake-related damage to properties administered under HUD programs and must develop seismic safety standards for those properties. Similar responsibilities are placed upon HUD and other Federal agencies by E.O. 12699 of January 5, 1993. There is also a statutory deadline of February 1, 1993.

Abstract: Currently, section 203.402(g) authorizes mortgagees to be reimbursed 100% for all allowable expenses made for preservation and protection of properties until conveyance to HUD. There is little incentive for mortgagees to keep costs down. HUD has experienced problems with mortgagees exceeding established limits without approval and submitting claims for inappropriate expenditures. Placing a two-thirds cap on reimbursements will provide a financial incentive for the mortgagees to cooperate in reducing expenses. 24 CFR 203.402(g) would be changed to reflect a two-thirds reimbursement limitation.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d); 12 USC 1715(b)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 204

Abstract: This rule would terminate the section 244 Single-Family Coinsurance Program. The program is neither cost effective for the Department to continue, nor will its termination result in reduction of avenues to mortgage credit for first-time and low- and moderate-income homebuyers. Its elimination would free up staff resources for more productive tasks without adversely affecting the homebuying clientele the Department is mandated to serve.

The Department endorses approximately 150 coinsured single-family mortgages per month. The combined volume for FYs 1990, 1991, and the first five months of 1992 was only about 4300 loans nationwide with the bulk coming from one lender doing business in Illinois. The remainder of coinsured loans (less than 40% of total coinsurance volume from four additional lenders) were from New York and Texas.

Abstract: This rule would amend HUD regulations to implement section 181 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987, section 1010 of the Stewart B. Section 181 expanded the scope of section 203 of the HCD Amendments of 1978 to include projects that are subject to a HUD-held mortgage and are delinquent, under a work out agreement, or being foreclosed upon by HUD. HUD, when it is owner or mortgagee-in-possession, and the owner in other situations now covered by section 203 must, to the greatest extent possible, maintain all such occupied projects in decent, safe, and sanitary condition and maintain full occupancy and must also maintain all such projects for purposes of providing rental or cooperative housing for the longest feasible time. The statute directs HUD to provide not less than one of several specified forms of financial assistance to a purchaser other than HUD at foreclosure, or after sale by the Secretary. Abstract: Section 8(c)(2)(B) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 permits HUD to adjust contract rents covering Section 8 assisted units to reflect increases in certain specified costs of owning and maintaining. Section 542 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act amended Section 8 (c)(2) to provide the Secretary with the authority (subject to the availability of appropriations) to provide for rent adjustments where a project's operating, maintenance, and capital repair expenses have been substantially increased primarily as a result of the prevalence of drug-related activity. This section limits the rent adjustments to a level no greater than 120% of the project rents, to cover the costs of maintenance, security, capital repairs and reserves required for the owner to carry out a strategy acceptable to the Secretary for addressing the problem of drug-related criminal activity.

This proposed rule would implement the provisions of Section 542.

Abstract: This rule will amend the Federal Manufactured Home Construction and Safety Standards to improve the resistance of manufactured homes to wind forces. The increased standards are the result of field investigations of the destruction caused by Hurricane Andrew, and of reviews of current standards and requirements. Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 3282; 24 CFR 3283

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: HUD solicited public comments on certain changes to the structure of the monitoring program used to enforce the manufactured housing construction and safety standards required by Manufactured Housing Construction and Safety Standards Act of 1974. HUD proposed alternative regulatory structures which would change the current third party design and inspection program and system of monitoring and enforcement. These alternative monitoring procedures will provide a more efficient and effective regulatory enforcement program which will assure protection of the consumers, while lessening the burden on the manufactured housing industry. The final rule will propose revisions.

This rule would amend 24 CFR Part 200 by (1) referencing the latest editions of private sector standards presently in the MPS; (2) standardizing requirements to control termites and wood decay; (3) revising the time for periodic changes to the MPS; and (4) making technical changes to section 100-1.2 and 100-1.3 Housing for the Elderly and Requirements for Accessibility to Physically Handicapped People in HUD Handbook 4910.1.

Abstract: This rule would adopt Use of Materials Bulletins (UM) No. 101 Exterior Finish and Insulation Systems, which is a new UM. This new UM would reference related national voluntary consensus standards. In accordance with 24 CFR 200.935, this UM would also provide a labeling and third party certification program to meet the appropriate national voluntary consensus standards. In addition, it provides for a third party inspection at the job site. The rule would also supplement the HUD Building Product Standards and Certification Program by requiring that additional information be included on the label, tag, or mark that each manufacturer would affix to a certified product. It would also specify the frequency with which products must be tested in order to be acceptable to HUD. Finally it requires an inspection report regarding installation.

Among the technical changes is a requirement that a mortgagee inform a mortgagor of the possible right to assignment before it accepts a deed in lieu of foreclosure from the mortgagor.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 207

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Current regulations require a mortgagee to furnish a survey and a policy of title insurance or its equivalent as a prerequisite to the closing of an insured multifamily housing loan. If a mortgagee subsequently chooses to exercise its right to assign a mortgage to HUD, it must submit an owner's title policy in favor of HUD that is effective on the date that the project is conveyed to the Secretary. This rule would amend HUD regulations deleting the phrase "it will become an owner's policy running to the mortgagee or the Secretary as the case may be," and substituting "it will continue to provide the same coverage as the original policy, and will run to the mortgagee or the Secretary, as the case may be." This will allow HUD to decide on a case-by-case basis to either purchase an owner's policy at its own expense, or self-insure the time period between assignment and foreclosure.

Abstract: Section 223(a)(7) of the National Housing Act authorizes the Department to insure mortgages given to refinance existing HUD-insured mortgages under the Act. Current regulations provide that refinanced loans may not exceed 90% of the Federal Housing Commissioner's estimate of value. This limitation has prevented some insured projects that have sufficient net income to cover the new debt service from refinancing at lower rates and improving their financial condition. Because refinanced loans are already limited by statute, deletion of the 90 percent-of-value criterion would help to prevent defaults and claims against the Department's Insurance Funds.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 570.200; 24 CFR 570 203

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 804 of the 1992 Act authorizes HUD to exempt from program rules any income that is so small that HUD determines would not be worth the administrative costs of assuring compliance. HUD will propose rules and get comments before establishing the amount of income for this purpose.

Section 806(e) of the 1992 Act allows grantees to assume that a person is low/moderate income for certain purposes if the person resides in a census tract that meets the Federal Enterprise Zone criteria. HUD will publish proposed criteria and get comments before establishing the criteria that will be used for this purpose.

Section 807(a) establishes a new eligibility category for the funding of certain services needed to carry out housing activities that are eligible under the CDBG or HOME programs. This provision also states that such costs are to be subject to any ceilings established by law on administrative expenses. Since many of these costs have, by regulation, been deemed for years to be eligible under the CDBG program without this new provision and are not subject to the statutory cap on CDBG (cont)

Section 807(a) also makes eligible the use of CDBG funds to pay operating expenses necessary to maintain the habitability of certain housing units that have been acquired through tax foreclosure. HUD intends to propose rules that will govern which expenses and which housing units may be assisted under this authority.

Section 807(a) further makes eligible the use of CDBG funds to provide assistance to public and private organizations, agencies, and other entities to enable them to facilitate economic development providing credit for the establishment and expansion of microenterprises. It also makes eligible the use of CDBG funds by such entities for the provision of technical assistance and other general support services to owners of microenterprises and persons developing such enterprises.

Abstract: A recent IG audit finding involving a sample of CDBG grantees revealed that general improvements were being undertaken in CDBG-assisted rehabilitation properties while leaving health and safety violations uncorrected. As a result of this finding, CDBG regulations need to be amended to incorporate a provision that would require the correction of all health and safety violations in CDBG-assisted rehabilitated properties before any general improvements to these properties can be undertaken. The proposed rule will also include an exception that will allow properties with uncorrected health and safety violations to still take part in rehabilitation programs that grantees have established to expressly address significant community housing needs,

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

Abstract: This rule would modify language in 24 CFR parts 905 and 968 that, as applied, requires Indian Housing Authorities (IHAs) and Public Housing Agencies (PHAs) to use the sealed bid method of procurement for lead-based paint (LPD) testing or abatement services with a contract value of over $25,000. Instead, IHAs and PHAs will be permitted to use any of the procurement methods authorized under section 905.175 or 85.36(d), respectively. The methods include small purchase procedures, the sealed bid method, the competitive proposals method, and the non-competitive proposals method of contracting for LBP testing or abatement services. These changes in procurement requirements are intended to provide IHAs and PHAs with maximum flexibility in determining the method of procurement that best suits their needs in this specialized area as currently authorized under section 85.36 when contracting for goods and services.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d); 42 USC 1437d(j)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 901

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule established the Public Housing Management Assessment Program (PHMAP) in accordance with Section 502 of the National Affordable Housing Act of 1990 (approved Nov. 28, 1990, PL 101-625, 104 Stat. 4079). Section 502 requires HUD to assess the management performance of Public Housing Agencies (PHAs) in all major areas of management operations and designation of troubled and mod-troubled PHAs. PHMAP uses a maximum of 12 indicators, including seven specifically mandated by the statute and five other indicators deemed appropriate by HUD. A PHA designated troubled or mod-troubled is required to enter into a memorandum of agreement (MOA) with HUD that sets forth targets, strategies, incentives and sanctions for approving its management performance. In the event of a substantial default on an agreement, HUD may petition the appropriate State or Federal court of venue for the appointment of a receiver or make other management changes for the troubled PHA. HUD is also authorized to commend exemplary PHAs.

PHMAP is intended to foster a uniform, nationwide level of excellence in public housing.

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 905

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, February 14, 1991. Final, Statutory, May 25, 1991.

Abstract: This rule will amend the Indian Housing rule's provisions concerning a resident's lease and grievance procedures to conform to statutory amendments made in 1990 by the National Affordable Housing Act. Those amendments made certain criminal activity by a member of the resident's household cause for termination of tenancy and permitted an IHA to use an expedited grievance procedure concerning such a termination. It also specified elements of due process, which--if provided under local law--would eliminate the need for providing a grievance procedure for this type of termination of tenancy or eviction.

This rule proposes to simplify and reduce processing procedures in obtaining modernization grants. This rule proposes to enhance resident and homebuyer participation. CFR Citation: 24 CFR 905.210; 24 CFR 905.720

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will implement section 122(a) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 by exempting Assisted Housing for Indian and Alaskan Natives for the requirements of section 6(h) of the United States Housing Act, which required housing agencies to develop housing by the new construction method only if acquisition or acquisition with rehabilitation could be demonstrated to be more costly. Since section 905.210 also contains the preference for construction for large families which no longer is required by statute, the entire section is being removed.

This rule would also implement section 122(c) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992, which amends section 203 (b) of the 1937 Act. Section 122(c) requires the Secretary to make an annual payment from operating subsidy funding to municipalities that provide roads, water supply and sewage facilities and electrical and fuel distribution systems to Indian housing rental projects in an amount for each rental housing unit equal to (1) 10% of the applicable shelter rent minus the utility allowance or (2) $150, whichever is greater.

under this rule HUD may approve an application for demolition if the project is obsolete, making it unusable for housing purposes and if no reasonable program of modification is feasible to return the project to a useful life. Semiannual Agenda of Rules Scheduled for Review or Development

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Interior.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of rules scheduled for review or development.

SUMMARY: This notice provides the semiannual agenda of rules scheduled for review or development between April and October 1993. An agenda is required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291.

ADDRESSES: Unless otherwise indicated, all agency contacts are located at the Department of the Interior, 1849 C Street NW., Washington, DC 20240.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: All comments and inquiries with regard to these rules should be directed to the appropriate agency contact. General comments relating to the agenda should be directed to the Office of Congressional and Legislative Affairs, Department of the Interior, at the address above or on (202) 208-6233.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: With this publication, the Department satisfies the requirement of Executive Order 12291 that the Department publish, in April and October of each year, an agenda of rules that have been issued or are expected to be issued and currently effective rules that are scheduled for review.

Simultaneously, the Department meets the requirement of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) that an agenda be published in April and October of each year identifying rules which will have significant economic effects on a substantial number of small entities; those rules which will have such effects are specifically identified in the agenda.

This agenda also identifies rules determined to be "significant" under Executive Order 12498 and which are included in this Department's 1993 regulatory program. A more comprehensive discussion of this program and the rules are contained in the Regulatory Program of the United States Government, which is published by the Office of Management and Budget.

Dated: March 10, 1993.

Brad Leonard,

Acting Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Policy, Management and Budget.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 40 USC 486(c)

CFR Citation: 48 CFR 1400

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule makes miscellaneous revisions to the Department of the Interior Acquisition Regulation.

Timetable: Next Action Undetermined

Small Entities Affected: Undetermined

Government Levels Affected: Undetermined

Procurement: This is a procurement-related action for which there is no statutory requirement. There is no paperwork burden associated with this action.

Additional Information: The previous RIN (1090-AA14) for miscellaneous revisions to the Department of the Interior Acquisition Regulation was used for the April 18, 1991, Federal Register publication of a revision in the acquisition regulation's numbering system. This office wishes at this time to reserve another agenda entry and RIN for the publication of future revisions to the Department of the Interior Acquisition Regulation.

1588. NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c)

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department is currently revising its CERCLA type B procedures based on a court ruling. Section 301(c)(3) of CERCLA requires that the regulations be reviewed and revised, as appropriate, on a biennial basis. The Department will begin a review of the type B rule once it is revised. The Department will ask trustees, other interested parties, and members of the public to draw upon their experience with the type B procedures and the general assessment process to advise the Department of areas where revisions to the process and the type B procedures may be desired. If these comments and suggestions show areas where revisions to the general process or to the type B procedures are needed, a notice of proposed rulemaking will be issued to revise the rule. This review will be closely coordinated with the rulemaking of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (Commerce), which has responsibility for natural resource damage assessment rulemaking under the Oil Pollution Act of 1990.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; OMB Circular A-110

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 12

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule will implement in a regulatory format the Department's Implementation of OMB Circular A-110. Prior implementation has been limited to a reference to the applicability of the Circular. Since the revision currently under way provides an opportunity for executive agencies to use this format to facilitate the preparation of their regulations, the Department has decided to use this approach.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 40 USC 486(c); EO 12731

1591. NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c) CERCLA

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c)(2)(A) calls for the promulgation of simplified assessment procedures. The Department has begun the development of a type A procedure for use in the Great Lakes environment. After a review of the natural resource damage assessment rule, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia remanded certain parts of that rule to the Department for revision. The court upheld the use of an interactive computer model, but stated that such a model should incorporate restoration or replacement costs and all reliably calculated lost use values in the damage calculations. The Department will revise its development of a type A procedure for Great Lakes environments to comply with the court's ruling.

1592. NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c) CERCLA

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c)(2)(B) calls for the promulgation of a set of alternative protocols for the testing, sampling, and determining compensation for natural resource damages, referred to as the type B procedures. Final rules for the assessment of damages were promulgated by the Department consistent with those requirements. In a review of those rules, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia held that restoration or replacement costs are the basic measure of natural resource damages under CERCLA, and all reliably calculated lost use values of injured natural resources should also be recoverable, with no required hierarchy of methodologies for conducting those valuations. The Department is considering revisions to the proposed rule based on comments received as of July 16, 1991. The required biennial review of the Type B rule will await completion of this revision implementing the court ruling.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c) CERCLA

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c)(2)(A) calls for the promulgation of simplified assessment procedures. The first type A procedure for coastal and marine environments uses a computer model known as the natural resource damage assessment model for coastal and marine environments (NRDAM/CME). The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia upheld the use of an interactive computer model, but stated that such a model should incorporate restoration or replacement costs and all reliably calculated lost use values in the damage calculations. The Department will revise the type A procedure for coastal and marine environments to comply with the court's ruling and will incorporate changes in response to the first biennial review of the type A procedure at the same time.

Legal Authority: 35 USC 18

CFR Citation: 48 CFR 1400; 48 CFR 1427; 48 CFR 1452

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: PL 98-620 amended 35 USC 18 dealing with patent rights in inventions made with Federal funding. On June 12, 1989, Federal Acquisition Regulation implementation of PL 98-620 was issued through FAC 84-48. Patent rights under Government contracts are covered in FAR subpart 27.3. FAR 27.304-5(b) requires agencies to establish and publish their respective appeals, administrative due process, and fact-finding procedures related to patent rights. The proposed Department of the Interior Acquisition Regulation coverage establishes Department of the Interior policy with regard to title rights, exception determinations, appeals, greater rights determinations, retention of rights by inventors, assignment of rights, exercise of march-in rights and licensing to third parties. It also identifies key Departmental points of contact in matters concerning patent rights. The proposed coverage supplements FAC 84-48 and amends sections 14227 and 1452, as parts of 48 CFR, chapter 14.

Abstract: These regulations amend the Department's current regulations on employee testimony and response to subpoenas for documents. The current regulations do not provide enough guidance to allow appropriate decisions to be made as to whether testimony should be allowed or documents released. Further, the current regulations do not have a centralized review to allow for consistent decisionmaking throughout the Department. These regulations provide guidance to those requesting testimony of employees or production of documents as to what the Department must consider to make a reasonable and just decision.

Legal Authority: R.S. 2478, as amended; 43 USC 1201

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 4.21

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed rule would revise the regulation found at 43 CFR 4.21(a) which governs the effect of an administrative decision pending appeal before the Office of Hearings and Appeals. The current rule provides that the filing of a Notice of Appeal will automatically suspend the effect of the decision appealed from pending the decision on appeal, unless the Director, Office of Hearings and Appeals or the Appeals Board makes a special finding to the contrary. The revision would mandate that a decision remain in full force and effect pending appeal unless the appellant files a petition for a stay of the decision. In ruling on the petition the Appeals Board shall consider (1) the relative harm to the parties if the stay is granted or denied, (2) the likelihood of the appellant's success on the merits, (3) the likelihood of irreparable harm to the appellant if the stay is not granted, and (4) whether the public interest favors granting the stay.

Abstract: The Title IX regulation is intended to address the problem of discrimination on the basis of sex in any education program or activity receiving or benefiting from Federal financial assistance administered by the DOI.

No alternative for addressing problems of discrimination in DOI's education programs can be considered due to the fact that Title IX requires each Federal agency which extends Federal financial assistance to any educational program or activity, to issue rules and regulations implementing Title IX.

DOI's recipients are anticipated to incur expenses in two (2) areas: (1) Data collection and recordkeeping; (2) rectifying areas of noncompliance with Title IX. With respect to DOI, expenses will be incurred in three (3) areas: (1) Development and publication of the Title IX rule; (2) provision of technical assistance; and (3) accomplishing compliance reviews and enforcement activities.

EO 12291: These rules are major because of the economic values associated with migratory game bird hunting; however, the need to obtain and consider the latest population data for these migratory birds requires that the regulatory schedule be shortened. Abstract: The Service is proposing to review the regulations governing the release and harvest of captive-bred waterfowl on State-licensed shooting preserves. Considerable concern has been generated about these activities and their effects on the harvest and well-being of wild populations. The possibility for introduction of diseases into wild populations remains a serious concern. Current activities may be in conflict with prohibitions against live decoys (20.21f), and baiting (20.21i).

1614. MIGRATORY BIRD HUNTING: HUNTING REGULATIONS FOR RESTRICTION OF SHOTSHELL LENGTH, MAXIMUM SHOT SIZE AND NONTOXIC SHOT COATINGS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 703 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Before the passage of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act (MBTA), there were no restrictions on firearms or ammunition used in the taking of migratory birds. The MBTA gave rise to regulations that required shotguns used in the sport hunting of migratory birds to be not larger than 10 gauge. Recently, there has been a trend toward long shotshells, which defeats the intent of the present regulatory restriction to limit firepower to reduce crippling and unretrieved harvest of migratory birds. The 10 gauge 3 1/2 inch shotshell now in use has a larger payload than the 8-gauge, 3-inch shotshell outlawed for use earlier in this century. The intent is to limit shotshell length to the current maximum (3 1/2) to stop market competition for ever longer shells and to eliminate any waste of migratory gamebird resources that added shell length would induce. Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: Further, size "F" shot has been determined to be nonlethal on geese beyond 55 yards due to inadequate pattern density. This results in unacceptable crippling loss. The intent is to restrict the maximum shot size for hunting migratory birds to size "T," the largest size tested that has exhibited acceptable performance. Also, although the Service has a policy regarding regulating anti-corrosive coatings of steel shot to ensure nontoxicity, the policy has not been codified. The Service will seek public comment on its regulation of shot coatings to prevent inadvertent toxicity problems for waterfowl and other migratory birds.

regulations implement the subsistence priority provisions for rural residents for Alaska under the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act and provide for issuance of subsistence hunting, trapping, and fishing seasons and bag limits. Due to a decision by State court, management responsibility for subsistence taking of fish and wildlife was assumed by the Federal land management agencies in 1990.

This rule also provides for the seasonal bag limits and dates for subsistence hunting, trapping, and fishing on Federal lands in Alaska. The seasons and bag limits are developed in cooperation with State and local governmental entities to ensure that fish and wildlife populations in the State are adequately protected.

Additional Information: ANILCA requires the Secretaries of Interior and Agriculture to implement a joint program to grant a preference in favor of subsistence uses of fish and wildlife resources on public lands unless the State of Alaska enacts and implements laws of general applicability consistent with ANILCA's requirements. The State implemented such a program; however, in December 1989, the Alaska Supreme Court ruled such program unconstitutional. As a result of that decision, the Departments of Interior and Agriculture were required to take over the implementation of title VIII of ANILCA on Federal lands on July 1, 1990. On June 29, 1990, the temporary Subsistence Management Regulations for Public Lands in Alaska were published in the Federal Register. The Service proposes to extend the temporary subsistence managements regulations to June 1993 in a separate rulemaking action.

1627. CONVENTION ON INTERNATIONAL TRADE IN ENDANGERED SPECIES OF WILD FAUNA AND FLORA (CITES)

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 23

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to amend 50 CFR 23, subparts A and B, to consider the following proposals recommended by the Conference of the Parties to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora: (1) Whether or not to reduce the paperwork burden for trade in certain hybrid plants. Such reduction would cause slight risks to wild plants, but a substantial reduction of administrative and public burdens. (2) Whether to require a fitness-to-travel checklist to reduce the high mortality/morbidity in the shipment of live animals. Processing such checklists would increase costs but would also increase awareness of live animals transport requirements/needs. (3) To allow innocent infractions of regulations to be cured by by issuance of permits retroactively. While such action would increase costs slightly, there would be slight reductions in the cost of processing violations and such action would encourage voluntary compliance.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3954

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 84

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The National Coastal Wetland Conservation Grant Program was established through the Coastal Wetlands Planning, Protection and Restoration Act. Funding for this grant program is provided from a portion of the funds deposited in the Sport Fish Restoration Account of the Federal Aid program. The proposed rules for 50 CFR 84 will be used for uniform administration of this new grant program. Such rules are needed to establish procedures from the selection and uniform administration of grants funded under the Act. Since grantees are State agencies, the requirements contained in 43 CFR 12 are applicable to audits, costs, and administration of grants under this program.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

1631. APPLICATION FEES FOR CONTROLLED HUNTS ON NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGES

Legal Authority: 16 USC 668dd

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The popularity of controlled hunts has increased greatly over the last several years. Consequently, the number of applications for hunting permits has increased proportionately to such an extent that individual national wildlife refuges have been overburdened financially, and in terms of personnel work hours, with their review of such applications for permit eligibility and issuance. The purpose of this rulemaking is to provide a regulation that will pertain to the establishment of application fees for controlled hunts on national wildlife refuges. The establishment of an application fee would defray the additional burden placed upon the individual national wildlife refuge managing a controlled hunt.

1633. ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS: EMERGENCY PROPOSAL TO ESTABLISH ADDITIONAL MANATEE SANCTUARIES IN KINGS BAY, CRYSTAL RIVER, CITRUS COUNTY, FLORIDA

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 to 1544

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory. In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than 1 year after such proposal.

Abstract: The Fish and Wildlife Service proposes to establish four additional manatee sanctuaries (32 acres) in Kings Bay, Crystal River, Citrus County, Florida. All waterborne activities would be prohibited in these sanctuaries from November 15 through March 31 of each year. The proposed action would prevent the taking of manatees by harassment resulting from waterborne activities during the winter months. The number of sanctuaries in Kings Bay would be increased from three (10.7 acres) to seven (42.7 acres) to accommodate the increase in the number of manatees using the area each winter, and to offset the harassment from increasing public use.

1640. • ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS: POLICY ON THE TREATMENT OF HYBRIDS AND PROPOSED DEFINITIONS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to issue a policy that will include within the scope of a listing for a specific taxon "hybrid" individuals that more closely resemble a listed species than they resemble individuals intermediate with another species. The proposed policy is intended to allow the Service to routinely protect and conserve intercross progeny. A second goal is to give the Service the ability to eliminate intercross progeny if their presence interferes with conservation efforts for a listed species. It also allows fostering of intercrossing when this would preserve remaining genetic material from a nearly extinct species. Under the policy, intermediate individuals or populations of direct hybrid origin would not ordinarily be protected or be eligible for listing.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Abstract: The Service proposes to introduce Colorado squawfish (Ptychocheilus lucius) into the lower Colorado River in Arizona and to determine the population to be "nonessential experimental" population according to section 10(j) of the Endangered Species Act. The Service will propose a special rule to allow take in accordance with State law. In the past, Colorado squawfish were more widespread in the State of Arizona, occurring in several river drainages. This action is being taken in an effort to establish an additional population within the species' historic range.

1655. FARM-RAISED FISH; EXEMPTION FROM FISH AND WILDLIFE EXPORT REQUIREMENTS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 18 USC 42

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 14

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service has determined that the export of live farm-raised fish and farm-raised fish eggs does not adversely affect the wild resources. This rulemaking would exempt exporters from licensing requirements, designated port requirements, and payment of user fees. This rule will relieve exporters of the requirement of obtaining an import/export license ($125 per year), and of the payment of user fees ($25 per shipment).

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to remove 50 CFR 17.40 (b)(1)(i)(E), the special rule which allows take of grizzly bears through a special hunt in northwestern Montana. The Service further intends to review the Grizzly Bear Special Rule to address actions needed due to population pressure within a grizzly bear population. The proposed removal of the authorization for the special hunt in Montana is to allow time to review the regulation based on current biological information. The removal of the special rule will, in no way, change the remainder of the Grizzly Bear rule in 50 CFR 17.40(b).

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1361 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 18.121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Marine Mammal Protection Act allows for periods of up to 5 years the incidental, but not intentional, take in specified activities (other than commercial fishing) of marine mammals if it is determined, based on the best scientific evidence available, that the total of such taking for the 5-year period will have a negligible impact on the marine mammal species and will not have an unmitigable adverse impact on the availability of these species for subsistence uses by Alaskan Natives. BP Exploration (Alaska) Inc., on behalf of itself and 14 other Petitioners, on December 17, 1991, submitted applications to the Service for promulgation of regulations to allow the incidental take of polar bears and walrus during year-round oil and gas exploration, development and production activities in Coastal Arctic Alaska and the Beaufort Sea.

1663. • ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS: CRITICAL HABITAT FOR FOUR COLORADO RIVER FISHES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory, January 25, 1993.
The Service is under court order to publish a proposed rule for the razorback sucker by January 25, 1993, using currently available information.

Abstract: The Service proposes to designate critical habitat for four species of endemic Colorado River Basin fishes: Razorback sucker, Colorado squawfish, Humpback chub, and Bonytail chub. These species are listed under the Endangered Species Act. Historically, these four species occurred throughout the Colorado River system from Wyoming to Mexico. The proposed critical habitat designation, when made final, would result in additional consultation and conference requirements under Section 7 of the Act with regard to Federal agency actions which are likely to destroy or adversely modify critical habitat.

1665. • ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS; BRUNEAU HOT SPRING SNAIL

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 to 1543

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory. In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than one year after such proposal.

Abstract: Regulations will be proposed to add the Bruneau Hot Spring snail (Pyrgulopsis bruneauensis) to the list of endangered wildlife. The Bruneau Hot Spring snail is endemic to the complex of related thermal springs adjacent to the Bruneau River south of Mountain Home, Idaho. The major threat to this species is habitat loss due to the drastic and continuing reduction in thermal spring flows from groundwater withdrawal/mining in the Bruneau Hot Spring aquifer.

1666. NATIONAL MIGRATORY BIRD HARVEST INFORMATION PROGRAM

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 701 to 711; 16 USC 742(a) to 742(d); 16 USC 742(e) to 742(j); 16 USC 712

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: There is a need to obtain better estimates of migratory bird harvests toward the end of aiding decisions affecting the ability to maintain populations at healthy levels. Names and addresses of a representative sample of migratory bird hunters are needed in order to develop improved surveys that are free from bias. The action will be to develop, through existing State and Federal hunter licensing activities, a more reliable sample of names and addresses of persons who hunt migratory birds than is currently available. One proposed alternative would require all migratory bird hunters to obtain and maintain in their possession a program card. Cards would be available through the State license vendors, with States having the option to charge a fee to recover administrative and distribution costs. More efficient and less costly means of acquiring the necessary names and addresses may exist. Therefore, the FWS will solicit recommendations for alternatives to the previously identified option. The main benefit of the proposed action will be to increase the quality and extent of migratory bird harvest information.

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, January 29, 1989.
Section 8 of the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition Act directs the Secretary of the Interior to promulgate regulations governing nonfederal oil and gas development by 1/29/89.

Abstract: Several sections of 36 CFR part 9, subpart B contain ambiguous language which has caused confusion in interpreting the existing regulations. The NPS wants to make technical revisions to clarify requirements for both applicants and the Service. Also, the existing regulations exempt two classes of operators from compliance. Because of these exemptions, the regulations apply to only 30% of the existing operations resulting in avoidable impacts to park resources and visitor values from unregulated operations. Finally, the Service intends to propose revisions to the existing regulations to incorporate congressionally mandated requirements and timetables governing nonfederal oil and gas development in the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition. Examples of such revisions include: making the regulations applicable to all oil and gas operations within all units of the National Park System; updating terms for consistency with existing policies, practices, and laws; and removing the monetary ceiling and floor on bonds and security deposits so that bonds may be calculated and posted commensurate with reclamation costs.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 7.13

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed regulation will exempt the section of U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park from the prohibition on the use of National Park Service roads by commercial vehicles when such use has in no way a connection with operation of the park; delete the special regulations establishing the speed limit on U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park; and restrict the amount and type of hazardous materials which may be transported on U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park. The special regulation establishing the present fee schedule for commercial traffic within Yellowstone will be eliminated and the Superintendent provided the discretion to establish and adjust fees for such use on an annual basis.

These actions will clearly define the management and regulation of commercial traffic on U.S. 191 through Yellowstone and assure a certain measure of protection against hazardous waste spills.

Abstract: The National Park Service proposed rule and policy statement with request for comments relates to special events in the National Capital Region. A variety of special events, such as festivals and private rented events have occurred on park land for some time. Abstract: The existing regulations at 36 CFR part 9, subpart A, promulgated in January of 1977, contain a provision regarding the use of water in connection with mining claims within National Park System units that creates a "catch 22" for miners seeking to use water in connection with their claims. In order to use water in a park, a miner must have a perfected water right. However, to obtain a perfected water right, a miner must use water. Herein lies the "catch 22." The National Park Service would like to rectify this dilemma through a rule change that would eliminate the perfected water right language while at the same time preserve the Service's ability to protect water quality and quantity.

Abstract: The regulations in 25 CFR part 211 govern contracts for the prospecting and mining of Indian-owned minerals, other than oil and gas. Revisions will be made which would combine rules for the review and approval of mineral development contracts on both tribal and allotted lands into one part. This part has been redesignated from 25 CFR part 171.

As a result of the public comments on the previously proposed rules for 25 CFR parts 211 and 225, it has been determined that 25 CFR part 212 will not be removed. Public response to the proposed rule contained reasonable and compelling arguments for retaining 25 CFR part 212 and for restructuring the format of the regulation.

Abstract: The BIA is proposing to revise the regulations at 25 CFR 214 governing management of non-oil and gas minerals on Osage Reservation Lands in Oklahoma. CFR Citation: 25 CFR 296

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) is proposing to add a new part 296 to formalize the procedures applicable to the priority ranking process for Adult and Juvenile Detention Centers projects federally owned, leased, contracted or granted. The new part 296 will be added under a new subchapter P of title 25 of the Code of Federal Regulations entitled

VOL 58 ISS 78 AP 26 1993 UMI

Facilities Management Program. The priority ranking process will result in the establishment of a priority listing of Adult and Juvenile Detention Center projects for possible funding as authorized and appropriated by Congress. Because these are procedural regulations, they do not entail any additional cost; the benefits include a more effective program.

Legal Authority: 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9; 25 USC 13

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs has recently revised its regulations governing Courts of Indian Offenses to provide those courts with an updated code of laws and to clarify the jurisdiction of those courts and their relationships to tribal governments and the Department of the Interior.

New provisions concern drug abuse, abuse of psychotoxic substances, child abuse prostitution, domestic violence and increased maximum penalties for various offenses in the Code. Other added provisions include a change in the method of listing Indian reservations to which the Code applies, together with a repeal of the supersession provision by which tribal ordinances, inconsistent with the regulations, may override the Code's text. A clarifying provision on jurisdictional limitations is added, specifically excluding from jurisdiction under this part Federal employees acting within the scope of their employment.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 9; 25 USC 13

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On May 14, 1991, the Ute Mountain Tribal Council voted to retrocede the operation of the law enforcement services and tribal court programs citing ongoing problems which have hindered the fair and impartial administration of justice. This decision has created a jurisdictional void since neither State or Federal authorities have jurisdiction over minor offenses committed by Indians. To minimize the potential danger to the residents of the Ute Mountain Ute Reservation, the BIA is undertaking this rulemaking to authorize the establishment of Courts of Indian Offenses to fill this apparent jurisdictional void.

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs is proposing a new Part 10 in 25 CFR to establish standards for governing Indian adult and juvenile detention, holding and community residential facilities and programs. The current detention regulations in 25 CFR are over 20 years old and extremely limited. The proposed changes will cover all important issues governing detention and residential services. The standards will increase the bureau's capability to provide Indian tribes the direction to administer constitutionally sound detention and residential programs. It will also provide a preventative measure to potential litigation.

Legal Authority: 25 USC 640(d)

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 161

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations are necessary for implementation of the livestock and grazing control provisions of 25 USC 640(d). In 1982 the Federal District Court for Arizona abolished 25 CFR 153, Grazing Regulation for the Joint Use Administrative Area and ordered the Secretary to promulgate new regulations for the control of grazing and livestock for the former Joint Use Administrative Area. Due to a lack of tribal concurrence, regulations were not promulgated for lands partitioned to the Navajo Tribe. Navajo tribal concurrence has been recently obtained; therefore, the BIA needs to move forward with publication of these regulations. Any cost associated with the implementation of these regulations will be assumed within the BIA annual budget. Cost associated with compliance of the provisions of these regulations will be borne by the Navajo Tribe or its members. There is no associated cost to the general public.

Abstract: The present regulations contain an incomplete criminal code that does not cover many areas of the law that are usually in the laws of the States where the reservation is located The current regulations also contain very sketchy provisions on criminal and civil procedure. This rule proposes to update the sections on criminal offenses and create new sections on criminal procedures, domestic relations, probate proceedings, appellate proceedings and juvenile proceedings. This will provide the Courts with more complete and up-to-date proceedings and rules. Courts will have a six month period from the date of publication of the final rule to the effective date in which to revise their court codes. It is not anticipated that this revision will have any effect on the annual caseload for these courts or routine additional staffing. Therefore, the initiation of these rules should not result in additional costs.

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 67

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs is proposing to add a new part 67 to provide procedures to govern the preparation, certification, and approval of a descendancy roll of independent Seminole Indians of Florida. The Act of April 30, 1990, provides for the use and distribution of funds awarded the Seminole Indians in dockets 73, 151, and 73-A of the Indian Claims Commission. Section 7 directs the Secretary of the Interior to compile a roll of independent individuals of Seminole descent. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 25 USC 465; 25 USC 2202

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 151

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule will provide stronger and more consistent guidelines for reviewing trust applications than the current case-by-case review, which uses general criteria. The Secretary of the Interior announced on July 19, 1990, a new policy for Indian Tribes acquiring in trust for gaming and non-gaming purposes lands contiguous to or outside the tribe's existing reservation boundaries. This proposed revision will add two new sets of criteria that will be used in evaluating tribal off-reservation acquisition for gaming and non-gaming purposes.

Abstract: Responsibilities of Minerals Management Service include the collection of royalties, bonuses, rentals, and related revenues from Federal and Indian mineral leases. These monies are, for the most part, collected from the current designated payor on the lease. However, if MMS is unable to collect from the current payor, it must pursue collections from a prior payor(s), the lessee, or an assignee of the lease. Existing regulations are unclear as to the responsibilities and liabilities of the parties involved. Therefore, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to clarify payor, lessee, and assignee requirements and responsibilities.

Abstract: The development of this notice of proposed rulemaking resulted from the recommendation of a task force that examined many contributing causes to recent fatal accidents in the North Sea and the Gulf of Mexico. The task force identified areas where changes in regulations should be considered. This action considers changes to the regulations concerning better communication among personnel, protection of pipeline risers, safe fuel storage, fire survivability of the accommodation, and the placement of shutdown valves on pipelines as a means to isolate the pressurized hydrocarbons in the pipeline from potential danger that could result from a fire or other damage to the pipeline. An alternative is to leave the rules unchanged.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 202

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The current gas valuation regulations provided that when the lessee of any gas lease committed to a federally approved unitization or communitization agreement does not take the full share of production under the terms of the agreement, the entitled, but not taken, production is still subject to royalty payment and reporting requirements. This rulemaking would eliminate the requirement that the actual disposition of any part of production to which a lessee was entitled but did not take governs the valuation of that part. Under the rulemaking, the regulations would be amended to allow lessees to value their entitled, but not taken, production at prices based upon information that is accessible to the lessee. This rule will reduce the administrative burden for payors and MMS so that there is certainty in the determination of royalty values. The adoption of these rules would not affect the requirement in Indian leases and the current regulations for the performance of major portion analyses or dual accounting.

Abstract: Public Law 101-599 requires that the Secretary of Transportation establish standards to ensure continued burial of offshore pipelines lying between the mean high water mark and the point where the subsurface is under 15 feet of water as measured from mean low water. The Department of the Interior has jurisdiction over gathering pipelines on Federal offshore oil and gas leases. The rule would retain current incentives to continue production that has declined to its economic limit. The rule could result in a substantial increase in production of otherwise unrecoverable oil and gas. The alternative would be to leave the existing regulations in place.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218

Abstract: Section 10 of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act (OCSLA), 43 USC 1339, requires that a lessee or payor under an offshore lease submit a request to Minerals Management Service (MMS) for recoupment or refund of an overpayment (credit adjustment) within 2 years of the date of the original payment. However, current law does not provide for a time limitation on credit adjustments under onshore Federal or Indian leases similar to that provided in the OCSLA. This rule would add a new provision entitled "Limitations on Credit Adjustments" which would restrict credit adjustments without prior authorization to payments due within 5 years before the date of the adjustments. The rule provides that MMS could authorize credit adjustments with respect to payments made more than 5 years but less than 10 years before the date of the adjustments. However, credit adjustments with respect to any Abstract: The Debt Collection Act of 1982 (DCA), 31 USC 3716, provides for a Federal Agency's exercise of administrative offset to collect claims of the United States Government. The DCA instructs each Agency to prescribe regulations before collecting a claim by administrative offset. In accordance with the requirements of the DCS, the Minerals Management Service (MMS) is proposing new regulations governing collection by administrative offset of royalties, interest, and other amounts due under Federal and Indian oil, gas, and other mineral leases. Under this rule, collection by administrative offset would only be used after other attempts to collect the debt had been attempted by MMS.

Abstract: These revisions comprise some 15 minor changes and amendments to the regulations governing production rates and production measurement. The changes are being made to correct and alleviate several problems such as ambiguous language resulting in erroneous and undesirable interpretation, incorrect and outdated references, absence of provisions inadvertently dropped in previous revisions and the need to improve operational safety by adding minor requirements. The alternative is not to revise the regulations. Potential benefits include improved safety and environmental conditions, elimination of ambiguous provisions and correction of erroneous references.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334; 43 USC 1337

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250; 30 CFR 256

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would regulate unitization across the State and Federal jurisdictional boundary (revision of 8(g) of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act (OCSLA)) of the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of April 8, 1986. The rule would also revise the rules for prevention of waste caused by unrestrained competitive development (section 5(j) of the OCSLA). Revisions of parts 250 and 256 to implement sections 5(j) and 8(g) will not result in substantial increases in costs to industry. Successful completion of these revisions will clarify the questions raised as to the ramifications of these legislative actions. Nonaction will only continue the confusion regarding the ramifications of the mandate in section 5(j).

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1331 et seq; 42 USC 4332 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 280

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rule would revise regulations governing prelease activities for minerals other than oil and gas to make modifications similar to those being proposed for oil and gas activities. These changes would include requiring a notice for geological and geophysical scientific research activities and modifying proprietary terms for geophysical data and information and permit terms. The alternative is not to change the present requirements. The costs to those conducting prelease activities are not expected to significantly increase over the costs of complying with the current requirements.

1760. AMENDMENT OF REGULATIONS GOVERNING ASSESSMENTS FOR INCORRECT REPORTS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301 et seq; 25 USC 396 et seq; 25 USC 396a et seq; 30 USC 181 et seq; 30 USC 351 et seq; 30 USC 1701 et seq; 31 USC 9701; 43 USC 1301 et seq; 43 USC 1331 et seq; 43 USC 1801 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 216; 30 CFR 218

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: 30 CFR 216.40(b) and 218.40(b) authorize the Minerals Management Service (MMS) to assess an amount not to exceed $10 for each report received by the designated due date but which is incorrectly completed. The reports subject to this assessment are required to be submitted to MMS by royalty payors, lease operators, lessees, or other parties in accordance with statutes, regulations, contracts, orders, or terms of Federal or Indian mineral leases. The MMS regulations do not provide for an assessment for incorrect reports if the incorrect report is received after its designated due date. However, the administrative costs incurred by MMS to research and resolve reporting errors are identical whether or not the report is received timely or late. So that MMS may be compensated for all administrative costs incurred due to reporting errors, MMS is amending sections 216.40(b) and 218.40(b) to include as assessable, all reports that are submitted incorrectly regardless of whether or not the report was received by the designated due date or was received late.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 218.54 of 30 CFR of the MMS regulations provides for late-payment interest charges on oil and gas late royalty payments based on the rate applicable under section 6621 of the Internal Revenue Code, 26 U.S.C. 6621(a)(2) (Supp. 1987). However, MMS regulations applicable to solid minerals and geothermal resources late royalty payments provide for late payment interest charges based on the lower rate prescribed by the Department of the Treasury as the "Treasury Current Value of Funds Rate." The MMS is amending its solid minerals and geothermal resources regulations to provide for the higher interest rate authorized by section 6621 of the Internal Revenue Code. This rule amendment will provide for consistency in MMS regulations.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: MMS currently incorporates by reference 68 documents that describe recommended practices or design criteria that must be followed in conducting specific offshore operations. Many of these incorporated documents have been revised and replaced with new editions; therefore, MMS needs to update the offshore operating regulations by incorporation of new editions of documents to those incorporated by reference. Most new editions reviewed would be adopted; however, in some cases it may no longer be necessary to incorporate a specific document into the regulations. The costs to lessees to implement these amendments are not expected to significantly increase over the costs of complying with the current program under 30 CFR 250.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.18

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rule is intended to remove apparent inconsistencies in current regulations concerning the release of data and information submitted to MMS on certain MMS forms. Section 250.18 specifies periods of time that certain geological and geophysical data will be protected from disclosure to the public when submitted on specific forms. The alternatives of providing guidance through an OCS order or through a Notice to Lessees and Operators on a region-to-region basis fail to ensure that information is uniformly available to the public. This rulemaking does not involve any significant additional costs. Its benefits are the removal of ambiguity in the current regulations and the clear identification of items of data and information that are made available for public information.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218

Abstract: The MMS Auditing and Financial System (AFS) matches and applies each payment received to its corresponding report or bill. If a payment cannot be automatically matched and applied by the AFS because of inadequate or erroneous information, it must be manually matched and applied by MMS personnel. The manual matching of payments to reports and bills results in MMS incurring substantial costs so that the AFS can operate properly to account for and distribute royalties. This situation also delays the payment application process and can result in delay in distribution of royalties and related information to States and Indian Tribes and allottees. To recover the costs, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to add a new assessment amount not to exceed $250 per incident. The new assessment would encourage payors to submit their payment, when required, together with the applicable report or copy of the bill and for the same amount as the report or bill. The new assessment would also encourage payors to adequately identify payments to the report or bill to be paid.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1335

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 256

Abstract: This rulemaking would amend current regulations requiring lessee surety bonds. The monetary value of surety bonds designated in current regulations was established over 20 years ago and is seriously inadequate to protect the Government from loss due to lessee failure to meet the terms of the OCS lease for royalty payments, proper abandonment of wells, site cleanup, and ongoing lease operations. Bond requirements may be increased on a case-by-case basis, as an alternative to rule change. This might result in inconsistent requirements. The potential costs are whatever increase is incurred in obtaining a higher value bond. Benefits would be a reduced potential for Government loss and a greater protection of the public interest.

Abstract: Because royalty payments are a major source of income to many Indian allottees, and the only source in some instances, it has been a longstanding Department of the Interior policy that overpayments made by lessees and other royalty payors to Indians cannot be recovered by refund. This policy was established to prevent an undue financial burden on Indian allottees who may have limited financial means to refund the overpayment. However, the adopted policy permits lessees and payors to recoup overpayments as a credit against future rental or royalty accruals due to Indian tribes or allottees. Lessees and operators were instructed to follow this recoupment policy in "Notice to Lessees and Operators of Indian Oil and Gas Leases No. 1A" (NTL-1A), issued by the Conservation Division of U.S. Geological Survey in 1977. The MMS published revised final oil and gas product valuation regulations at 30 CFR part 206 on January 15, 1988 (53 FR 1184 and 53 FR 1230), effective March 1, 1988. Section 206.150(e)(2) of the revised regulations terminated NTL-1A. Although the Indian lease overpayment recoupment policy has been the same for many years, MMS believes that its (cont)

Abstract: There is a conflict in MMS regulations at 30 CFR 220.030 with the Federal Oil and Gas Royalty Management Act of 1982 (FOGRMA) as to the time period that an offshore net profit share lessee (NPSL) must maintain records and all other documentation pertaining to the NPSL capital account. Therefore, MMS is proposing to amend 30 CFR 250.030 to extend the time period to 6 years, from 36 months, consistent with the statutory requirement of FOGRMA. The MMS is also proposing to remove 30 CFR 220.033 which includes language that conflicts with the recordkeeping requirements of FOGRMA and MMS regulations at 30 CFR 212.50 and 212.51.

1771. AMENDMENTS TO 30 CFR 250.67—HYDROGEN SULFIDE

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.67

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rules for Hydrogen Sulfide are being amended to revise the requirements for visual and audible warning systems, personnel protection, hydrogen sulfide (H2S) and sulphur dioxide (SO2) detection and monitoring, and the criteria for the activation of visual and audible warning systems. These amendments are necessary to be consistent with the new personnel exposure limits for H2S and SO2 established by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Amending the rule would reduce personnel exposure limits, thereby decreasing the risks associated with hazardous environments. An NPRM was published in the Federal Register on August 15, 1990 (55 FR 33326), soliciting comments. The comments received were reviewed and revisions were written. Due to the extensive nature of the revisions, a decision was made to repropose the rule soliciting further comments. The costs to lessees to implement these amendments are not expected to significantly increase over the costs of complying with the current program.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule amends Minerals Management Service (MMS) regulations at 30 CFR part 250 that govern Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) reporting forms used for collecting information related to oil and gas and sulphur drilling and production in the OCS. The current OCS reporting forms are being updated and modernized as part of the effort to reduce the paperwork and respondent burden imposed on the public as required by the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980 (Pub. L. 96-511, 44 USC 3501 et seq.). These revisions are a result of an analysis by an MMS task force and comments received from industry in response to several Federal Register notices published in August 1990 on the proposed forms. These changes will enable MMS to process the data submitted by industry more efficiently, reduce the reporting requirements for industry, and establish a consistent format and syntax to facilitate submission of information by electronic data transmission.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1321; EO 12777

CFR Citation: 30 CFR Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, August 18, 1992.

Abstract: Regulations are being developed to implement the authority of Minerals Management Service (MMS) under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (FWPCA) as amended by the Oil Pollution Act of 1990. These regulations will address oil spill prevention and response in State submerged lands as well as in the Outer Continental Shelf. A nonregulatory alternative will not meet the mandate of the FWPCA as amended. The expected costs will depend on the extent to which existing practices in State and Federal waters meet the new mandated requirements. The expected benefits will be an assurance that oil spill prevention and response capability are being addressed on all facilities in both State and Federal waters.

Abstract: On May 9, 1988, the Minerals Management Service (MMS) published a Notice of Final Rulemaking in the Federal Register (53 FR 18408) to amend its regulations to provide for lease operators to report onshore production data to MMS as a result of the transfer of accounting responsibility from the Bureau of Land Management (BLM). The transfer of responsibility from BLM to MMS has been completed. The MMS has also completed installation of a new computer system. As a result, certain sections of 30 CFR part 216 relative to reporting requirements require amendment. The amendments are administrative changes only and will result in a reduction of operator reporting burden by the elimination of certain reporting forms. The amendments also clarify existing operator responsibilities for reporting operations information to MMS.

Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 206

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The existing regulations provide for the valuation of unprocessed gas, residue gas, or any gas plant product which is not sold pursuant to an arm's-length contract to be determined in accordance with a benchmark method. In the final regulations, MMS adopted as the first benchmark the lessee's gross proceeds received under its non-arm's-length transaction if they were equivalent to the gross proceeds received under comparable arm's-length contracts for like-quality production in the same field or area. The criteria to be considered in defining comparable contracts were also outlined. However, since the adoption of the revised regulations, numerous questions have been raised as to the interpretation of the first benchmark. These questions have identified the need to further clarify MMS's intention in this regard.

1779. OFFSETTING ROYALTY UNDERPAYMENTS AND OVERPAYMENTS BETWEEN DIFFERENT FEDERAL OR INDIAN LEASES (CROSS-LEASE NETTING)

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301 et seq; 25 USC 396 et seq; 25 USC 396a et seq; 25 USC 2101 et seq; 30 USC 181 et seq; 30 USC 351 et seq; 30 USC 1001 et seq; 30 USC 1701 et seq; 31 USC 9701; 43 USC 1301 et seq; 43 USC 1331 et seq; 43 USC 1801 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218; 30 CFR 230

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: It is MMS's current practice to only allow the offsetting of underpayments and overpayments within an individual lease and not between leases unless both of the leases are included in the same unitization or communitization agreement. However, it may not be appropriate, in certain cases of obvious payor reporting errors, for MMS to assess late payment interest charges or deny a request for refund of an overpayment on a Federal offshore lease which is subject to the filing and reporting requirements of section 10 of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act, 43 USC 1339. This rulemaking would amend MMS regulations to allow payors to offset royalty underpayments on one lease against overpayments on a different lease (referred to as cross-lease netting) in certain cases where reporting errors do not result in harm to the royalty recipients. The rule specifies the conditions that must be met before MMS would allow cross-lease netting.

Abstract: Regulations are being considered to amend the rules governing oil and gas and sulphur operations in the Outer Continental Shelf. The regulations would address plans to propose digital/electronic reporting requirements for well tests and for gas meter documents as part of the effort to move to electronic data interchange (EDI). The alternative is not to implement the new reporting requirements. The costs to lessees to implement these amendments are not expected to significantly increase over the costs of complying with the current program.

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service (MMS) is continually reviewing its operations relative to the collection and disbursement of royalties and other revenues from Federal and Indian mineral leases for improvements that can be made to improve efficiency. As a result of this ongoing process, MMS has revised its Form MMS-2014 (Report of Sales and Royalty Remittance) to provide for the reporting thereon of all sales and royalty information from any type of Federal or Indian mineral lease. Federal and Indian mineral leases include oil and gas leases, geothermal resources leases, and solid minerals leases. Therefore, MMS is amending its regulations to remove all references to Form MMS-4014 because that form will no longer be used after the effective date of this final rule. The consolidation of all payors reporting requirements on the revised Form MMS-2014 will simplify reporting requirements on the part of the payor and improve the efficiency of MMS' collection process.

Abstract: The Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's (OSM) regulations concerning the protection of historic properties from surface coal mining operations, promulgated on February 10, 1987, were remanded by the DC District Court on October 7, 1991, for failure to comply with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA). The Court held that the rules were based on the incorrect premise that the State permitting actions are not Federal undertakings and remanded the matter to the Secretary of the Interior to bring OSM into compliance with NHPA. Abstract: The proposed rule will establish standards for review and rebuttal of presumptions regarding ownership and control relationships between permit applicants and violators as well as between permittees and violators. The rule will also specify requirements for verifying whether the ownership and control information specified on a permit application is complete, require use of OSM's applicant violator computer system and other available data by regulatory authorities when conducting violation reviews and establish procedures for regulatory authorities to use in determining the status of outstanding violations. The rule will prescribe sanctions in cases where a permit applicant intentionally fails to provide complete or accurate ownership and control information. The rule will also require regulatory authorities to conduct an annual verification of certain ownership and control information for all permittees. In addition, the rule will specify measures for OSM to take should a state regulatory authority fail to implement these new requirements. 1801. DEFINITION AND CRITERIA FOR VALID EXISTING RIGHTS

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 761.5

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will amend the portions of the permanent program which address the circumstances which constitute valid existing rights to mine coal in areas where Congress has otherwise prohibited mining under section 522(e) of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977. This revision is in response to a court decision in round III of the litigation on OSM's permanent program regulations.

Abstract: Pursuant to the recently enacted Abandoned Mine Reclamation Act of 1990, the regulations found at 30 CFR subchapter R require revision and amendment to reflect and implement the new provisions contained in the statute. The subject provisions address the eligibility of both coal and noncoal reclamation projects and also relate to the collection and allocation of abandoned mine land fees to eligible reclamation projects, including the Rural Abandoned Mine Program and the Small Operator Assistance Program.

1806. BASIS FOR COAL WEIGHT DETERMINATION

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 870

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Some processors purchase raw coal from operators on an estimated clean coal basis. The Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's rules require reclamation fee payment on the actual gross weight of the clean or raw coal at the time of sale, transfer or use. Records required to document the basis of a coal sale are not clearly defined. Legislative changes provide OSM the authority to audit coal preparation plants, tipples and loading facilities. Records a person operating a coal preparation plant must maintain on coal purchases are not specified in regulation. A person operating a preparation plant is not liable for fee payment on coal sales that exceed purchases. This rule would allow an operator who sells coal to a processor, who actually cleans the coal, to pay fees on the same basis on which the operator is paid by the processor. The person who operates a coal preparation plant would be liable for reclamation fee payment on all coal sold that exceeds coal purchased. Records to be maintained to document the basis for coal sales would be defined in regulation.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 617; 43 USC 391; 43 USC 485; 43 USC 390; 5 USC 552

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 415

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Colorado River water has been apportioned for consumptive use among water users with valid water rights within the States of Arizona, California, and Nevada. Future requests for delivery of this water are expected to exceed the amount that will be available. Formal rules will help ensure that water is put to beneficial use and that unauthorized uses are eliminated. The rules will provide a basis for the Secretary of the Interior to curtail unauthorized water use and establish a due process for water users to appeal adverse action decisions. Without formal rules and an appeals process, it is likely that the Secretary would be unable to enforce an action to curtail unauthorized water use and be subject to legal action by valid water users for not preventing unauthorized diversions of water. The initial cost of implementing the rule is estimated at $125,000; annual costs thereafter - $12,000, all costs in 1991 dollars. Costs are expected to be recovered from beneficiaries.

Abstract: Issuance of a revision to 30 CFR 602 is designed to correct a deficiency identified by the Inspector General. Under the existing rule, the Bureau of Mines has not been able to bill and collect the $5 per thousand cubic feet price premium for Bureau helium purchased for sale to Federal agencies but sold to commercial accounts. The Inspector General estimated that $293,000 and $437,000 went uncollected in 1989 and 1990, respectively. Estimates of any future benefits are uncertain because of changing market conditions.

The rule also provides the States flexibility by permitting the use of abstracts of criminal conviction records, if that option makes providing the needed records easier.

The rule will help the States meet the requirements of Section 507 of the Immigration Act of 1990, and will help the Service in expelling from the United States, aliens who have been convicted of violating criminal laws of this country.

Abstract: The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (IRCA) imposes sanctions against employers who hire aliens not authorized to work. Since many of the nation's agricultural employers have become dependent upon such workers to meet production and harvesting needs, Congress created the Special Agricultural Workers (SAW) Program and the Replenishment Agricultural Workers (RAW) Program to grant permanent resident status to certain agricultural workers. To clarify the process through which employers can employ nonimmigrant seasonal and temporary agricultural workers, Congress moved agricultural employment from H-2 classification into a separate H-2A class, and incorporated a labor certification process into the statute. This rule establishes special H-2A regulatory criteria. It supplements the Department of Labor's rules covering the temporary agricultural labor certification process. This rule amends Service regulations relating therefore to temporary alien workers seeking classification under section 101(a)(15)(H) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

The rule would permit an immigration officer to ask for a subpoena from an immigration judge. It deletes the Regional Director, Office of Professional Responsibility, as an official who may issue a subpoena and/or designate service of same. The new rule specifically permits the subpoenaing of demonstrative evidence. Finally, the rule authorizes specified Immigration Service officials as well as special inquiry officers, to issue subpoenas on behalf of the service subsequent to commencement of any proceeding.

Abstract: This rule amends 8 CFR 208 by providing that a claim to asylum or withholding of deportation may be based on persecution or a fear of persecution due to enforcement of any foreign nation's coercive population control policies of forced abortions or sterilization. These humanitarian provisions are necessary in order to provide protection for foreign nationals seeking asylum or withholding of deportation as a result of such policies. The changes will conform with the President's foreign policy and will provide guidance for adjudication of asylum and withholding of deportation claims.

Abstract: This proposed rule will revise the requirement that all supporting documents submitted by individuals applying for immigration benefits be accompanied by certified copies or that copies be certified by designated INS personnel at the time of receipt for retention with the petition(s) or application(s). Available data do not show a significant number of rescission/revocation actions based on fraudulent claims to warrant continuing to require that all documents in support of a request for an immigration benefit be certified. The public will be less burdened with having to produce and pay for certified copies. The public will also have to spend less time standing in line at an INS office waiting for their documents to be read and matched for certification.

Implementation date for TPS Program and for designation of El Salvador

Abstract: This rule implements a new section 244A of the Immigration and Nationality Act, established by section 302 of the Immigration Act of 1990, IMMACT, Pub. L. 101-649, November 29, 1990. This rule sets forth procedures for making application for Temporary Protected Status and provides, in accordance with the act, an opportunity for eligible individuals to temporarily remain and work in the United States until it is safe for them to return to their homeland.

This regulation also provides for the designation of other countries for Temporary Protected Status and specifies when such designations are to expire and discusses fees for EAD Authorization Document.

Regulation also provides an exception to the registration deadlines for TPS for persons who were in valid immigrant or non-immigrant status during the initial registration period. The regulation also updated the application process to conform with current procedures and reflect changes made by IMMACT.

Final Rule Stage

Abstract: This rule removes 8 CFR 245.9 which requires that all applicants for adjustment of status to that of permanent residence be interviewed by an immigration officer, except those applicants who are under the age of 14, or who are clearly ineligible for having lived or worked illegally in the United States or who, prior to November 20, 1990, filed an application under the provisions of the Cuban Adjustment Act of November 2, 1966.

This rule will remove the mandatory interview requirement in favor of the discretionary use of the interview for adjustment of status.

The existing regulations implementing the anti-discrimination provisions of section 274B of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. 1324b, need to be modified to incorporate the Immigration Act of 1990 amendments As currently written, portions of the existing regulations conflict with the amended statute. Semiannual Agenda of Regulations AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Labor.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations selected for review or development.

SUMMARY: This document sets forth the Department's semiannual agenda of regulations that have been selected for review or development during the coming year. The agenda complies with the requirements of both Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act. The agenda lists all regulations that are expected to be under review or development between April 1993 and April 1994, as well as those completed during the past 6 months.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Roland G. Droitsch, Acting Assistant Secretary, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy, U.S. Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue NW., Room S-2312, Washington, DC 20210, (202) 219-9058.

Note: Information pertaining to a specific regulation can be obtained from the agency contact listed for that particular regulation.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act require the semiannual publication in the Federal Register of an agenda of regulations.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act became effective on January 1, 1981, and applies only to regulations for which a notice of proposed rulemaking was issued on or after that date. It requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda listing all the regulations it expects to propose or promulgate that are likely to have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" (5 U.S.C. 602). Executive Order 12291 became effective February 17, 1981, and in substance, requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda listing all the regulations it expects to have under active consideration for promulgation, proposal, or review during the coming 1-year period.

As permitted by law, the Department of Labor is combining the publication of its agendas under the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291.

The Department is committed to issuing and enforcing all regulatory actions necessary to protect workers and others, as well as to carry out its responsibilities under the many statutes and Executive order programs it administers. However, in order to allow me and my staff to have a sufficient opportunity to review the regulatory plans of the Department, many of the dates for next action are not shown and the nature of the next action to be taken may be undetermined. For example, more than half of the safety and health standards on which OSHA has been working fall into this category.

All interested members of the public are invited and encouraged to let departmental officials know how our regulatory efforts can be improved and, of course, to participate in and comment on the review or development of the regulations listed on the agenda.

Robert B. Reich,
Secretary of Labor

2021. COORDINATED ENFORCEMENT OF FARM LABOR PROTECTIVE STATUTES

Legal Authority: 29 USC 49 et seq; 29 USC 201 et seq; 29 USC 651 et seq; 29 USC 1801 et seq; 8 USC 1188(g)(2); 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 42

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department intends to revise its regulations for coordinated enforcement of farm protective statutes. The rule will clarify existing regulatory language and update the regulations by making nomenclature and other technical amendments. The sections also will be reorganized for clarification. These regulations were first promulgated in 1980 to coordinate the farm labor enforcement activities of the Department's Employment and Training Administration, the Employment Standards Administration, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and the Office of the Solicitor of Labor (45 FR 39489). The regulations establish a National Farm Labor Coordinated Enforcement Committee, which meets quarterly, consisting of the heads of the above DOL agencies, to oversee that coordination. A Regional Farm Labor Coordinated Enforcement Committee, which meets quarterly, is established in each DOL regional office. The Regional Committee is made up of the head of each of the above Agencies' regional offices. Each Regional Committee holds at least one annual public meeting to discuss farm labor issues.

Additional Information: Since 1980, a number of changes have taken place in DOL's farm labor activities, such as: The Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act has been replaced by the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act; the title of the head of the National Committee has been changed from Under Secretary to Deputy Secretary; the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 has amended the Immigration and Nationality Act, authorizing DOL to enforce work contracts executed by employers of alien (H-2A) farmworkers; the role of States in operating the Employment Service under the Wagner-Peyser Act was enhanced in 1982; regional offices of the Employment Standards Administration no longer exist and the regional farm labor enforcement role is now coordinated by the Regional Administrator for Wage Hour; and the Assistant Secretary for Policy has assumed a role in farm labor programs at the national level. These and other changes necessitate updating the coordinated enforcement regulations.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 203

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 570

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 3(1) of the Fair Labor Standards Act requires the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations with respect to minors between 14 and 16 years of age ensuring that the periods and conditions of their employment do not interfere with their schooling, health, or well-being. The Secretary also is directed to designate occupations that may be particularly hazardous for minors 16 and 17 years of age. Child Labor Regulation No. 3 sets forth the permissible industries and occupations in which 14- and 15-year olds may be employed. In addition, this regulation specifies the number of hours in a day and in a week, and time periods within a day that such minors may be employed. The nonagricultural hazardous occupations orders which prohibit the employment of minors in such occupations are also contained in 29 CFR 570. Changes in technology and job content over the years require a review of the regulations to ensure the safety and health of such minors and at the same time avoid unnecessary restrictions on their employment opportunities. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 213(a)(1)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 541

Abstract: These regulations set forth the criteria used in the determination of the application of the Fair Labor Standards Act exemption for "executive," "administrative," "professional" and "outside sales employees" from the minimum wage and overtime requirements of the Act. The existing regulation was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief. A final rule increasing the salary test criteria was published on 01/13/81 (46 FR 3010) and was scheduled to become effective on 02/13/81. On 02/12/81 (46 FR 11972) an indefinite stay of the final rule was published. On 03/27/81 (46 FR 18998) a proposal to suspend the final rule indefinitely was published with comments due by 04/28/81. As a result of numerous comments and petitions received from industry groups regarding the duties and responsibilities tests as set forth in the regulations, as well as recent case law developments, the Department concluded that a more comprehensive review of these regulations was needed and decided to reopen the comment period and broaden the scope of the review to include all aspects of the regulations. Abstract: Public Law 103-3, the Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993, which becomes effective on August 5, 1993, requires employers with 50 or more employees to provide up to 12 weeks of unpaid leave for "eligible employees" to use for the care of a newborn or newly adopted child, for the care of a family member with a serious medical condition, or for their own illness. It also requires employers to maintain health insurance coverage and job protection for the duration of the leave, and sets minimum length of service and hours of work requirements before employees become eligible. Abstract: The Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, as amended (LMRDA) requires covered labor organizations to file an annual financial report with the Department of Labor. On October 30, 1992, final rules were published in the Federal Register which revised the detailed annual financial reports (Form LM-2 or LM-3) and issued a new abbreviated annual financial report (Form LM-4). The effective date of the October 30, 1992 final rules is December 31, 1993. This revision proposed to extend the effective date from December 31, 1993 to December 31, 1994 because of problems encountered by labor organizations and the Department in connection with efforts to implement the revised reporting forms and because further study of the revisions may be necessary, including evaluating whether modification or rescission of some or all of the revisions may be appropriate.

2041. EMPLOYMENT OF HOMEWORKERS IN CERTAIN INDUSTRIES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 211

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 530

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation sets forth restrictions on industrial homework and governs the issuance of certificates authorizing the employment of homeworkers in certain industries, pursuant to Section 11(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). As originally issued, these regulations restricted the employment of industrial homework in seven industries: knitted outerwear; women's apparel; jewelry; buttons and buckles; gloves and mittens; handkerchiefs; and embroideries. The ban was removed on homework in the knitted outerwear industry by the Department on 11/9/81, following extensive hearings and public comment. This action was subsequently upheld by the District Court for the District of Columbia. However, on appeal the ban was reimposed 2/29/84 by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. On 3/27/84, the Department published a proposed rule rescinding the ban on homework in the knitted outerwear industry only. In addition to soliciting comments on the proposed rescission, the Department sought comments on various alternatives to such action (49 FR 11786). On 11/5/84, a final rule was published lifting the ban on homework for (cont)

Based on analysis of the results of its enforcement experience under the new certification procedure, and review of comments from a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published on August 21, 1986 (51 FR 30036), a proposal was published on March 30, 1988 (53 FR 10342) which included enforcement mechanisms to enhance compliance among employers of homeworkers. The comment period was later extended to May 13, 1988 (53 FR 15063). The proposal also excluded the women's apparel industry and stated that this industry would be the subject of separate rulemaking. A final rule was published November 10, 1988 (53 FR 45706). An ANPRM concerning women's apparel homework was published December 30, 1988 (53 FR 53344). Public hearings on this issue were held in seven cities during March and April 1989. The public comment period on the ANPRM closed on May 5, 1989 (54 FR 11008). Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 101-157; 29 USC 201 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 517

Abstract: The Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1989 were enacted on November 17, 1989. Among other provisions, the amendments provide that employers may pay employees under the age of 20, under certain conditions, a wage rate of at least 85 percent of the minimum wage, but not less than $3.35 per hour, for a period up to 90 days. An employee who has been paid at the training wage for 90 days can be employed by any other employer at the training wege an additional 90 days, but only if that employer provides on-the-job training in accordance with regulations required to be issued by the Department of Labor. The training wage provisions took effect April 1, 1990 and expire March 31, 1993. The statute provides that the Secretary of Labor shall issue regulations containing criteria for what qualifies as on-the-job training, and for defining what constitutes the requisite proof of previous periods of employment with other employers that is required to be provided by employees. Abstract: The Service Contract Act (SCA) applies to Federal contracts principally for the furnishing of services through the use of service employees and, on contracts over $2,500 where the predecessor contract was not subject to a collective bargaining agreement, requires the Department of Labor to determine locally prevailing wages and fringe benefits to be paid to various classifications of workers on the contract. Prevailing wage determinations issued by the Department become part of the Federal contract and establish the minimum compensation for employees performing on that contract. The proposed rule would provide for a variance from the Act's requirement for locality-based fringe benefit determinations, pursuant to Section 4(b) of SCA, to reflect the Department's practice of issuing fringe benefit amounts derived from data collected on a nationwide basis. Section 4(b) of SCA permits variances from the Act's requirements in "special circumstances" where the Secretary determines the variance is "necessary and proper in the public interest or to avoid serious impairment of government business, and is in accord with the (cont)

Abstract: This final rule removes the regulations found at 29 CFR Part 470 which implemented Executive Order 12800. On February 1, 1993, President Clinton signed Executive Order 12836, revoking Executive Order 12800 and instructing executive agencies to revoke any orders, rules, or regulations implementing Executive Order 12800. 29 CFR Part 470 required government contractors and subcontractors to post notices informing their employees that under federal law, they cannot be required to join a union or maintain membership in a union to retain their jobs, and employees who chose not to be union members may object to the use of their compulsory union dues and fees collected pursuant to a lawful union-security agreement for activities other than collective bargaining, contract administration, and grievance adjustment, and may be entitled to a refund and an appropriate reduction in future payments. Part 470 also required

Abstract: These regulations are being developed to implement the monetary provisions contained in Sec. 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. The Act requires the Secretary of Labor to specify the percentage of prior salary which an "eligible protected employee" would receive as a benefit payment under the Act. An eligible protected employee is a person who has had at least 4 years of employment with a certificated air carrier as of October 24, 1978 and who loses his or her job during the ten years following such date in a bankruptcy or major employment contraction if and only if the Department of Transportation determines that the principal causes of such job loss was deregulation. On May 17, 1984 the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia held that Section 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act was unconstitutional. On July 16, 1985, the U.S. Court of Appeals decided that the employee protection provisions of Section 43 were severable from the legislative veto provisions. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled on March 25, 1987 that the legislative veto provisions were unconstitutional but the first right-to-hire provisions were constitutional, therefore, rulemaking can proceed on the (cont)

Abstract: This regulation amends 20 CFR Parts 626 and 638, Job Corps Regulations under Title IV-B of the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA). These amendments are required so that the Job Corps regulations will conform to the Job Training Reform Amendments of 1992 (Amendments). It should be noted that no major changes in Job Corps policy or program content/design are necessitated by the Amendments. The proposed rulemaking involves changes in (1) language related to income eligibility, (2) definition of "family" and "family of one," (3) language defining eligibility for Job Corps through receipt of food stamps, (4) provision for a portion of the total Job Corps enrollment to come from persons who are age 22 through 24, and (5) establishment of annual performance standards for centers and other program components. Significance: Agency Priority

Abstract: This proposed rule would replace outdated administrative regulations for the unemployment insurance (UI) program grants to States with reference to more current common administrative requirements for State governments codified elsewhere by the Department of Labor (DOL). Because of certain unique needs of the UI program, this action would also cover UI program exceptions to these requirements and clarifications of Employment and Training Administration (ETA) policy in applying requirements to State grantees. Abstract: Regulation 29 CFR 2510.3-3(d)(2)(ii) describes the circumstances under which a plan participant receiving a distribution of benefits ceases to be a participant covered under the plan. Under the existing regulation, a participant covered under a pension plan loses his status as such where he receives an annuity contract guaranteeing his benefits from an insurance company licensed to do business in a state. Abstract: Section 101(d) of ERISA provides that when an employer maintaining a plan other than a multiemployer plan fails to make a required installment or other payment required to meet minimum funding standards under section 302 to a plan before the 60th day following the due date, the employer shall notify each participant and beneficiary of such failure. Section 101(d) also provides that the notice shall be made at such time and in such manner as the Secretary shall provide. Because OBRA 1989 added section 502(c)(3) to permit the imposition of substantial penalties upon employers who fail to give the notice required by section 101(d), there will be an increased need for regulatory guidance by the Secretary as to the time and manner in which notice under section 101(d) must be provided.

2077. OBLIGATIONS OF FEDERAL CONTRACTORS AND SUBCONTRACTORS; NOTICE OF EMPLOYEE RIGHTS CONCERNING PAYMENT OF UNION DUES OR FEES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: EO 12800

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 470

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation will implement E.O. 12800 which requires government contractors and subcontractors to post notices informing their employees that (1) under federal law they cannot be required to join a union or maintain membership in a union to retain their jobs, and (2) employees who choose not to be union members may object to the use of their compulsory union dues and fees for activities other than collective bargaining, contract administration, and grievance adjustment, and may be entitled to a refund and an appropriate reduction in future payments. The proposed regulation, in accordance with E.O. 12800, also requires that, where applicable, each government contracting agency include certain provisions of the Order in its government contracts, and that government contractors and subcontractors include these provisions in their nonexempt subcontracts and purchase orders.

Abstract: This proposed regulatory amendment deals with the information that unions must disclose concerning their financial condition and operations under statutes requiring them to file financial reports (Form LM-2 or LM-3) with the Secretary. In view of developments in decisional law and accounting standards, it has been determined by the Secretary and announced by the President that unions should be required to disclose their finances in terms of the functions of their disbursements and generally accepted accounting principles.

Abstract: The Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, as amended (LMRDA), requires covered labor organizations to file an annual financial report with the Department of Labor. The regulations currently require unions to file detailed annual financial reports (Form LM-2 or LM-3). The revision will implement an abbreviated annual financial report (Form LM-4) which may be filed by unions having less than $10,000 in annual receipts. The revised regulation will lessen the financial reporting burden on small labor organizations, many of which have frequent officer changes, part-time unpaid officers, and officers with minimal accounting/bookkeeping expertise.

Abstract: MSHA published a final rule revising safety standards for ventilation of underground coal mines on May 15, 1992. On November 13, 1992, MSHA stayed sections 75.313 and 75.344(a)(1) until July 1, 1993. On November 16, 1992, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit issued an order staying the application of section 75.321(a). MSHA plans to repropose these provisions to address the concerns expressed by the mining community. Further, as a result of discussions with the mining community, the Agency will be considering certain other provisions for reproposal.

Abstract: Hearing impairment is a serious occupational hazard in the mining industry. Many miners are consistently exposed to noise levels that are near maximum levels currently permitted by MSHA. As a result, miners may be suffering hearing impairment, notwithstanding existing MSHA noise standards. MSHA is using comments and information submitted in response to the December 1989 ANPRM to develop a proposed rule which would establish noise standards to apply to all mining.

Abstract: The advance notice of proposed rulemaking published in December 1991 requested comments on how to address the hazards of working in confined spaces. In mining operations, the majority of the fatalities associated with confined spaces occur in storage bins, hoppers, and stockpiles. The primary hazards to miners occur from being trapped by shifting piles of loose materials, falling into materials, and being struck by overhanging materials. Many hazards are identical to those confined space hazards that exist in general industry for which OSHA issued a proposed rule on June 5, 1989 (54 FR 24080).

2086. WATERLINES IN BELT CONVEYOR ENTRIES

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75, subpart L

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: MSHA currently requires waterlines to be installed along all belt conveyors in underground coal mines. Potential firefighting problems exist whenever air used to ventilate belt conveyor entries moves in an outby direction. Waterlines located in these entries are susceptible to severe damage caused by the spread of fire to the outby areas of where the water is needed to fight the fire. MSHA is currently evaluating the need to revise this regulation so that waterlines are located to effectively fight all fires, regardless of the direction of air flow.

Abstract: Currently 30 CFR 75.1101-23 requires each operator of an underground coal mine to adopt a program for mine evacuation in the event of an emergency, such as fire or explosion. However, the existing standard does not directly address heat sensing and carbon monoxide detection systems and the actions to be taken when such systems activate an alarm. In addition, regular review and update of firefighting and evacuation plans is not required by the existing standard. This rulemaking would address these issues.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Abstract: During the past decade, diesel-powered equipment has been introduced into the underground coal mining industry in increasing numbers. MSHA does not have regulations that specifically address the health hazards associated with the particulate in the exhaust emitted by diesel-powered equipment in underground mines. In July 1990 the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health issued an exploratory risk assessment for diesel particulate based on an animal study. The Agency is in the early stages of developing a permissible exposure limit to control miners' exposure to diesel exhaust and reduce the incidence of illness and disease related to this substance in the mining industry. In January 1992, MSHA issued an advance notice of proposed rulemaking in which the Agency requested public comments on a series of issues relating to health effects, methods of monitoring to measure exposure, duration and frequency of exposure, and technological and economic feasibility. MSHA expects to address the appropriate exposure levels for diesel particulate in rulemaking after the public comments and data can be collected (cont)

Abstract: In June 1991, the Secretary established an advisory committee to make recommendations concerning the conditions under which air coursed through the belt entry could be safely used in the face areas of underground coal mines. A series of six public advisory committee meetings began in April 1992, with the final meeting held in September 1992. After reviewing extensive amounts of material and after many hours of deliberation, the committee reached its conclusions and issued its final report to the Secretary in November 1992. The advisory committee made consensus recommendations with respect to: (1) the conditions under which belt haulage entries could be safely used as intake air courses to ventilate working places; (2) minimum velocities in conveyor belt haulageways; and (3) ventilation of escapeways. MSHA will review the recommendations in the report and proceed with regulatory action.

2092. EXAMINATIONS OF SURFACE WORK AREAS

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 77.1713

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under 30 CFR 77.1713 coal mine operators are required to conduct examinations of each active working area of surface mines and active surface installations during each shift. Any hazardous conditions detected must be entered into a report of such examination along with a description of corrective actions taken. The Agency has interpreted this standard to exclude surface work areas of underground mines. The possibilities for hazards associated with such areas are numerous. The majority of the injuries and fatalities are a result of hazardous conditions not detected and corrected. This rulemaking would revise the standard to apply the on-shift examination requirement to surface such areas of underground mines. By conducting an on-shift examination of hazardous conditions in these areas, the mine operator will better guarantee a safe working environment for the miners and a reduction in accidents.

Abstract: MSHA has several existing provisions that require the certification or qualification of individuals to perform certain tasks at mines. However, the Agency has no formal procedures for revoking a person's certification or qualification when evidence indicates that the individual does not adhere to required regulatory procedures. The Agency intends to develop generic procedures for decertification of individuals who no longer meet the requirements to be certified or qualified, or who have failed to comply with the law in their role as a certified or qualified person.

On October 16, 1992 (57 FR 47524) MSHA published a proposed rule addressing certain stayed provisions of the January 18, 1991 final rule. MSHA's proposed rule addressed the following stayed provisions: definitions of "blast site," "magazine," and "storage facility," the requirements of storage of packaged blasting agents, the location of explosive material storage facilities, vehicles used to transport explosives, primer protection, loading and blasting, double trunklines in nonelectric initiation systems, hazards of excessive temperatures and burning explosive material. Abstract: MSHA has an established mining equipment approval program which includes evaluation criteria and corresponding safety standards requiring the use and maintenance of approved equipment. However, existing approval regulations do not generally apply to the diesel-powered equipment now being used in coal mines. In July 1988 an advisory committee convened by the Secretary of Labor made recommendations to the Secretary concerning standards for the use of diesel-powered equipment in underground coal mines. Based on those recommendations, MSHA published a proposed rule that addressed the approval and use of diesel equipment, including monitoring requirements for certain diesel emissions. Abstract: MSHA's proposed rule incorporates permissible exposure limits which are applicable to the hazards encountered in metal and nonmetal mines and coal mines. The final rule will update permissible exposure limits and address methods of controlling such limits. Permissible exposure limits and standards for use of respiratory protective equipment will replace outdated incorporations by reference. The final rule also will update asbestos standards. Other issues being considered are: requirements for exposure monitoring; precautions for handling restricted-use chemicals; miner observation of monitoring; notification to workers of overexposures; miner access to exposure monitoring records; medical surveillance and transfer of miners required to use respirators and miners using certain carcinogens. Public hearings were held in June and October 1990 and March 1991.

2099. EXPERIENCED MINER AND SUPERVISOR TRAINING

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811; 30 USC 825

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 48

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: MSHA proposed to amend the definition of "experienced miner" to mean a miner who has had one year of mining experience and, for new miners hired after October 13, 1978, has completed new miner training. MSHA proposed to strengthen the training requirements for experienced miners by adding course requirements. Also, MSHA proposed to delete the supervisory personnel exemption from the training requirements. The comments received by MSHA on its September 1991 proposed rule addressed such issues as the appropriate training for different types of mining, the need for training of contractors, training for construction workers, and other suggested training changes. MSHA is reviewing these comments to determine the appropriateness of any further changes to the Agency's training regulations. Public hearings on the proposed rule were held in July 1992. MSHA intends to complete the more limited rulemaking of the current proposal by publishing a final rule in April 1993.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 14; 30 CFR 18; 30 CFR 75

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed rule would implement new procedures and requirements for testing and approval of flame-resistant conveyor belts to be used in underground mines. The proposed revisions would replace the existing flame test for acceptance of flame-resistant conveyor belts specified in agency regulations. The proposal would also include current terminology. Current regulations require that conveyor belts be flame resistant in accordance with specifications of the Secretary. Conforming amendments to safety standards are being proposed as part of this rulemaking.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 18; 30 CFR 75

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would apply to high-voltage longwall electric face equipment used in underground coal mines. Presently, 30 CFR 75.1002 precludes the use of high-voltage cables within 150 feet of pillar workings. Therefore, mine operators have had to file petitions for modification so that they may use high-voltage longwall equipment. High-voltage longwall equipment would still be required to comply with the requirements of part 18, but this rulemaking would address additional safety requirements for the use of high-voltage longwall equipment, including trailing cables, motor, and shearer cables.

2102. SAFETY STANDARDS FOR OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE OF MACHINERY AND EQUIPMENT IN UNDERGROUND COAL MINES

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.1725(c)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Currently, 30 CFR 75.1725(c) requires that the power be cut off and the machinery be blocked against motion before repairs can be done. MSHA proposes to revise this standard to clarify that activities involved in extending or retreating conveyor belts be considered maintenance. The hazards that persons are exposed to while extending conveyor belts are essentially the same as those involved in more routine belt maintenance such as replacement or adjustment of rollers and installing and splicing new sections of belt.

Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 100

Abstract: The final rule revises MSHA's procedures in 30 CFR part 100 for proposing civil penalties under the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977. The rule is responsive to a November 21, 1989, Order of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. The rules applies a regular assessment, rather than a single penalty, to a timely abated non-significant and substantiated (non-S&S) violation at a mine with an excessive history of violations. The changes are intended to encourage greater overall mine operator compliance with MSHA's safety and health standards, thereby improving miner safety and health.

Abstract: On January 19, 1989, OSHA modified (54 FR 2332) the Z table permissible exposure limits of 29 CFR 1910.1000 in response to current scientific data. Section 6(b) of the Act requires where appropriate, provision for medical surveillance in each 6(b) rulemaking for a harmful substance. A generic standard for medical surveillance would satisfy the requirements of the Act thus enabling the Agency to deal directly with the narrower issues of the revision of the tables. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on September 27, 1988, (53 FR 37595) to acquire additional information. OSHA also intends to review its compliance experience with medical surveillance provisions and seek experienced medical opinion in the form of a symposium or other public discussion. In addition, OSHA initiated a survey in 1990 to collect information regarding the prevalence and effectiveness of current medical surveillance programs. OSHA will determine whether or not to proceed with rulemaking.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655

CFR Citation: 29 CFR Not yet determined

Abstract: Health complaints related to indoor air quality (IAQ) have increased significantly following energy conservation measures instituted in the early seventies. Such measures have generally reduced the infiltration of outside air, allowing the build-up of indoor air contaminants. Adverse health effects associated with indoor air contaminants are classified as: (1) sick building syndrome which is characterized by general complaints that may include headaches, fatigue, nausea, mucous membrane (eye, nose, and throat) irritation, coughs, and muscle pain; and (2) building-related illness which describes those specific medical conditions of known etiology which can often be documented by physical signs and laboratory findings. These include respiratory allergies and Legionnaires' disease. A particular concern with matters dealing with indoor air quality is exposure to passive tobacco smoke (PTS). A wide range of health effects caused by passive exposure to tobacco smoke have been reported by the Surgeon General, the National Research Council, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and private researchers, as well as by citizens reporting (cont)

Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: health effects due to exposure to passive smoke while at work. These effects range from acute annoyance and eye and respiratory tract irritation to the development of chronic pulmonary disease, cardiovascular disease, and lung cancer. OSHA received two petitions for an Emergency Temporary Standard (ETS) in May 1987. Both requested an ETS to prohibit smoking in all indoor workplaces except certain specified areas. OSHA determined that available data did not demonstrate the existence of a "grave danger," due to workplace exposure to passive tobacco smoke, as defined in Section 6(c) of the OSH Act. OSHA, therefore, denied the petitions on September 1, 1989. In response to the OSHA denial, a suit was filed by the Action on Smoking and Health (ASH) in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia D.C. Circuit for a review of the Agency's decision and for an order pursuant to 5 USC, Section 706 setting aside the denial. The Court upheld OSHA's decision not to issue an ETS in an unpublished decision issued on May 10, 1991. OSHA published a request for information on Indoor Air Quality September 20, 1991 (56 FR 47892). Comment period was extended to March 20, 1992.

programs are: (1) management commitment and employee involvement; (2) worksite analysis to anticipate and prevent harmful occurrences; (3) hazard prevention afforded employees; and (4) safety and health training. Successfully implemented programs generally have a lower incidence of occupationally-related illnesses and injuries. In particular, OSHA has found that companies that have implemented comprehensive safety and health programs and are participating in its Voluntary Protection Program have lost-workday case rates that range from one-fifth to one-third the rates experienced by average worksites within their industrial classification. Abstract: The present respiratory protection standards have been in place for more than 10 years and do not take into consideration the current state-of-the-art for respiratory protection. In addition, the general industry standard for respirators contains redundancies and includes several advisory provisions which should be eliminated or changed. Abstract: The existing standard has been proposed for revision because it is poorly formatted, contains unnecessary and restrictive provisions, and does not properly address the fall protection needs of certain areas and operations. The proposal raises several significant issues including (1) when fall protection systems must be installed, (2) whether work surface inspections are necessary to insure adequate structural integrity before commencing work, and (3) whether body belt systems or body harness systems are appropriate for use as fall protection. Abstract: The purpose of this regulatory action would be to update and revise a standard first issued in 1960. The current language in many instances addresses the hazards of cargo handling involving methods long since abandoned, and fails to address the serious hazards of newer methods. Because much of the current standard is out of date, there are problems with compliance. These revised requirements will provide both employers and employees with a blueprint for effective and safe work practices in the cargo handling industry. No alternative other than revision is contemplated. The annual cost of the revision is expected to be minimal -- less than five million dollars. In conjunction with the above regulatory action, the Marine Terminal Standard, Part 1917, will be revised to conform with changes made to Part 1918). Corrections to Part 1917 will also be made at this time.

Abstract: In the December 29, 1992, Federal Register, OSHA announced its intention to form a Negotiated Rulemaking Advisory Committee to negotiate issues associated with a revision to the existing steel erection standard. Four of the primary issues to be negotiated include the need to expand the scope and application of the existing standard; construction specifications and workplaces; written construction safety erection plans; and fall protection. Comments on forming the committee and nominations for representation on the committee are due by March 29, 1993.

Abstract: OSHA proposes to revise and update its existing Part 1910 and Part 1926 subparts covering welding, cutting and brazing operations, and to develop performance-oriented standards designed to reduce the number of deaths and injuries due to unsafe equipment and unsafe operations. There has been no substantial revision to these subparts since their adoption in 1971. A complete and comprehensive revision is needed at this time to bring the standards into line with the current state-of-the-art and updated consensus standards. In developing its proposed revision for for welding provisions in Part 1910 (General Industry), OSHA has determined that a similar revision to the Part 1926 (Construction Industry) welding provisions are warranted.

Abstract: On May 20, 1986, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) issued a report to OSHA, under Section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, stating that EPA has reasonable basis to conclude that the risk of injury to worker health from exposure to four glycol ethers during their manufacture, processing and use is unreasonable, and that this risk may be prevented or reduced to a significant extent by OSHA regulatory action. EPA gave OSHA 180 days in which to respond to its report. OSHA published its response on December 11, 1986, stating that OSHA had preliminarily concluded that occupational exposures to the subject glycol ethers at the current OSHA permissible exposure limits may present significant risks to the health of workers. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) on April 2, 1987,

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, November 15, 1991.

Abstract: Standards in 29 CFR Part 1910, Subpart H, which address the storage, handling and use of hazardous materials, such as compressed gases, acetylene, hydrogen, oxygen, liquified petroleum gases, and flammable and combustible liquids, will be revised. This regulatory action will provide a new approach to the revision of Subpart H and will occur in four phases in an expanded timeframe. The four phases will be: (1) Process Safety Management, (2) Flammable and Compressed Gases, (3) Hazardous Liquids, and (4) Explosives. The first phase of the proposed action is intended to better protect employees from unexpected releases of significant quantities of dangerous substances, and this phase has been completed. The remaining phases are intended to simplify, clarify and consolidate standards on hazardous materials and assist employers and employees in general industry to better understand and better focus on the hazards inherent in the use, handling, and storage of such materials.

Abstract: This regulatory action will complete the consolidation and updating of Parts 1915 and 1910 by providing shipyard employees with coverage under one comprehensive OSHA standard. This revision effort will involve the promulgation of 20 maritime subparts. Its completion will be done in stages and will relieve shipyard owners from the burden of having to comply with two sets of rules that are complex, prescriptive, confusing and, in some cases, conflicting. OSHA has established an Advisory Committee to assist the Agency is reviewing and revising these subparts. Experts from government, industry, unions and the States are working with OSHA on this project. OSHA is currently working on this project and has not collected sufficient information to determine the effect on paperwork burden. Benefits will include: (1) A system that is easier for employers, employees and government personnel to use; (2) increased reliability and utility of the records; (3) comprehensive records of the injury and illness experience at a given site will be available; and (4) employee involvement and awareness in safety and health matters will be enhanced.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Abstract: The permissible exposure limits (PELs) promulgated by OSHA in 1971 do not reflect current knowledge of the health effects of many toxic substances. OSHA published a proposal on June 7, 1988 (53 FR 20960) to amend and expand the PELs for general industry. On January 19, 1989 OSHA set new PELs for the toxic substances originally covered in 1971 and covered new substances in a single rulemaking that applied to general industry. On June 12, 1992 (57 FR 26001) OSHA published a proposed rule that would provide more protective PELs on hundreds of toxic airborne substances for workers in construction, agriculture and maritime. On July 10, 1992 the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals overturned the PELs update for general industry. Accordingly on August 18, 1992 (57 FR 37125) OSHA published a notice delaying hearings and extending indefinitely the comment period on the Air Contaminants Rule for Construction, Agriculture and Maritime. The Acting Solicitor General determined not to appeal the court's decision. Consequently, OSHA must determine the appropriate action in light of the judicial decision.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1926

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Hazards at construction sites resulting from the absence of effective lockout/tagout procedures to control hazardous energy appear to be caused by several factors, all associated with the nature of the construction industry. These factors basically relate to such considerations as the types of machines and equipment found in construction; the makeup of the industry in which employment is relatively "short term," lasting only as long as the length of the current project; the presence of multiple employers having different employer/employee relationships and the temporary nature of the "in-the-field" maintenance activity. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) expects the proposal to address lockout-related hazards in those construction work-site areas in which the available data indicate these hazards to be significant. Regulatory options involve developing a comprehensive standard covering all potentially hazardous energy sources. OSHA will consider the use of the construction advisory committee to assist in the development of this standard.

2125. POWERED INDUSTRIAL TRUCK OPERATOR TRAINING

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.178

Abstract: Nationally, fatalities due to unsafe operation of industrial vehicles and equipment account for approximately 12 percent of the private sector fatalities. This is the second leading cause of fatalities in the private sector, behind only highway vehicle fatalities. The present standard has proven to be ineffective in reducing the number of accidents involving powered industrial trucks. OSHA intends to revise the present standard to increase its effectiveness by requiring, in performance language, initial and refresher training as necessary. The frequency of the refresher training will be based upon the ability of the vehicle operator to retain the knowledge, skills and abilities to perform the job safely. OSHA will also give guidance as to what information the instruction should include. There will also be other amendments to the standard to increase its effectiveness.

Abstract: The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) has reported the number of reported "disorders associated with repeated trauma" have more than doubled since 1984. These serious, potentially crippling disorders account for 48 percent of all occupational illnesses reported to OSHA in 1988, up from 28 percent in 1984. These disorders are being recognized as very serious problems by the industrial nations of the world and some have promulgated ergonomic standards in the last several years. In November 1988, OSHA received a petition from a meat packing industry representative requesting the development of a standard covering ergonomic issues. Prior to issuing a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRM), OSHA will publish an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (ANPRM) to gather, review, and analyze available information in industry on individual case studies, anecdotal data, and statistical data in which ergonomic hazards have been addressed and resolved. OSHA also will seek this information from a variety of other sources.

Abstract: The present crane regulations for construction and general industry have not been revised since being promulgated in 1971. They rely heavily on outdated 1968 ANSI standards. OSHA has received comments that the existing provisions are inadequate and need revision to reflect current conditions and equipment. It has also been suggested that there is need to establish additional crane installation and use provisions, including possible certification programs for crane operators and riggers. OSHA anticipates that this project will come about in several phases due to the magnitude of the project.

Abstract: A critical element of OSHA's comprehensive enforcement strategy under the Occupational Safety and Health act is assurance that employers have abated hazards cited during inspections. Currently, unless an employer voluntarily complies with OSHA's request to submit documentation, OSHA has no proof of hazard abatement without conducting a followup inspection. From 1972 to the present, OSHA has implemented several administrative measures to induce employers to provide abatement documentation, but some 30 percent of cited employers still do not voluntarily do so. OSHA's internal audits, the Department of Labor's Inspector General, and the General Accounting Office have pointed out this deficiency. The regulation OSHA now proposes will require cited employers to provide hazard abatement documentation. The NPRM will address the kinds of evidence to be required, what notice to employees is needed, potential penalties for non-reporting, possible certification forms for compliance, and other questions. OSHA estimates that the economic impact of this regulation on employer products and product prices will be insignificant.

Abstract: Public Law 101-615, the Hazardous Materials Transportation Uniform Safety Act (HMTUSA), mandates that the Secretary of Labor issue regulations regarding the retention of markings and placards in accordance with Section 29 of the Act. The Act clearly conveys the intent of Congress for a collaborative effort by the Secretaries of Labor, Transportation and Treasury to ensure that placards and labels required on packages or containers of hazardous materials and explosives be retained until such materials are removed to the extent they no longer pose a health or safety risk. The Agency is currently developing a proposed rule that would require any employer who receives a package, container, rail car or similar receptacle containing hazardous materials that is required to be marked, placarded or labeled in accordance with regulations issued under the Hazardous Materials Transportation Act, to retain such labels until the hazards are removed. Abstract: The Hazard Communication Standard (HCS) is a generic, performance-oriented rule which provides workers exposed to hazardous chemicals with the right-to-know about their hazards, identities, and ways to prevent exposure. The HCS requires chemical manufacturers and importers to evaluate the hazards of the chemicals they produce or import, and to develop container labels and more detailed technical bulletins called material safety data sheets (MSDSs) regarding those hazards and associated protective measures. On May 17, 1990 (55 FR 20480), OSHA published a request for comments and information (RFI) in the Federal Register to solicit public input on experiences regarding HCS implementation, and suggestions for improving the quality of information provided. Nearly 600 responses were received by OSHA in response to the RFI. By far the issue of greatest concern to the commenters was the standardization of the format or order of information for the MSDSs. Users of MSDSs believe that standardization will allow the MSDSs to be used more effectively; will make training easier; and will facilitate electronic (cont)

Abstract: On January 28, 1992, the White House imposed a 90-day moratorium on regulations and directed the heads of selected Executive branch, departments, and agencies, including the Department of Labor, to evaluate existing regulations to identify those imposing unnecessary regulatory burdens; those that have failed to keep pace with technological innovations; and those that contain unnecessarily prescriptive requirements. In response to the President's request, the Department of Labor initiated a Request for Public Comment on the moratorium (57 FR 6301, February 24, 1992). As a result, OSHA identified the medical surveillance is to identify health problems caused by occupational exposure when intervention is likely to be of value. In theory, early diagnosis by medical surveillance would lead to increasing rates of cure. However, medical surveillance under the Coke Oven Standard attempts to recognize workers who have already developed severe illness (i.e., cancer of the lung or kidney) that requires extensive medical and/or surgical intervention. Abstract: OSHA's policy concerning the use of engineering controls and respirators was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief in 1981. Current OSHA regulations require that employers implement feasible engineering controls to maintain air contaminant concentrations in the workplace at or below the prescribed permissible exposure limits. The use of respirators is permitted only in those cases where engineering controls are not feasible, not yet installed, or not adequate. This policy has been criticized as being inflexible, not cost-effective, and often unnecessary for employee health protection. OSHA believes that any changes to the policy for use of engineering controls must be closely coordinated with revisions in the respiratory protection regulations (29 CFR 1910.134). This rulemaking does not address the assessment and reduction of any absolute existing risks, but rather addresses the possible change in risk abatement associated with the use of respirators instead of engineering controls. OSHA published a proposal on June 5, 1989 (54 FR 23991). Hearings were held on May 30-31, 1990, and continued on July 9-10, 1990.

Abstract: The existing standard has been proposed for revision because it is poorly formatted, contains unnecessary and restrictive provisions, and omits necessary specific coverage for certain types of scaffolds. The proposal raises several significant issues including: (1) the use of crossbraces as guardrails, (2) the use of fall protection during scaffold erection and dismantling operations, and (3) the role of engineers in scaffold design. (Subpart L, revised)

2134. FALL PROTECTION SYSTEMS (PERSONAL PROTECTIVE EQUIPMENT) (PART 1910)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910, subpart I

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing standards do not contain criteria for personal fall protection systems. Consequently, requirements containing criteria for personal fall protection systems would be added to 29 CFR part 1910; Subpart I, Personal Protection Equipment, to enhance employee protection from injury and death due to falls to different elevations.

2135. LOGGING OPERATIONS (PART 1910)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.266 (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Logging is a very hazardous industry. It has an incidence rate nearly twice that of manufacturing, and reflecting the seriousness of the injuries incurred, a lost workday rate nearly four times as high. The purpose of the standard will be to protect workers from the ever-present hazards of chain saw operation, falling objects (trees, branches), rolling or sliding logs, falls from trees, and materials handling accidents. At present there is no OSHA standard specifically applicable to logging in general. There is a standard, 29 CFR 1910.266, applicable only to pulpwood logging; however, pulpwood logging is estimated to account for less than half of the logging activity in the United States. Development of a national OSHA standard addressing all types of logging will provide coverage for those loggers not now protected. The new regulation will provide coverage where there is no approved state regulation and will set a minimum safety level for those states that chose to develop a state regulation.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.137; 29 CFR 1910.269

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: A major area of coverage not addressed in the current OSHA electrical standards for general industry (29 CFR 1910) involves the maintenance and operation practices associated with electrical transmission and distribution lines, substations and generating stations. It is intended that the proposed standard fill this void by establishing minimum requirements for electrical safety work practices for qualified employees working on or near installations whose purpose is the generation and distribution of electricity. The proposal also revises the standards for electrical protective equipment, which is used routinely for electrical power work.

Abstract: On October 10, 1985, EPA referred 1,3-butadiene (BD) to OSHA for possible regulatory action under section 9(a) of the Toxic Substance Control Act. On April 11, 1986, OSHA responded to the EPA referral indicating that the Agency has preliminarily concluded that BD poses risk to the occupationally exposed population at the current OSHA permissible exposure limit and that the risk can be reduced or prevented through the promulgation of a revised standard. On October 1, 1986 (51 FR 35003), OSHA published an ANPRM initiating regulatory action within the meaning of section 9(a) of TSCA. Comments were submitted to OSHA by December 30, 1986. Based on the comments received in response to the ANPRM OSHA developed a proposal which was published on August 10, 1990. Hearings were held in Washington, D.C. on January 15, 1991, and in New Orleans, Louisiana on February 20, 1991. Submission of the post-hearing comments and briefs were scheduled to end on June 22, and July 22, 1991 respectively; however, OSHA extended the dates to September 27, and October 28, 1991. The post-hearing comments and briefs were again extended and finally closed on (cont)

Abstract: In July 1985, OSHA was petitioned by the United Automobile, Aerospace and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW) to issue a hazard alert; issue an emergency temporary standard; and to begin work on a new permanent standard for methylene chloride (DCM). This request was based on information obtained from the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Toxicology Program indicating that DCM is an animal carcinogen and may have the potential to cause cancer in humans. In November 1986, OSHA notified the UAW that its petition had been granted, in part, and denied, in part. Specifically, OSHA issued a set of guidelines for controlling occupational exposure to DCM and OSHA denied that portion of the petition requesting the issuance of an emergency temporary standard. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on November 24, 1986 (51 FR 42257). After reviewing and analyzing the comments received in response to the ANPRM, OSHA published a proposal in the Federal Register on November 7, 1991 (56 FR 57036). The comment period closed on April 6, 1992. On June 9, 1992, OSHA published a notice of informal public hearings to be held in Washington, DC on (cont)

Abstract: OSHA promulgated a final rule on August 24, 1987, that extended the protections of its Hazard Communication Standard (HCS) from the manufacturing sector to all other workplaces where employees are exposed to hazardous chemicals. The HCS requires covered employers to establish hazard communication programs for their employees, including labels on containers, material safety data sheets, and training programs. On August 8, 1988, OSHA published a NPRM to modify the final rule, and provide an opportunity for public comment. Public comments have been received, hearings have been held, and OSHA will prepare a final rule based on the public record for this standard, including the record developed in earlier rulemakings. OSHA published a request for information (RFI) on May 17, 1990, (55 FR 20580) to improve the quality and representation of the information provided on the MSDS's and labels and to consider a standardized format. OSHA will determine if the rule should be reopened after the comments and other relevant information are analyzed. The comment period for the RFI expired on August 15, 1990.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Abstract: On June 20, 1986, OSHA published revised standards governing occupational exposure to asbestos, tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite in general industry and construction. In these standards, OSHA reduced the 8-hour time weighted average (TWA) permissible exposure limit (PEL) to 0.2 f/cc, and established other protective provisions. This standard was legally challenged, and as a result, the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia upheld the standard except that the court held that OSHA must reconsider several of the standard's provisions to determine if more protective regulatory provisions are available to reduce risk. One of the issues to be reconsidered was the need for a short-term limit for occupational exposure to asbestos in response to the Court's directive. This limit was established as 1 f/cc averaged over a 30-minute sampling period and a legal notification of this amendment was published on September 14, 1988, at 53 FR 35610. (cont)

Abstract: Public Law 99-499 established the criteria under which OSHA developed and promulgated 29 CFR 1910.120, Hazardous Waste Operations and Emergency Response (HAZWOPER). 29 CFR 1910.120 was published March 9, 1989, and became effective one year later. Section 126 of Public Law 99-499 was later revised to require OSHA to also develop a training accreditation program for the training programs required in paragraphs (e) and (p) of 1910.120. OSHA has been developing that accreditation program based upon the initial public record of comments on its proposed accreditation program and additional public comments received in response to a limited reopening of the public record in 1992. The limited reopening of the public record allowed additional public comment on an effectiveness of training study conducted by OSHA. OSHA continues to develop and refine the regulatory text for the final rule. We are also developing the logistics necessary for receiving and accrediting the large number of training programs expected to be submitted to the Agency for accreditation.

Abstract: OSHA has developed the regulatory text for this rule and is developing the preamble portion of the Final Rule. OSHA has slowed the development of this rule as a result of recent Congressional action on the Department of Labor's 1993 appropriation bill. Initial versions of the appropriation bill would have prevented OSHA from enforcing this rule if it were promulgated. Final Congressional action has resulted in a requirement for OSHA to review, reexamine, and reevaluate the public record of comments with regard to the following four issues. First, whether mandatory seat belt use or driver awareness training is necessary for all occupational vehicle use, particularly passenger cars, and whether mandatory motorcycle helmet use is necessary. Second, whether mandated driver awareness training programs for employees reduce motor vehicle injuries or fatalities, and whether employers should be penalized for an employee's failure to conform to vehicular safety regulation. Third, what impact employee driver training requirements will have on employers, and particularly, small businesses. And, finally, how OSHA will ensure (cont)

Abstract: On November 14, 1978 (43 FR 52952), OSHA promulgated a standard that limited occupational exposures to lead. The standard also contained requirements for exposure monitoring, protective equipment, housekeeping and hygiene practices, medical surveillance, medical removal protection, posted areas and education and training. However, the scope of the standard did not include the construction industry. Lead exposures in the construction industry continued to be regulated by the air contaminants standard for construction (29 CFR 1926.55) which has no protective ancillary provisions such as those contained in the general industry standard. This standard adopted the 1970 American Conference for Governmental Industrial Hygienists (ACGIH) Threshold Limit Value (200 ug/m3) which is four times the current standard for general industry. OSHA recognized that this level represents a potential for material impairment of health and is in the process of developing a proposal.

Additional Information: The Housing and Community Development Act (Title IV, Subtitle C, Section 1031) (October 28, 1992) requires the Secretary of Labor to adopt an interim final regulation (within 180 days) on occupational exposure to lead in the construction industry. The regulation would provide places of employment for employees which are as safe and healthful as those which would prevail under the Department of Housing and Urban Development Guidelines published on September 28, 1990. It is OSHA's intention to promulgate a permanent rule which will supersede the interim final rule. The interim rule will not follow any procedural requirements of Section 6 of the OSH Act or the notice and comment provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act.

2152. REPORTING OF FATALITY OR MULTIPLE HOSPITALIZATIONS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 657; 29 USC 673

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1904.8

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Concerns have been raised by Congress, OMB, OSHA, NIOSH, BLS, the National Academy of Sciences, GAO and representatives of business and labor about the reporting of fatalities and multiple hospitalizations. These include the procedures employers are required to follow, the length of time employers have to report the fatalities to OSHA, and the number of hospitalizations required before the employer must report the incident to OSHA. In particular, 48 hour reporting may allow too many workplace factors to change before OSHA can reach the worksite to perform an adequate investigation of the incident. In addition, there are concerns that the current regulation may not adequately inform employers of the need to report all occupational fatalities, including those that occur extended periods of time after the employee was originally injured. Benefits will include more accurate employer reporting of fatalities and multiple hospitalizations, an improved ability for OSHA to respond to serious accidents while evidence is still "fresh," an improved count of fatalities and multiple hospitalizations and an upgraded data base for researchers and policy officials.

Abstract: The Veterans' Reemployment Rights (VRR) law, 38 USC sections 2012-2206 with subsequent amendments and judicial constructions, has become a confusing and cumbersome doctrine. As a result, the Administration proposes to introduce legislation replacing the existing Veterans' Reemployment Rights statute. The proposed legislation requires the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations implementing and interpreting the statute. The proposal will seek to: (1) make the law understandable; (2) determine the veteran's entitlement and eligibility requirement on time rather than category of service; (3) promote expedited resolution of claims; and (4) provide statutory processing timeframes. The costs and benefits are intangible and relate to the ability to maintain sufficient membership in the Armed Forces, and to ensure the availability of citizen-soldiers.

Abstract: By resolution of the international diplomatic conference that adopted the final text of the Convention, there was a recommendation that the Department of State establish an internal system to permit the optional registration of information to facilitate the discovery of international wills. The President transmitted the Convention to the Senate on July 2, 1986, with the recommendation that the Senate give its advice and consent to U.S. ratification of the Convention, and information about the intention to establish the Registry in the Department of State (Senate Treaty Doc. 99-29). The Senate gave advice and consent to ratification on August 2, 1991. The President signed the instrument of ratification on December 2, 1991. The U.S. has not deposited its instrument of ratification pending enactment of implementing legislation, the International Wills Act, required before the United States can take further action to ratify the Convention.

Abstract: In August 1992 OMB prepared a revised Circular A-102 (dealing with grants and cooperative agreements to State and local governments). The Department of State has prepared a preamble to the proposed revised circular, endorsing it. When OMB publishes the revised circular as a proposed rule in the Federal Register, the Department's preamble will be published as well. OMB advises that it has discontinued plans to combine Circular A-102 and Circular A-110 (dealing with grants and cooperative agreements with other nonprofit organizations) into a single circular, and that Circular A-110 will follow a similar, but separate, course in revision.

Legal deadline reflects the statutory requirement that the list be updated on an annual basis.

Abstract: The above-mentioned statute requires the Secretary of State to compile, and update annually through Notice-and-Comment rulemaking procedures, a list, by particular longshore activity, of countries where performance of such activity is prohibited by law, regulation, or in practice in the country concerned. According to the statute cited above, the Attorney General will use this list for enforcing restrictions on work performed by crewmembers of vessels from such countries. Compilation of the list itself does not involve any significant costs and is based upon information being provided to the Department of State by U.S. diplomatic missions overseas as well as by the public. Questions regarding the policy justification for the list and its use are best directed to the Department of Labor, Transportation, and Justice.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 102-138, sec 128(e)

CFR Citation: 22 CFR 40

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, October 28, 1991.

Abstract: The Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1992 and 1993, Pub. L. 102-138, enacted October 28, 1991, also modified certain provisions of the Immigration Act of 1990. Section 128(e) provides that the Secretary of State may enter into, or retain in, the visa lookout system names of aliens who have not been formally found to be ineligible to receive visas only for specified reasons and directs the Secretary to establish regulations and procedures for this purpose. This regulation would respond to that statutory requirement.

Abstract: Miscellaneous and Technical Immigration and Naturalization Amendments of 1991, Pub. L. 102-232, was enacted on December 12, 1991, to make necessary technical corrections to the Comprehensive Immigration Act of 1990, Pub. L. 101-649. The Immigration and Nationality Act at section 104 (8 USC 1104) grants the Secretary of State general authority over the issuance and refusal of visas and to promulgate necessary regulations. That statutory provision constitutes the general authority to promulgate these regulations. Section 302(b)(1)(5) amends section 124 of the Immigration Act of 1990, relating to the transition for employees of U.S. businesses operating in Hong Kong.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 31 USC 1352; 22 USC 2658

CFR Citation: 22 CFR 138 (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This interim final rule establishes a uniform regulation for nonprocurement Federal transactions among 29 Federal agencies. The regulation adopts and implements guidance published by the Office of Management and Budget (see 54 52306, December 20, 1989), pursuant to section 319 of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 1990. Section 319 added section 1352, "Limitation on use of appropriated funds to influence certain Federal contracting and financial transactions," to title 31, United States Code. The interim final rule, published February 26, 1990, establishes semiannual reporting requirements. There has been no final action on the interim final rule, because new legislation has been proposed by Senator Levin which, if enacted, would rescind the current requirement for semiannual reporting, and add a provision requiring registration by all lobbyists with the Department of Justice.

ACTION: Department regulations agenda.

SUMMARY: The regulations agenda is a semiannual summary of all current and projected rulemakings, reviews of existing regulations, and completed actions of the Department. It is expected that this information will enable the public to be more aware of and allow it to more effectively participate in the Department's regulatory activity. The public is also invited to submit comments to continuously open regulatory review dockets, suggesting items for consideration as part of the Department's ongoing review of existing regulations.

ADDRESSES: The mailing address for the initiating offices of the Department which appear in the agenda is 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590; except for the Federal Aviation Administration, which is located at 800 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20591, and the U.S. Coast Guard, which is located at 2100 2nd Street SW., Washington, DC 20593.

Agenda

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

Improvement of Government regulations is a prime goal of the Clinton Administration. There should be no more regulations than necessary, and those that are issued should be simpler, more comprehensible, and less burdensome. Regulations should not be issued without appropriate involvement of the public; once issued, they should be periodically reviewed and revised, as needed, to assure that they continue to meet the needs for which they originally were designed.

To help the Department of Transportation (Department) achieve these goals and in accordance with Executive Order 12291 "Federal Regulation" (46 FR 13193; February 19, 1981) and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures (44 FR 11034; February 26, 1979), the Department prepares a semiannual regulations agenda for publication in the Federal Register. The agenda summarizes all current and projected rulemaking, reviews of existing regulations, and completed actions of the Department. These are matters on which action has begun or is projected during the succeeding 12 months or such longer period as may be anticipated or for which action has been completed since the last agenda.

The agendas are based on reports submitted by the initiating offices in January and July each year. After these reports are consolidated for and reviewed by the Department Regulations Council, the Department's regulations agenda is prepared and published in the Federal Register. The Department's last agenda was published in the Federal Register on November 3, 1992 (57 FR 51616). The next one is scheduled for publication in the Federal Register in October 1993.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

In 1980, Congress passed the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA), Public Law 96-354, which requires the designation of those regulations for which a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared; i.e., those regulations that would have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. A Regulatory Flexibility Analysis is required for a rulemaking which, in the heading "Small Entities Affected," indicates an effect on small businesses, governmental jurisdictions, or organizations. If a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared for a particular rulemaking, that fact also will be noted under the heading "Analysis."

The RFA also requires that, each year, the Department publish a list of those regulations that have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and are to be reviewed under the Act during the succeeding 12 months. The agenda includes those regulations to be reviewed under the RFA or those for which review has been concluded since the last agenda. However, it should be noted that, after a preliminary assessment of the regulations listed for RFA review, it may be found that the regulations, in fact, do not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities, and a full RFA review will be unnecessary.

Regulatory Impact Analysis

A preliminary and final Regulatory Impact Analysis is required for each proposed and final regulation, respectively, that

(1) is likely to result in:

(a) An annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more;

(b) a major effect on the general economy in terms of costs, consumer prices, or production;

(c) a major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, State, or local government agencies; or geographic regions;

(d) significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets; or

(2) the Secretary or head of the initiating office has determined requires such an analysis.

Definitions

The agenda covers all rules and regulations of the Department, including those that establish conditions for financial assistance. The following definitions are provided for ease in understanding the information in this document.

(1) Initiating office means an operating administration or other organizational element within the Department, the head of which is authorized by law or delegation to issue regulations or to formulate regulations for issuance by the Secretary.

(2) Significant regulation means a regulation that is not an emergency regulation and that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office or the Secretary or the Deputy Secretary,

(a) is a major regulation;

(b) concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest or controversy;

(c) has a major impact on another operating administration or other parts of the Department or other Federal agency;

(d) has a substantial effect on State and local governments;

(e) has a substantial impact on a major transportation safety problem;

(f) initiates a substantial regulatory program or change in policy;

(g) is substantially different from international requirements or standards; or

(h) otherwise involves important Department policy.

(3) Major regulation means a significant regulation for which a Regulatory Impact Analysis is required to be prepared.

(4) Emergency regulation means a regulation that, (a) in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, circumstances require to be issued without notice and opportunity for public comment or made effective in less than 30 days after publication in the Federal Register or (b) is governed by short-term statutory or judicial deadlines.

(5) Nonsignificant regulation means a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, is neither a significant nor an emergency regulation.

Explanation of Information on the Agenda

The format for this agenda is required by Office of Management and Budget memorandum of December 9, 1992.

First, the agenda is divided by initiating offices. Then, in accordance with the OMB memorandum, for each initiating office, the agenda is divided into four categories: (1) Prerule stage, (2) proposed rule stage, (3) final rule stage, and (4) completed actions. For each entry, the agenda provides the following information: (1) The "significance" of the action (i.e., whether it is significant because it is on the Regulatory Program or because of agency priority or whether it is nonsignificant or routine and frequent); (2) a short descriptive title; (3) the legal basis for the action being taken or the regulation being reviewed; (4) the related regulatory citation in the Code of Federal Regulations; (5) an indication of any legal deadline and, if so, for what type of action (e.g., NPRM, final rule); (6) an abstract of the review or the proposed or final regulation; (7) a timetable, including the earliest expected date for a decision, on whether to issue the proposed or final regulation or complete the review and determine the corrective action to be taken. The preparation of this agenda and the development of most of the individual rulemakings began before the Clinton Administration took office. Upon further, more in-depth review, different approaches may be developed to some of the problems addressed by some of these rulemakings. (The action taken can be revocation or revision of the regulation, or it can be a determination that no regulatory action is necessary because the regulation is found to be achieving its goals and the goals and objectives of Executive Order 12291 and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures.); (8) an indication as to whether the rulemaking will affect small entities and/or levels of government and which categories of small entities or governments will be impacted; (9) if there is information that does not fit in the other categories, it will be included under a separate heading entitled "Additional Information"; (10) a listing, where determined, of any analyses an initiating office will prepare or has prepared for the rulemaking document; e.g., a Regulatory Impact Analysis or Evaluation, an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis, or an Urban Impact Analysis. (It should be noted that, even though a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not required for some items on the agenda, the Department requires an economic analysis for all of its regulations. This economic analysis is contained in the Regulatory Evaluation, if a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not prepared.); (11) an agency contact office or official who can provide further information, including advice on how to obtain documents referenced in the agenda; and (12) a Regulation Identifier Number (RIN) assigned to identify an individual rulemaking in the agenda and facilitate tracing further action on the issue in the Federal Register which may occur between agenda publications. (Departmental rulemaking documents published in the Federal Register now contain RIN numbers.)

For nonsignificant regulations issued routinely and frequently as a part of an established body of technical requirements (such as the Federal Aviation Administration's Airspace Rules), to keep those requirements operationally current, only the general category of the regulations, the identity of a contact office or official, and an indication of the expected number of regulations are included; individual regulations are not listed.

If a regulatory docket number has already been established, it may be provided under the "Additional Information" heading. If a member of the public desires further information regarding a particular proposal or regulation, reference should be made to this docket number.

In the "Timetable" column, abbreviations are used to indicate the particular documents being considered for issuance by that date. ANPRM stands for Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, SNPRM for Supplemental Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, NPRM for Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, and FR for Final Rule. Listing a future date in this column is not an indication that a proposed or a final rule will be issued on that date; it is the earliest date on which a decision is expected to be made on whether to issue the document listed. Submittal of any proposed or final rule to the Office of Management and Budget for review under Executive Order 12291 must follow such a decision. For major rules, this review could take 60 days or more. If any document is issued, publication in the Federal Register would follow within a few days. In addition, these dates are based on current schedules. Information received subsequent to the issuance of this agenda could result in a decision not to take regulatory action or in changes to proposed publication dates. For example, the need for further evaluation could result in a later publication date; evidence of a greater need for the regulation could result in an earlier publication date.

Finally, a dot (•) preceding an entry indicates that the entry appears in the agenda for the first time.

Mailing Lists for Regulatory Documents

To assist the public in obtaining regulatory documents issued within the Department of Transportation, an Appendix A has been included in this document. The appendix contains instructions on how to be placed on mailing lists for or to obtain copies of specific regulatory documents, including the Department's semiannual regulations agenda issued by the operating administrations of the Department and the Office of the Secretary. There is no charge for this service; however, because of the costs involved, the number of copies of a document forwarded to an individual requestor may be limited. Persons already on mailing lists for particular documents within the Department will remain on those lists and should not reapply.

By following the instructions specified in the appendix, a person can be placed on a mailing list for future copies of the Department's regulations agenda, which will be updated and published in the Federal Register every year during April and October. By using the agenda, individuals can determine which notice or advance notice of proposed rulemaking, to be issued by elements of the Department, is of interest to them. Then, using the instructions in the appendix, such persons also can be placed on a mailing list to ensure that, after the document of interest is issued, a copy will be mailed to them for their review and comment. In this way, individuals will be relieved of the burden of having to review the Federal Register, perhaps on a daily basis. The Department expects that this process will ensure that those people placed on mailing lists will receive early notice so that their views on the document can be adequately prepared and presented within the established comment period.

General Rulemaking Contact Persons

To assist persons desiring to obtain general information concerning the rulemaking process within the Department's operating administrations, an Appendix B has been added to the agenda. This appendix sets forth the addresses and the telephone numbers of the persons who can respond quickly to requests for general rulemaking information. Please note, however, that questions related to particular rulemaking actions should still be referred to the contact person listed with the particular rulemaking on the agenda.

Public Rulemaking Dockets

To facilitate the inspection of docket files and the submission of comments by the public, an Appendix C sets forth the addresses and working hours for the Rules Docket for each operating administration.

Request for Comments

Agenda

Our agenda is intended primarily for the use of the public. Since its inception, we have made modifications and refinements that we believe provide the public with more helpful information, as well as make the agenda easier to use. We would also like you, the public, to make suggestions or comments on how the agenda could be further improved. For example, do you find the information presented in an easily understandable manner? Do you find it easy to follow a regulation's development from agenda to agenda? Do you find that the format for setting out the information enables you to use the agenda easily? Do you find that the presentation of the information in the agenda is clearly explained in the preamble to the agenda? Your responses to these questions or any other comments or suggestions you may have should be sent to Neil R. Eisner, whose address appears above.

Reviews

In an effort to comply further with the spirit of Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, we are also seeking suggestions on existing regulations that should be included in our review of existing regulations; that is, which existing regulations issued by an operating administration of the Department or the Office of the Secretary do you believe need to be reviewed to determine whether they should be revised or revoked? The Department is particularly interested in obtaining information on requirements that have a "significant economic impact on small entities" and, therefore, must be reviewed under the Regulatory Flexibility Act. If you have any suggested regulations, please send them, along with your explanation of why they should be reviewed, to the concerned operating administration or the Office of the Secretary. To ease the process for submission of suggestions of regulations warranting review by departmental entities, each operating administration and the Office of the Secretary maintains a continuously open regulatory review docket. Suggestions should be submitted to the docket section of the relevant modal administration or Office of the Secretary, attention "Regulatory Review Docket," with the following specific rulemaking docket numbers:

Federal Aviation Administration, Docket 26768;

Federal Highway Administration, Docket 92-12;

Federal Railroad Administration, Docket RSS-1-92-1;

Federal Transit Administration, Docket 92A;

Maritime Administration, Docket R-141;

National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Docket 92-04;

Office of the Secretary, Docket 47978;

Research and Special Programs Administration, Docket RR-1;

Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, Attn: Marc Owen, Chief Counsel;

DOT

United States Coast Guard, Docket 92-005.

The addresses of the docket sections are contained in Appendix C. Multiple copies of the suggestions would be appreciated but are not required.

In accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act, comments are specifically invited on regulations that are targeted for review under the RFA. Those comments should be addressed to the "contact" person of the operating administration involved.

Purpose

The Department is publishing this regulations agenda in the Federal Register to share with interested members of the public the Department's preliminary expectations regarding its future regulatory actions. This should enable the public to be more aware of the Department's regulatory activity. Knowledge of the nature and scope of this activity, as well as the specific proposals and reviews being considered, should result in more effective public participation in the Department's regulatory activity. For example, awareness of the dates when notices may be issued seeking public comment should allow appropriate planning and more efficient use of the comment period. By providing the expected date for a decision on whether to issue a final rule, the Department expects that more appropriate planning by those concerned with the regulation will also be possible. This publication in the Federal Register does not impose any binding obligation on the Department or any of the offices within the Department with regard to any specific item on the agenda. Regulatory action, in addition to the items listed, is not precluded. If further information is desired on any of the items listed in the agenda, the public is encouraged to contact the individual listed for the particular item. Additional information concerning the agenda in general or the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures may be obtained from Neil R. Eisner, whose address and telephone number appear above.

Issued in Washington, DC, on March 8, 1993.

Federico Peña

Secretary of Transportation.

2170. +ANTIDRUG PROGRAMS FOR DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION CONTRACTORS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 322; 40 USC 486(c)

CFR Citation: 48 CFR 1226.7001; 48 CFR 1252.226-70; 48 CFR 34; 48 CFR 1.301

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Consistent with DOT antidrug initiatives for DOT employees and employees of regulated industries, DOT was considering requiring its contractors to establish antidrug programs (including drug testing and employee assistance programs) for employees performing safety-sensitive or security functions under DOT contracts. Although initially considered significant because of substantial public interest, the Department is considering withdrawing this rulemaking. Uniform, government-wide regulations to deter drug use among contractor employees have been issued to implement the Drug-Free Workplace Act.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 12101 et seq; PL 101-336 Americans with Disabilities Act

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 37

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, July 26, 1991.

Abstract: The Department's Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) final rule, published September 6, 1991 (56 FR 45584), reserved portions of the rule concerning passenger vessels. The ADA covers passenger vessels, but issuing accessibility requirements for vessels involves complex issues unlike those affecting land transportation. This action will address these issues and propose feasible requirements to make passenger vessels accessible to, and usable by, individuals with disabilities. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public and congressional interest.

Abstract: Donald L. Abstract: The DOT rules cited above state that any price stated for air transportation, a tour or a tour component must be the entire price for that transportation, tour or component. In this petition, Mr. Donald Pevsner complains that some tour operators advertise prices which do not include additional features which must be purchased and which cost extra. He asks that the rules be amended to state that such additional features may only be priced separately if they may be purchased separately, i.e., if they are optional rather than mandatory. The petition is under consideration.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 98-575; PL 100-656, sec 15(c) to 16 Commercial Space Launch Act

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Persons authorized to conduct commercial launch activities by a license issued by the Office of Commercial Space Transportation (OCST) are required to obtain insurance or demonstrate financial responsibility, in amounts and on terms prescribed by OCST, to protect against third-party or government property damage claims resulting from the licensed activities. Licensees and other launch participants are also required to enter into reciprocal waivers of claims arising out of licensed activities. In addition, persons engaged in commercial launch operations must provide proof of financial responsibility, or offer other assurances, adequate to protect the government when its property or personnel are involved in such operations. This rulemaking codifies the procedures by which OCST sets appropriate levels and terms of insurance and financial responsibility required to be carried by persons subject to its authority. This action is significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC app 2601 to 2623

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 400 to 415

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Commercial Space Launch Act of 1984, as amended, grants the Department of Transportation's Office of Commercial Space Transportation authority to license and otherwise regulate commercial launches and the commercial operation of launch sites. The Office must ensure that commercial space launch activities are conducted in a manner that does not jeopardize public health and safety, and the safety of property without, however, imposing unnecessary regulatory burdens on the commercial launch industry. The industry has grown in size and complexity since the original regulations were published in 1988, and the Office's licensing program continues to evolve to reflect these changes. This rulemaking would modify the current regulations to reflect a streamlined and more mature licensing regime developed over the past few years. Such changes would benefit the industry by reducing regulatory burdens, thus reducing costs.

This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399.80; 14 CFR 399.85

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department is proposing to provide formal notice to the public of its enforcement policy concerning the rebating of international air fares by adopting that policy as a Policy Statement in the regulations. No change in the substance of that policy is intended. The Department also proposes to revoke an existing Policy Statement on the advertising of rebates that is contrary to DOT's current enforcement policy. The proposal responds to a request for such action by the American Society of Travel Agents. The proposed regulation is significant because it involves important departmental policies and substantial industry interest.

DOT is proposing to amend the rule to remove unnecessary burdens on charter operators and airlines in order to foster competition and facilitate low-cost air transportation for the public while updating, restructuring, and simplifying the necessary consumer protection provisions of the rules. The NPRM will propose simplified registration and financial procedures and allow use of credit cards for payments to charter operators. Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: PL 94-135

Abstract: The NPRM proposed to prohibit age discrimination by recipients of DOT financial assistance programs. However, it has been concluded that exceptions to the statute would result in no substantive coverage of DOT programs. Moreover, the paperwork requirements for recipients, without substantive coverage, would have been counterproductive. The NPRM will be withdrawn. The Department will consider, in light of any changes in DOT programs, whether resultant substantive coverage would then warrant a new rulemaking proceeding.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1305

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399

Abstract: The Civil Aeronautics Board in 1979 issued an interim Policy Statement on preemption. It discusses the policy of the Department with respect to three areas in which State law has been preempted by the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978: regulation of commuter air carriers and air taxis, the rights of airport proprietors, and general State authority as it directly or indirectly affects air transportation competition. The Supreme Court has recently ruled that section 105 of the ADA preempts even indirect State regulation that "has a connection with or reference to" airline rates, routes, or services. The Department is considering the effect of this holding on the Policy Statement.

Abstract: The CAB proposed to amend its rules requiring notice of contract terms for domestic travel to require that actual notice be given passengers of terms absolving carriers from any responsibility to transport a passenger to the destination named on the ticket, or to reimburse the passenger for expenses in reaching the airport noted on the ticket when a flight is diverted to another airport in the same metropolitan area. Alternatively, the Board proposed to declare it to be an unfair and deceptive practice to divert a passenger without arranging and paying for alternate transportation to the destination airport named on the passenger's ticket. The Board considered a final rule but did not decide what action to take. DOT is now considering what action to take.

Abstract: The American Association of Airport Executives, the Airport Operators Council International and the Air Transport Association of America petitioned the CAB to simplify its counter-sign requirements. Presently, airlines are required to display four different consumer protection notices on their ticket counters. The petitioners alleged that the current notices are hard to read and, therefore, do not provide much notice to passengers. They proposed replacing the four notices with one simplified counter sign. The CAB adopted an NPRM that proposed a number of alternatives, such as a long and/or short notice, where the notices would be required to be posted and whether a smoking notice should be included. DOT is now considering what action to take in response to the notice and comments filed.

Abstract: The Department is reviewing its regulation establishing a minority business enterprise (MBE) program in its financial assistance programs (49 CFR part 23). This regulation has been controversial, is of interest to most DOT grant recipients and contractors, and affects the operations of all DOT financial assistance programs. Section 106(c) of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (STURAA) extended and modified the program as applied to FHWA and FTA; similar legislation applied the same requirements to the FAA. The Department issued a final rule to make the STURAA changes in October 1987; a similar rule for FAA programs was published in May 1988. In view of subsequent changed circumstances, this rulemaking was consolidated into the more recent rulemaking under RIN 2105-AB92.

Abstract: The Department of Transportation (DOT or Department) has established procedures that must be followed when a Department employee, former employee, or DOT contractor is required or subpoenaed to provide testimony or produce records concerning information acquired in the course of performing official duties or because of the official status of the employee. The proposed procedures and restrictions are necessary because Department attorneys and employees currently spend a considerable amount of time responding to litigants' requests for documents or testimony, often on the same matter. This rule ensures more efficient use of Department resources, minimizes the possibility of involving the Department in controversial issues not related to its

2211. UNFAIR COMPETITION BY COMMONLY OWNED CARRIERS IN ALASKA

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 39 USC 1381

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action proposed to amend part 399 to state that it will be the Department's policy to regard it as an unfair method of competition under section 411 of the Federal Aviation Act for an individual or entity to own multiple air carriers that compete in the same city-pair market within the State of Alaska with the effect that the multiple carriers, taken together, receive a greater proportion of the mail tendered for transport for the United States Postal Service, under its present regulations, than the proportion received by any individual carrier serving the same market.

However, after considering comments received and more recent events in the Alaska market, it was determined that a more direct and practicable means of addressing the issues is to rely on the U.S. Postal Service, which has the ability and primary responsibility to fashion a solution to problems caused by its mail distribution within Alaska.

Abstract: Various laws, international agreements, and Coast Guard regulations require the posting of specific certificates, licenses, plans, operating instructions, and warnings onboard vessels. Some of these contain essential operational data which must be accessible at all times; others are primarily informational. This rulemaking project will seek to reduce posting requirements for nonessential operational data to reduce the burden on the public. Alternatives such as having items readily available rather than being posted are being considered.

Abstract: This rulemaking is intended to regulate stability of tank vessels built under the mandate of section 4115(a) of the Oil Pollution Act of 1990. This section requires vessels constructed or adapted to carry oil in bulk or as cargo residue, for which a contract was placed after 30 June 1990, to be equipped with double hulls.

Abstract: This rulemaking would revise 33 CFR 117.11 to prevent unnecessary drawbridge openings and add a definitions section. This revision would prohibit a vessel owner or operator from signalling a drawbridge to open when sufficient clearance is provided for the vessel to pass safely. It would also prohibit signalling for the bridge to open when there is no intention to pass through.

2259. REFUSE RECORDKEEPING FOR SHIPS

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1903(b)

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 151

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 29, 1988.

Abstract: This regulation would require certain U.S. vessels and fixed or floating platforms to keep records of refuse discharges. This record is mandated by the Marine Plastic Pollution Research and Control Act of 1987. The regulation would require that certain information be recorded and kept on board the vessel. The regulation does not prescribe what format should be used or that a standard book be purchased to log entries. The action's potential costs should be minimal and result from recordkeeping. This rulemaking action should reduce the number of illegal discharges of garbage, provide information for enforcement and assist the Coast Guard in its studies of the methods of disposal being used, the problems encountered in port, and the amounts of garbage being generated at sea.

Significance: Nonsignificant

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 154; 33 CFR 155

Abstract: Proposal would require that hoses used to transfer bulk liquid hazardous materials to and from waterfront facilities and vessels be either labeled with the names of the products for which the hoses are used, be marked "oil service" or marked "for hazardous material service: Consult hose records for compatibility before use." This last alternative is being added because it is more practical and effective.

These schemes have been in use for some time, and were adopted by the International Maritime Organization (IMO). The proposed shipping safety fairways connecting the San Francisco and the Santa Barbara traffic separation schemes are no longer necessary since creation of the Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary in September, 1992, and that portion of this rulemaking will be withdrawn.

Additional Information: The Oil Pollution Act of 1990 (OPA) repealed or superseded certain oil spill liability provisions under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (33 USC 1321), Title III of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act Amendments of 1978 (43 USC 1814), the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Authorization Act (43 USC 1653) and the Deepwater Port Act of 1974 (33 USC 1517). The financial responsibility provisions of those Acts were replaced by a single financial responsibility regime under OPA and keyed to the broader liability of OPA. In addition to financial responsibility requirements under OPA, which is limited to oil, this project would include financial responsibility requirements under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act, which concerns hazardous substances. This consolidation would allow the issuance of a single, unified Certificate of Financial Responsibility for vessels, replacing separate certificates and financial responsibility regimes under the previously mentioned Acts.

Abstract: This project would streamline the documentation process by eliminating unnecessary forms, merging forms, and simplifying procedures. This action should help to avoid confusion. RIN 2115-AD30, the first phase of this project, was a completed action in the April 1991 Agenda. Coast Guard published two separate NPRMs, one dealing with forms and procedures (CGD 89-007a) and one dealing with proposed fees (CGD 89-007b). These will be combined at the final action as 89-007. In addition, the Coast Guard published a final rule reducing the need to submit declarations of citizenship, in order to provide immediate relief from this burden.

Abstract: Rulemaking would redefine and establish more stringent qualifying criteria for individuals engaged in transporting and transferring various categories of oil and dangerous liquid cargoes. The Port and Tanker Safety Act of 1978 mandated the establishment of personnel qualification and manning standards for tank vessels. In addition, the International Convention on the Standards for Training, Certification, and Watchkeeping for Seafarers 1978 (STCW), has entered into effect and establishes international standards for tank vessel personnel qualifications. In view of the length of time since publication of the NPRM, a supplemental NPRM was issued.

Abstract: The Coast Guard conducted a study of the need for port access routes for the approaches to Chesapeake Bay, Virginia. (Notice of study results published July 13, 1989, 54 FR 29627). Abstract: This proposed rulemaking would require that lightering operations conducted from 12 to 200 nautical miles off the coast be conducted in accordance with applicable portions of the pollution prevention requirements in 33 CFR. Lightering operations past 12 miles have increased in frequency and there is reason to believe the trend will continue. Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 2110

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 1.30

Statute enacted November 5, 1992 made changes in the statutory applicability of the RVF, effective October 1, 1992.

Abstract: The Coast Guard is changing the categories of recreational vessels subject to the recreational vessel fee (RVF). A recent legislative amendment reduces the number of recreational vessels subject to the annual fee by changing the vessel length categories in fiscal years 1993 and 1994 and by repealing the fee entirely for fiscal year 1995. Abstract: The Omnibus Transportation Employee Testing Act of 1991 directs the FAA Administrator to prescribe regulations that require foreign air carriers to establish drug and alcohol testing programs for employees performing safety-sensitive aviation functions. These regulations must be consistent with the international obligations of the United States and take into consideration any applicable laws and regulations of foreign countries. This notice invites comments on a variety of issues related to the application of drug and alcohol testing requirements to employees of foreign air carriers operating within the territory of the United States. This action is being taken in lieu of a notice of proposed rulemaking to seek the public's view on a variety of issues and to obtain responses to questions that may arise in addressing drug and alcohol testing by foreign air carriers. This action is considered significant because of substantial public and congressional interest.

Abstract: This notice would propose to revise the fatigue requirements for damage-tolerant structures on transport category airplanes to require full-scale fatigue testing and to require that the thresholds for inspections be based on crack growth from initial flaws in the structure. These proposed changes are based on the service history of airplanes evaluated to the current damage tolerance requirements and are intended to ensure that, should serious fatigue damage occur within the operational life of the airplane, the remaining structure can withstand reasonable loads without failure until the damage is detected. This rulemaking is considered significant because of its safety implications and substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action would implement the FAA-related provisions of the Omnibus Transportation Employee Testing Act of 1991, which was enacted on October 28, 1991. By amending the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Congress has imposed a statutory obligation on the Administrator of the FAA to prescribe regulations that, among other things, establish an alcohol testing program for air carrier employees who perform safety-sensitive duties. This action would also propose to prohibit certain alcohol-related conduct by covered air carrier employees and would require pre-employment, random, reasonable suspicion, post-accident, and follow-up testing to detect and deter such conduct. Abstract: This notice proposed to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to update, clarify, and consolidate into one part, new part 119, the certification and operations specifications requirements for persons who conduct passenger-carrying or cargo-carrying air operations for compensation or hire. Significant changes included defining what must be included in operations specifications; defining "scheduled" and "domestic" operations; increasing the lead-time period for application for a certificate; defining a "wet lease" operation; including in the regulations criteria to determine who has operational control of an operation; and standardizing the requirements and qualifications for management personnel. This action is needed to establish permanent minimum safety standards following the "sunset" of the Civil Aeronautics Board on December 31, 1984, and the enactment of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. This notice solicited public participation in identifying and selecting a regulatory course of action by inviting interested persons to submit specific comments and arguments concerning this proposed regulatory action. This rulemaking is considered significant because of a statutory requirement.

Abstract: This notice would propose to amend the airworthiness standards for normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes by upgrading the requirements for both seat/restraint systems and for flammability standards for seat cushions used in commuter category airplanes. These amendments are needed to improve the occupant protection provisions for these types of airplanes. These new requirements would result in a level of safety commensurate with that provided by the seat/restraint requirements and the flammability standards for transport category airplanes. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 13

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposes to revise the procedures for the assessment of civil penalties for violations of the Federal Aviation Regulations and other provisions. The procedures proposed in this notice implement the requirements of the FAA Civil Penalty Administrative Assessment Act of 1992, as they modify the procedures for adjudicating a civil penalty against a person acting in the capacity of a pilot, flight engineer, mechanic, or repairman. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action would amend certain regulations governing special visual flight rules (SVFR) operations. By omission of certain words and phrases, the Airspace Reclassification final rule inadvertently altered the applicability and scope of part 91 SVFR provisions. This action would restore the applicability and scope of the SVFR provisions and reestablish airspace for SVFR operations essentially equivalent to that which existed prior to those amendments. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Agency Priority

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 23

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed action would eliminate the certification requirement to demonstrate an accelerated entry stall for commuter category airplanes. Such aircraft typically have high power-to-weight ratios that require the airplane to achieve extremely high angles of attack (excessive nose-high attitudes) during stall demonstrations. Recovery from accelerated entry stalls is less certain for airplanes that attain these extreme nose-high angles. The proposed change would remove a potential hazard during flight demonstrations required for type certification without compromising passenger safety. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This notice would propose to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to redefine the airplane reference stalling speed as the 1-g stalling speed in lieu of the minimum stalling speed. This notice would: (1) provide for a consistent, repeatable reference stalling speed; (2) ensure consistent and dependable maneuvering margins; (3) clarify the requirement for the use of 1-g stalling speeds in determining structural design speeds; (4) increase the head-on gust structural design requirement; and (5) provide for adjusted multiplying factors to maintain essentially equivalent requirements in areas where the use of minimum stalling speed has proven adequate. These changes are needed since the stalling characteristics of modern jet transports as determined by current methods can result in inconsistent reference stalling speeds. These changes may result in a higher level of safety where current methods have resulted in artificially low reference stalling speeds.

The cost of providing services for aircraft registration and recording and replacement of airmen certificates is not being fully recouped in accordance with the changes reflected in the Consumer Price Index of All Urban Consumers which was published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor or as set by the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988. CFR Citation: 14 CFR 21

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Following World War II, a substantial number of surplus military airplanes were offered for sale to the public in order to meet an increased demand for civilian-use aircraft not being met by the civil aircraft industry. The current regulation permits both type and airworthiness certification for surplus military aircraft based on the particular aircraft's safety record and condition. As military aircraft have become increasingly complex and sophisticated, that practice is no longer acceptable. This action would remove the regulations for issuing type certificates for these surplus aircraft and eliminate references to obsolete standards. Surplus military aircraft would still be certificated in the normal, utility, acrobatic, commuter, transport, and restricted categories upon compliance with the applicable regulations.

Abstract: The FAA is amending its regulations to add a Special Federal Aviation Regulation (SFAR) to Federal Aviation Regulations Part 91 to provide limited issuance of special flight authorizations that allow certain nonrevenue operations otherwise prohibited by Part 91, Subpart I, Operating Noise Limits. This SFAR is necessary because the former one (SFAR 47-3) expired on December 31, 1991. The new SFAR is also necessary because the Airport Noise and Capacity Act of 1990 provides for the operation of otherwise restricted Stage 2 aircraft in the United States if the aircraft are modified to meet Stage 3 noise levels.

Final Rule Stage

Abstract: The current regulations need to be revised to account for the changed operational practices stemming from airline economic deregulation. This proposal would clarify or change the number of flight attendants required when passengers are on board an airplane, including at stops. This proposal includes two new requirements: (1) a revision of the reduced number of flight attendants which, under certain conditions, a carrier is permitted to have on board a passenger-carrying airplane during stops; and (2) a requirement for a demonstration of competency by the other authorized persons who may be permitted to be substituted for required flight attendants when passengers are on board the airplane during stops. This proposal would change the current rule by clarifying and specifying the training required to be completed by these other authorized persons. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This notice proposed to revise the current requirements for passenger emergency exits and to adopt two new exit types into the regulations. These proposals are intended to provide more consistent standards with respect to passenger seating allowed for each exit type, and the type and number of exits required for passenger seating configurations. This notice proposed to reduce the maximum inflation time of an escape slide to reflect the current state of the art. These proposals resulted from the Public Technical Conference on Emergency Evacuation of Transport Airplanes held in Seattle, Washington, on September 3-6, 1985. Abstract: This notice proposed to require installation of an improved emergency locator transmitter (ELT) that meets the requirements of a revised Technical Standards Order (TSO) on U.S.-registered airplanes and to terminate approval to use ELTs authorized under the original TSO issued for this equipment. The new equipment would be required for future installations. This proposal was prompted by unsatisfactory performance experienced with ELTs that are manufactured under the original TSO and relates to safety recommendations by the National Transportation Safety Board and the search-and-rescue community. Although most of the unsatisfactory field experience has been with automatic ELTs, the FAA is also proposing improved standards for survival ELTs. This proposal would save lives by increasing the number of survivors rescued after aircraft accidents. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 23

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposed to amend emergency egress requirements of the airworthiness standards for normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes. These proposed rules are necessary to improve the compatibility of the requirements for emergency exit provisions of commuter category airplanes with the corresponding requirements for similar sized transport category airplanes. These proposals provide alternative emergency exit requirements, applicable to commuter category airplanes, when additional bin safety features are included in the airplane design, and include specific requirements for flight crew emergency exits, emergency exit ditching provisions, and the size requirement of the passenger entry door for commuter category airplanes. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves a cabin-safety issue.

Abstract: This proposed rule would prescribe benefit-cost-based criteria for establishment and discontinuance of LORAN-C nonprecision approach procedures at airports. It would consider traffic density, passengers served, and aircraft operating efficiencies along with the cost of establishing and maintaining an approach. The criteria will provide a guide for FAA management to assure the cost-effective placement of LORAN-C approaches. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest

Abstract: This proposed amendment would establish a requirement for part 121 certificate holders to develop an FAA-approved ground deicing/anti-icing program and to comply with that program any time conditions are such that frost, ice, or snow could adhere to the aircraft's wings, control surfaces, or propellers. This action is necessary because several accidents and the recent International Conference on Airplane Ground Deicing indicate that, under present procedures, the pilot in command may be unable to effectively determine whether critical airplane components are free of all frost, ice, or snow prior to attempting a takeoff. The proposal is intended to provide an added level of safety to flight operations in adverse weather conditions, and is considered significant because of its safety implications.

Abstract: This action would amend various sections of the regulations. Some of the amendments are clarifying or editorial in nature or correct improper or obsolete references. Others relax certain existing requirements. Others allow issuance of special flight permits for an additional purpose, relax a requirement for passenger information signs, and eliminate the bulk erasure device on cockpit voice recorders. This action is in response to numerous complaints, suggestions, and petitions for exemption concerning several regulatory requirements received from users of the National Airspace System. These users state that these sections contain obsolete references and vague, complex, and inadequate language and that, in some instances, the cost of compliance is not justified by the benefits derived.

Abstract: This action proposed changes to the airworthiness standards to improve the crash resistance of fuel systems on normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes. The FAA has determined that improved crash resistance of these fuel systems is necessary to prevent deaths and injuries due to fire in survivable crashes. The proposed design changes would limit fuel spillage near ignition sources and would provide additional time for the survivors to evacuate the airplane.

Abstract: This notice proposed to amend the airworthiness standards for transport category airplanes to require a means to alert the flight crew of potentially unsafe low fuel quantities. There have been several fuel depletion incidents involving loss of power or thrust on all engines that could have resulted in forced landings and injury or loss of life. Most of these incidents resulted from improper fuel management techniques. This proposed amendment would require new transport category airplane designs to incorporate a low fuel quantity alert system that would allow for correction of certain fuel management errors or provide the flightcrew the opportunity to make a safe landing prior to engine fuel starvation.

Abstract: This notice proposed to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to minimize the failure hazards of high speed powerplant rotor systems used in turboshaft engines in newly designed transport category rotorcraft. Engine rotor failures have occurred resulting in the release of high energy rotor fragments or other engine component fragments. These fragments have impacted and damaged critical rotorcraft structures, systems, controls, and adjacent engines, as well as caused serious or fatal injuries to passengers and crewmembers. This proposal, if adopted, is intended to eliminate these hazards.

Abstract: This notice proposed to modify the procedures for conducting an emergency evacuation demonstration by requiring that the flight crew take no active role in the demonstration and by changing the age/sex distribution requirement for demonstration participants. This notice also proposed to standardize the illumination requirements for the handles of the various types of passenger emergency exits. In addition, it is proposed to add a requirement for a "push to talk" switch to the public address system. These proposals are intended to enhance the provisions of transport category airplanes for egress of occupants during emergency conditions.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 27; 14 CFR 29

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposed to add comprehensive crash resistant fuel system design and test criteria to the airworthiness standards for normal and transport category rotorcraft. The proposed standards would minimize fuel (and other flammable fluid) spillage near ignition sources, minimize potential ignition sources and, therefore, improve the evacuation time needed for crew and passengers to escape a postcrash fire. These proposals, if adopted, would minimize the postcrash fire hazard, save lives, and substantially reduce the severe physiological and psychological injuries sustained from postcrash fires in otherwise survivable accidents.

Abstract: This notice proposed to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to add a new standard for transport category airplanes which would provide lightning protection requirements for installed electrical and electronic systems. This proposal was the result of increasing concern for the vulnerability of these systems to the indirect effects of lightning. This notice was issued in order to promulgate specific lightning protection requirements for electrical systems which perform essential or critical functions.

Abstract: This notice proposed to amend the 61-knot stall speed limitation requirement applicable to normal, utility, and acrobatic category single-engine and certain multiengine small airplanes of less than 6,000 pounds maximum weight. The proposal would require additional occupant protection requirements for those airplanes with a stall speed exceeding 61 knots. This proposal retains the current level of airplane occupant protection and permits the design and type certification of higher performance, single-engine airplanes capable of attaining an increase in cruise speeds with better specific fuel consumption. This improvement in performance and operating economies cannot be achieved without substantial increased cost and complexity if these designs are constrained by the present 61-knot stall speed limitation.

Abstract: This action would amend the exit seating rule to exclude from its applicability commuter air carrier aircraft having 9 or fewer passenger seats and on-demand air taxi aircraft having 19 or fewer passenger seats. These proposed amendments are intended to relieve air carriers and persons with disabling conditions of unnecessary burdens by allowing, on a commuter-carrier aircraft, seating in an exit-row seat a passenger who is not able, or willing without assistance, to activate an emergency exit. The revisions would eliminate unnecessary requirements for safe evacuation in an emergency, as seating configurations in such aircraft tend to differ from standard aisle-and-row seating and frequently include single units around a central open space in the cabin, couch seats, and club seating, which provide undefined, unrestricted paths to the exits.
